LAW ENFORCEMENT TOPIC OF ADDRESS

Judge W. E. Ekwall Gives Strong Address Before Silvertown Audience

SILVERTOWN, Ore., Jan. 14.—(Special.)—"Very few of the real criminals who come before me are Scandinavians," was the statement by which Judge W. E. Ekwall, judge at the municipal court at Portland, won his audience at Silvertown Tuesday evening.

While Judge Ekwall was slated to speak on "Law Enforcement" he announced in the opening of his speech that he would speak on "The Immigrant Problem."

Speaking before an audience composed largely of people of Scandinavian parentage and being himself of Scandinavian ancestry he said he could not resist speaking a little of the Scandinavian countries. He expressed his admiration for the "fighting ability and diplomacy" of these three small countries which, in spite of their being nearly surrounded by larger and seemingly more powerful countries, still enabled them to retain their boundaries. He said it was known that Scandinavians probably made the highest type of citizens among the immigrants.

He went on to speak of the Americanization program of which he is president at Portland. "Many," he said, "misunderstand the motive of this movement which is simply one of friendliness. The immigrants come to a land where there is more opportunity and where they can better their conditions. And this is not speaking disparagingly of the old country."

"But it is limited in space and cannot give the opportunities we have here. These immigrants came with the intention of becoming citizens, which should be their object when they intend to get the benefits, to attend the schools in this country. We don't want them to sever their love for the old country. "This love for one's old country is one of the finest things in human nature and to speak more languages than one, to know something of literature and art are the things which lift us above the drab side of life. "We intend to do some of the things which were unfortunately not done for our ancestors. They would have liked to have someone take an interest in them and to teach them the things they should know of the country they intended to make their home."

Judge Ekwall also spoke of the time when there was a movement underway to do away with all newspapers printed in a foreign language. This he characterized as a mistake. He said that if he was to go to the Scandinavian countries or to any other country where a foreign language was prevalent one of the first things he would search for would be an American newspaper which could tell him about the world series, or how Yale and Harvard stood or any other of his pet American hobbies. And, he said, we should not deny a stranger in our country what we would like to find in his.

Going on to speak of law enforcement he said, "we don't need as much law enforcement as law observance. "In the final analysis it doesn't make so much difference how many courts or judges we have. Until we have law observance we cannot have law enforcement in any but a scattered way. "In bringing out his point he sighted "the repeated breaking of the eighth amendment. "If people would refuse to taste or use moonshine bootlegging would soon be forgotten. It is because some of our highly respected citizens are willing to pay a fabulous sum for moonshine that the trade exists. "Many good citizens feel that they can break this law while they are very much opposed to a person who would steal a loaf of bread or a pair of shoes because he needed them. These good citizens would say this man is a thief, a menace to the country. Who can say which is the bigger criminal? Both are breaking the law."

Judge Ekwall said that the moonshine trade would exist as long as people were willing to pay such large amounts for the stuff. "Most sins," he said, "can be traced to the love of money. But one can only wear one suit of clothes and one pair of shoes at a time, nor can one eat more than three meals a day and keep one's

High tribute is paid to American local fire insurance agents by President Harry A. Smith of National Fire Co. of Hartford. It says they average up well with lawyers, doctors, ministers, bankers and other business men of their communities—a fact.

The New Year opens with the brightest prospects for agricultural and industrial activity and prosperity that our nation has witnessed in many years. It should be the endeavor of every citizen to help maintain this sound condition.

health. One cannot even be in more than one room at a time, so what is the use of selling one's soul for more?"

The judge went on to speak of the responsibility of jurors. "Too many," he explained, "try to slide out of jury duty which is one of the highest duties of a citizen. Some of our best men say that they are too busy and so it often falls to those who have no other work. These are often not fit for the responsibility it entails."

Judge Ekwall explained further that those who acted as jurors should consider the responsibility sacred even if they could make more than three dollars a day elsewhere. He said that whether one called it a privilege or a penalty, he himself called it a privilege. It was a big part of one's duty to the country and that until citizens saw their duty and acted as jurors when called to do so, and until jurors felt their responsibility, law enforcement could not be effective.

He went on to say that it was undermining to the system when jurors pronounced a well-known doctor not guilty on a charge of driving when drunk when the jurors knew he was drunk, and sent up a day laborer for the same offense because they did not know anything about him, had never heard of him.

Other numbers on the Lutheran Brotherhood program were songs by the Overland Girls Quartet and the Girl Scouts, cornet solo by Amos Benson with Mrs. Glenn Howe as accompanist, selections Francis Nelson, Cora Goplerud, by the Ukele trio composed of and Marget Sather, an instrumental trio by Alfred Jensen on the violin, M. Storesti on the flute and Miss Ingeborg Goplerud on the piano.
