RELIGIOUS WORK CONFERENCE SET

Thoroughgoing Discussion to Occupy Two Day Meeting in February

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Jan. 15.—(Special to the Statesman.)—Problems in religious work at the University of Oregon will receive a thoroughgoing discussion at a two-day conference to be held on the campus February 11 and 12.

Student religious workers, faculty members interested in the work, clergymen of the city, and several religious workers throughout the state will have a part in the sessions.

"The idea in the conference is that all those interested in this sort of work on the campus may get together to discuss aims and methods and ways and means," says Dean Henry D. Sheldon, a member of the religious work committee of the faculty, of which H. M. Douglass, university librarian, is chairman.

"The conference will not be a mass meeting, but of course those students or townspeople who wish to attend the sessions may do so. It is primarily for the discussion of individual problems," he added.

The chief speaker of the two-day meet will be Dr. C. E. Rugh, of the University of California, a noted leader in religious work and the author of two books upon that subject. Both of these books on moral education are considered true contributions to the subject.

Two years ago Dr. Rugh received a commission and a year's leave of absence from his university that he might devote that time to a survey of religious enterprise in the colleges and universities in the United States. No official report has ever been given by Dr. Rugh, but he will open the conference here by a brief summary of his observations.

He will remain here during the two days, leading discussions and addressing the conference sessions.

The program for the meetings has not yet been fully worked out, but a sub-committee of the combined faculty and student religious committees on the campus will report the final schedule at a committee meeting to be held on Thursday of this week.

Eugene—also organizations begin work on $45,000 labor temple.

Work on Bridge Stopped

Pending action by the city council when it meets Monday night, work on the new bridge on North Church street is being held up. Several residents of the neighborhood are desirous to know if Salem is contemplating a concrete bridge program. If so, they want the old North Church street bridge retained until they can get a concrete bridge. If a new wooden one is built now, they fear they will have to wait for some time to come before they can get a concrete bridge.
