Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Bishop les the grand march which soon broke up into couples and groups in response to the "Fourty-Nin orchestra," which played long into the night, participants being re-luctant to leave.

Casual observers could note that while the popularity of the old fashioned dance is certainly undimmed, certain of the oldest of the dancers adopted that modern development of jass, a stick of the and characters and characters as a stick of the state o gum, and chewed as ubsorbedly as could any modern flapper. The enthuisasm of the audiono response could have been give any worthy project. Contestants were Willi er, John Oudeans, J. C. Matth C. W. Hill, E. A. Pruitt, T. Stalcup, W. Z. Simmon, W.
