VAUDEVILLE TO BE SHOWN HERE TODAY

Management of Heilig Theatre Presents Five Feature Acts on Program

Association Vaudeville will hold the Heilig stage today with five clever acts. Harold Windus Heilig's master organizer will present an American Indian atmospheric novelty.

Heading the bill is the superior character comedian, James F. Fulton, with a talented company of three, appearing in the Geo. Ade sketch, "The Mayor and the Manicure." The New York Telegraph said of this act: "The best sketch ever written. Geo. Ade's wit, Geo. Ade's humor. And it takes big, jolly, jovial, Jim Fulton to put it across."

"Music from Anything" is the motto of the two Rosellas, comedy musicians, who present an act entitled "Music With a Smile." The male Rosella caricatures a drunk to perfection and despite his apparent debility, manages to draw forth music from his smoking pipe. At other times, his cane suddenly becomes a flute, a whisk broom produces piccolo music, the lamp post is transposed into a bassoon and a hat rack emits harmonious melodies. Bits of comedy talk enliven up the proceeding admirably.

Games of sleight of hand have fascinated audiences in all countries and eyes in this era, so brimful of all sorts of entertainment, the prestidigitator is able to draw an interested audience, whether it is in the public square of a country town or in a city theatre. Ledgerdemain has survived because of its absorbing interest and ability to make people "laugh fit to kill." Emerson, "The Master Mystic," with the assistance of two aides, bewilders and entertains with a conglomerate of tricks that require adroitness of hand and intelligence. Emerson makes pigeons disappear in full view of the audience and rescues them with a net in which he seemingly scoops them out of the air.

James B. Kelly and Bebe Browne offer a singing dancing and talking act with beautiful scenic embellishments. Kelly possesses a tenor voice of exceptional range while Miss Browne dances and sings divinely. Charles Riley is known to the theatrical world as "America's Greatest One Hand Balancer," and he certainly lives up to his billing. Using only one hand Mr. Riley accomplishes a series of feats that are distinctly a high achievement.

Lewis Stone and Anna Q. Nilsson Gain Tribute in Picture at Oregon

Israel Zangwill has scored again. The film version, offered by First National, of his stage hit, "Too Much Money," proved to be one of the season's sensations when it opened at the Strand last night.

Mainly responsible for the success of the Zangwill piece is the superlative acting of Anna Q. Nilsson and Lewis Stone, the featured players, and the excellent direction of John Francis Dillon.

The theme concerns the trials and tribulations of a wealthy husband who comes to the belief that if he loses his riches, he will win back his wife. He does—without really losing his wealth. It is a very interesting plot.

Stone, who is invariably associated with a dress coat, is seen to comedy advantage here in the outfit of a grocer's clerk and the overalls and brown derby of a janitor. The stunning Anna Q. Nilsson is likewise seen in the plain garb of a hard-working housewife.

A strong cast supports the featured players. It is a picture that should not be missed.

FILM OF ROMANCE COMING TO HEILIG

"Palace of Pleasure," Tale of Plots, Intrigue and Love, Here Monday

"Palace of Pleasure" will open at the Heilig theatre next Sunday for a two day run.

Romance and adventure, conflict and intrigue—they are the ingredients that tempt the imagination, they are story elements you love to see when you go to the movies. The most delightful combination of them is to be seen in the Fox Films production, "The Palace of Pleasure."

Here is a piece of screen entertainment that seizes the interest of the spectator and shuts out the world of reality for more than an hour.

Edmund Lowe as a dashing royalist, Betty Compson as the beautiful Lola Montez, and Henry Kolker as a powerful Premier are the principals about whom the story revolves. The plot moves in a whirlwind of action that distinguishes it as a finely conceived story that has received excellent treatment at the hands of Director Emmett Flynn.

CONVICTS WILL PAY RIOT BILL are now twelve prisoners in the bull pen as a result of the riot and the incendiary fire that preceded the riot.

All the convicts wounded during the riot are recovering, with the exception of Albert Corley, Corley suffers considerable pain and his condition is said to be precarious.

A large number of letters from many parts of the state, congratulating officials and prison employes for the manner in which they handled the riot, have been received during the past two days by Warden Little. Two of these letters came from women, one of whom lives in Albany.

An order for several bolts of striped material was placed yesterday with the Kay woolen mills. This is to be used in making up suits for the "incorrigibles." There is said to be a number of convicts in the bull pen who have not yet been provided with the suits.
