TOLL BRIDGE PLANS STRONGLY OPPOSED

Upstream Cities Send Telegrams to Hawley Registering Strong Protest

PORTLAND, Ore., March 8.—(By Associated Press).—W. C. Hawley, representative from the first Oregon congressional district who, it has been in news dispatches, is definitely lined up in support of the privately promoted Longview toll bridge proposals, will receive a number of telegrams today from cities in his district which will indicate disagreement with his position of Portland and other communities demanding that the Columbia river be kept open to all ocean commerce.

Chambers of commerce of Salem, Oregon City, Albany, Corvallis and McMinnville have sent telegrams to Mr. Hawley expressing approval of the stand of the stand of the upper river cities in demanding that state highway commissions have certain supervisory powers in construction of a Longview-Rainier bridge.

Sixty business men of McMinnville unanimously adopted a resolution declaring that the McMinnville chamber of commerce was with Portland in opposing any toll bridge across the Columbia river channel or any other bridge across the channel until it meets with the approval of the state highway commission of both Oregon and Washington.

It had previously been reported that an officer of the McMinnville chamber had sent a wire to Washington approving of the proposal that the bridge be constructed without state or port jurisdiction but the action yesterday definitely placed the McMinnville business interests on record as favoring highway commission supervision.

The Salem chamber of commerce sent Representative Hawley the following telegram: "Opposed to any type of toll bridge over the Columbia river constructed by private interests without approval and supervision of the state highway commissions of Oregon and Washington. Very anxious you support such provision before house committee."

FIGHT FOR LEAGUE SEATS CARRIED ON

Statesmen Refuse to Recede From Original Positions; Little Progress

GENEVA, March 8.—(By Associated Press).—No progress was made today in the crisis over the question of enlargement of the league of nations' council. The opening session of the assembly convened for the election of Germany adjourned tonight after a dramatic appeal by the president, Dr. Alfonso Dacosta, former premier of Portugal, for harmony, without designating a day for the next meeting. To gain time to permit the reappearance of M. Briand at Geneva, the subcommittees of both assembly and council will take up auxiliary matters tomorrow.

The day closed with a continuation of the almost frenzied exchange of visits between the statesman and with all parties to the conflict for council seats adhering rigidly to their original positions and openly proclaiming that they had no intention of receding one iota.

Count Quinones de Leon, Spanish ambassador to France said:

"Spain demands a permanent seat simultaneously with Germany. As for the idea of a subcommittee investigating how best to reconstruct the council, we do not fancy it."

The Brazilian spokesman explained the attitude of that country:

"We are going to pursue our claims for a permanent seat to the end. We do not know what the end will be, but we are persevering. We cannot allow a whole continent to remain without permanent representation and in this claim we have no Latin-American rivals."

The Swedish representative declared:

"We will not agree to any present enlargement of the council even if Germany's approval is won for it."

The Polish delegates seemed less confident yet not less insistent in their demand for a council seat. Despite the undoubted crisis, members of the council not directly connected with the present conflict informed the Associated Press correspondent tonight that they deemed yesterday's conversation with Dr. Luther and Dr. Stressemann, the German delegates, helpful in that they removed the spirit of vindictiveness engendered by the dispute. They therefore thought that, so mighty was the issue at stake involving as it does the reconciliation of Europe and the whole destiny of the league of nations, a way should be discovered to adjust the crisis.

In their best judgment, the proper procedure was the election of Germany to a permanent seat, the entire problem of the reconstruction of the council then to be submitted for profound study. One point suggested was the adoption of a clear cut system of rotation for the non-permanent chairs.

Dr. Costa in his salutatory address warned the delegates that the league's life had reached a turning point, and besought them neither to make nor let others make depressing or paralyzing suggestions. Recalling Locarno, he asserted that its harmony had brought all peoples together in fraternity and hope for the opening up for mankind of an era of tranquility and happiness after all the anguish and suffering of the past.

"The League of Nations," continued the president, "has no right to contemplate the remotest possibility of its own disappearance of even check. The present juncture is so decisive that we must feel the most complete confidence and obstinately refuse to admit that the vast dream of peace and progress might vanish at the very moment when it has begun to seem a beautiful reality, leaving mankind once more beneath the heel of all the forces of destruction which had thought were vanquished."
