WET ENGLAND AND DRY AMERICA

If there is any one in this section clothed in his right mind who believes a return to the "good old days" of the saloon in America would be a good thing, he should read the article in last week's Literary Digest under the heading, "Wet England Aiding Dry America."

England's drink bill is $40 yearly for each individual. Each family there spends about $175 annually for drink, though the average workingman earns only $15 a week-And 2,000,000 men in England are out of work.

There is dirt and squalor among the English poor, but the brewers' profits are around a hundred million dollars a year. England spends 83,000,000 pounds a year for education, and 307,500,000 pounds for drink.

Wet England, an industrial nation, needing efficiency in her working people, is losing out in competition with dry America, even with our infinitely higher wage scales. She cannot compete with our people, while her laborers are besotted with drink. The liquor interests have a strangle hold on England-

And it will not be loosened till her masses wake up to this act. That may be a long time, or the time may be hastened upon the initiative of England's leaders who see their industrial house tottering.

Well. Russia has gone back to liquor and sin. According to the straw voting wet press of this country, the United States is following in Russia's footsteps.-Ohio State Journal.

FLAWS IN THE HUMAN MACHINE

The great process which we refer to simply as "evolution" is impressed upon the common mind as something that is supposed to have happened in the dim past-

Yet the thoughtful man needs only to look about him to see that the process is still at work; that man is still changing, and also the lower animals—especially the standard bred and pure bred and thoroughbred domesticated animals, that have come up a long way through the geologic ages to their that's how cool I was." present forms, and are still developing.

whatever you want to call them, less noticeable, are going on all the time. They can be traced in our bodies-And why should this not be so? Is man progressing to perfection or is he standing still? For those who think man a nearly perfect work (including women, too, of course), Dr. A. H. Schultz of John Hopkins medical school makes these observations: 'Not more than 20 per cent of human beings have ears of the same size.

"Usually the opposite sides of the mouth differ in size and in level. "The right arm is usually longer than the left.

"The Sunny Side of the War," now being viewed at the Oregon theatre under the name of Behind the Front," is billed as the greatest laugh provoker screened "since the blue snow." The picture is from "Spoils of War," by Hugh Wiley, well known humorist writer whose articles appear regularly in the Saturday Evening Post. The teacher was trying to conrey an idea of devotion to the members of her class. "Now suppose," she said, "a man working on the river bank suddenly fell in. He could not swim and would be danger of drowning. Picture the scene—the man's sudden fall, the cry for help. His wife knows his peril and, hearing his screams, rushes immediately to the bank. Why does she rush to the bank?" Whereupon a boy in the rear exclaimed: "Why, to draw his insurance money."

To the careful observation of the people who have been watching the contest increase in magnitude from day to day, the list shows many surprising things.
