

TEACHER GETS REGENT HONOR

L. A. Woodworth, Salem High School, Placed on University Staff

L. A. Woodworth, professor of French and Latin in the Salem high school, has been appointed to the staff of the romance language department of the University of Oregon, according to dispatches received here Monday, following a meeting of the board of regents of the university. Besides Mr. Woodworth, two other men, J. R. Wadsworth, instructor in the University of Michigan, and Leavett O. Wright, who has just received his doctor's degree at the University of California, were appointed members of the language staff at the university.

Mr. Woodworth has taught in the Salem high school for over a year, instructing both in French and in Latin. He studied in the University of Chicago, and later, after serving in the world war, remained in Paris where he continued his studies. He was born in the Dalles of an old Oregon family, his father having lived for many years in Salem.

The appointments to the university staff are made during the spring to give those selected opportunity to arrange their affairs for the opening in the fall. Mr. Woodworth will continue his duties at the high school here during this year.

No announcement concerning the selection of a new president of the University of Oregon was made by the board of regents after Monday's session, and it was intimated that another meeting is to be held within two weeks when it is thought something more definite would be announced.

Dr. Clarence V. Boyer of the University of Illinois, was appointed by the regents head of the English department to succeed Professor H. C. Howe, who was relieved of this position last fall. Dr. Boyer has been a member of the English faculty of the University of Illinois for 15 years.

'SUNNY FRANCE' IS PICTURE IN FILM

Beery, Hatton, Mary Brian Featured at Oregon in "Behind the Front"

"Sunny France!" "It may be so, we do not know. It sounds so queer!" Just about two million ex-doughboys who got "over here" during the late unpleasantness in France are going to be poignantly taken back to their soldier days when they see "Sunny France" as it is pictured in "Behind the Front," a Paramount film at the Oregon theatre today.

And the words of the cynical old song are going to rise to their

No Cold Tomorrow, if you do this

You can end a cold overnight. You can end the fever, check the fever, open the bowels, tone the system—all at once. The best way known to do this is with HILL'S. It is so efficient that we paid $1,000,000 for it. It is so well-proved that millions now employ it. Don't rely on anything else. Get HILL'S today, and tomorrow the cold will end. lips when they mentally jog along with Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, as wild a pair of doughboys as ever shovelled rock in the SOS, and look out at the French scenery, mournful in a heavy rain from the side of a dinky box-car suitable for "40 men or 8 horses."

No more realistic or humorous scenes have been filmed in pictures than those in this side-splitting comedy of life in the belated AEF which Paramount has contributed to the cause of keeping alive the laughter of the doughboys—and all others.

Beery and Hatton descend in the mud—and it's real French mud, the kind that slips, and sticks, and bogs down. And no sooner do they get off the train than they are assigned to carry the captain's trunk up to his lodgings in the French village.

Life in a small French town wasn't exciting, but it did have diverting moments—such as a sudden inspection by visiting officers. Hatton and Beery out for dress parade is one of the comedy riots of the year. Who hasn't like Hatton—had a spiral puttee slip and come unbound just at the moment when he couldn't possibly bend over to fix it? Who hasn't found a vital article of his equipment missing at the fatal moment? That is, who hasn't, if he was in the AEF?

Possibly one of the biggest laughs of the picture is the scene where Beery and Hatton are assigned to clean up a street in a French village. That was some job, as any one who has been to France knows. They got it done—just as a regiment of cavalry came along!

EUGENE TO EXPLOIT M'KENZIE WATERS

Would Construct Bear Creek Reservoir for 30,000 Feet of Water

The city of Eugene has filed with the state engineer here application covering the construction of the Bear creek reservoir for the storage of 30,000 acre feet of water from the McKenzie river, and the appropriation of the stored water and water from the McKenzie river and Johnson creek, for the development of 23,863 theoretical horsepower.

The municipality also would appropriate 5200 cubic meet per second of water from the McKenzie river and water stored in the Bear creek reservoir for the development of 71,263 theoretical horsepower. The cost of the proposed development was estimated at $4,281,780.

CITY HELD GUILTYLESS CITY IS NOT HELD LIABLE FOR DEFECTIVE PAVEMENTS

That the city is not liable for damages resulting from defective pavements or sidewalks unless it has knowledge of the defect and has had reasonable time to remedy it was the opinion submitted to the council meeting Monday night by city attorney Fred Williams.

Miss Betty Mays on the evening of December 10, 1925, was injured by a fall resulting from a defective sidewalk on Highland avenue between Walnut and Cherry streets. She was confined to the hospital two weeks, sent home for four weeks, and then had to be taken to the hospital for an operation, all because of the injury. Miss Mays is a dress maker.

To obtain damages from the city Miss Mays would have to show that the city was aware of the sidewalk defect and had had a reasonable time to remedy it, according to Williams. In no case can damages for more than $100 be filed against the city for such a cause.

SPANISH WAR VETS HOSTS TO THROG

State Commander Among Guests From Cities Present Last Night

Hal Hibbard camp, United Spanish War Veterans, and Hal Hibbard Auxiliary, were hosts and hostesses Monday night to one of the biggest patriotic social gatherings of the winter.

They entertained Camp Phillips of Albany, Camp Elias Hutchinson of Woodburn, the state department officers, a number of other guests from Portland, Eugene, Hillsboro and other places, with their wives, families, mothers and friends.

Everybody was served. Apple pie, custard pie, doughnuts, sandwiches, real beans, coffee, salads ranging in color from white to dark, from honey-sweet to nose-wrinkling vinegaryness, and a number of other assorted foods.

A short formal program was presented: A piano solo by Miss Mildred Jaeger, a reading by Mrs. Carrie Chase, a solo by Mr. Jesse Kinzer, and a short talk by D. A. Elkins of Eugene.

Following this, brief addresses were given by Commander Fuller of Albany; E. C. Naffger, commander of Woodburn post; Frank Godfrey, state commander; Lefe Manning, state senior vice commander; Lee Hurst, of Albany, junior vice commander; Judge Richard Deich, of Portland; Mrs. George Carr, junior vice commander of the Auxiliary; Frank Stellmacher, of Albany, past state commander; Elmer Lundberg, Portland, past state commander; Bob Sawyer, Portland, state legislative committeeman; L. D. Mahone, Portland, state delegate to the national encampment, and Mrs. Emma Manning, chaplain of the Oregon WRC. Col. Carl Abrams was chairman.

While dinner was served at a few minutes past eight, the program continued until almost midnight. Nearly 100 of the guests came from out of town, and had the long drive after midnight.

This is one of a regular succession of get-together meetings to be held by the United Spanish war camps in the state. One other such is to be in Portland, March 27, when Camp Scout Young, of Portland, has a birthday celebration at the Portland chamber of commerce. A cordial invitation was given the Salem boys to attend, and a number will do so.

Announcement was made of the big public program to be given by the local camp, April 16, at the armory, when the Salem boys' chorus, assisted by a number of popular Salem musicians, will give a concert. The proceeds will go to the Roosevelt monument fund, for the great Roosevelt statue on Battle Rock, at Port Orford, on the Roosevelt highway. Roosevelt was one of the Spanish war soldiers, and the state organization has felt that it honored itself in dedicating this splendid monument to him, at perhaps the most striking historical spot on the whole $5,000,000 highway that bears his name. Full announcement will be made of the program within the next few days.

Col. E. Hofer, president of the Oregon Humane society, made a hurried trip to Portland Monday when he received information that the Multnomah county commissioners had forcibly ejected the society from its office in the court house without first serving notice on the officials of the organization.

Mr. Hofer said upon his return to Salem that the society would continue to function, and that Mrs. F. W. Swanton, manager of the organization, already was formulating plans for the opening of new offices in the downtown district. "Both myself and Governor Pierce will support Mrs. Swanton in any action she may take," said Colonel Hofer.

It was pointed out by Colonel Hofer that the action of the commissioners was unfair, in that various offices in the Multnomah county court house are now occupied by officials who have no connection with the county government.

PORTLAND, March 15.—(By Associated Press.)—Mrs. F. W. Swanton, general manager of the Oregon Humane society, which was removed from its quarters in the county court house Saturday by the county commissioners, said today that the organization would continue its work in the interests of dumb animals.

Mrs. Swanton was called from a speaking tour of Coos county by word that the society's office furniture had been moved across the street from the court house into quarters occupied by the state automobile license bureau. Directors and members of the society held a meeting this morning on the sidewalk in front of the office into which its belongings had been moved, to discuss the situation.

County Commissioner Phegley said today in defending the removal of the furniture that the humane society had been requested to move from the court house some time ago as a part of a general rearrangement of offices in the building.

Members of the society intimated that an appeal to the public for relief from its present position might be made.

The humane society is supported by state appropriation, public donation and membership fees. It also derives a small revenue from operation of a dog pound.

SALEM MEN HELPED START HOLLYWOOD

In Fact, They Helped Start Both Hollywood, Cal., and Our Hollywood

In the Hollywood items in The Statesman of last Saturday, a little sketch was given about our Hollywood—the Hollywood community that starts on the Silverton-Salem paved highway about a mile and a half east of the state fair grounds.

But there's more to the history of our Hollywood, and it connects up with California's now famous Hollywood, a suburb of Los Angeles, where the movie magnets of the United States live and work and generally disport themselves. Our Salem Hollywood was platted by Bechtel & Bynon in 1909. The members of the firm were Louis Bechtel, prominent real estate man of Salem then and since, now of Childs & Bechtel, and Fred S. Bynon, now of Marshfield, Or.

Before that they were in the real estate business together in Los Angeles. They sold the first lots in Hollywood, Cal. A part of the land on which Hollywood, Cal., now stands was sold for $40 an acre to a Los Angeles jeweler and his associates, who also bought up other tracts and platted the town-site.

The office of Bechtel & Bynon was on the east side of Broadway between First and Second streets, Los Angeles, and Mr. Bechtel remained there, while a little house the size of a modern garage was built for Mr. Bynon on the Hollywood townsite that was to be.

A car line was built to the tract, and the cars stopped in front of the little office. Mr. Bechtel put prospective buyers onto the cars and Mr. Bynon received them at the other end.

It is a far cry from those days in the beginnings of California's Hollywood to the fine city there now, with lots, even in the residence districts, selling for thousands of dollars a front foot.

Our Hollywood was named after California's movie city. Our Hollywood has prospered, too. It is one of the finest suburban districts around Salem.

1000 SILVERTON MEMBERS GATHER

"Four L" Organization Has Giant Gathering on Sunday Evening

More than 1,000 residents of Silverton met Sunday evening in the Silverton Armory in the first of a series of entertainments to be given by the Silver Falls Timber company's employe organization, known as the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen.

Sunday evening was chosen because that is the only time the night crews can assemble. For some time the "Four-L" organization has contemplated a get-together, for the purpose of a closer fellowship between members. Lumbermen and their families and friends were present.

The meeting was the greatest of its kind ever held in Silverton. An excellent program was arranged and supper served. It is presumed that the first gathering will be followed by others within the near future.

'Farmer Leads the Whey' Pupil's Weird Sentence

Test Questions Written by High School Students Show Uses of Words; One Girl 'Stumbles Over Her Precedent'

Some of the humorous answers to test questions written by high school students were revealed at the local school yesterday. In the spelling and penmanship class the fifth period, the instructor read a few sentences from the papers which she received from her pupils.

A young penman, in using the word "boll" in a sentence said: "A bolling alley is a place where they play billiards." From the other sex came this sentence: "The boll was weaving in the cotton."

Another young lady who aspires to become a stenographer, in using the word "precedent," said: "My precedent stopped in front of me and I nearly stumbled into it."

One of the boys who played basketball this year wrote, "The chasm was kept for a relic." A young lady who may some day be applying for a stenographic position, wrote: "Chasm reigned in the crowd after the accident."

Various forms of the word "whey," or as Webster defines it, "the watery part of milk, become apparent in such sentences as these:

"The milky whey may be seen at night."
"The milky whey is best seen at night."

The best sentence containing this word, though, was this: "The farmer led the whey to the road." As the instructor remarked, "We didn't know whether he used a halter or not."

These sentences are taken from the six-week test of the advanced pupils in penmanship and spelling at the Salem high school.

"A Good Thing for The Budget"

(Editorial in Portland News, January 28, 1926)

"A recent survey among Chicago housewives discloses the fact that 85 per cent of them purchase their meat by sight. The telephone, it seems, does not play the part of meat purchasing agent except in comparatively few cases.

"This is encouraging evidence that the American housewife is sticking pretty close to her knitting and is not 'laying down on the job.' It is a good thing for both family budgets and hubby's palate."

The constantly increasing business in both Skaggs Stores and Markets would seem to indicate that, in this section, the percentage of women who realize the vital importance of personal shopping is at least as great as in Chicago.
