

AMERICAN HORSE IS VICTOR IN ENGLAND

Jack Horner Takes First in 'Classic Grand National' of Great Britain

AINTREE, England, March 26. (By Associated Press.)—Jack Horner, American-owned race horse, won the classic English steeple chasing plum—the grand national—this afternoon, covering the famous Aintree course of four and a half miles with its hazardous hedges, in faultless style.

Jack Horner's time was 9 minutes 36 seconds, only 1 3-5 seconds more than the grand national record of 1906.

The disappointments of the day for the huge cosmopolitan crowds gathered here were the usual one of weather, which was dull and rainy, and the usual one of the absence of the prince of Wales from the big race.

Big races in England never fail to develop stories of fortunes made by venturing a few shillings, and tonight it is a story of a youth of Llanelly, Wales, who has made a double winning of 2600 pounds sterling, by staking a pound note on two outsiders—King of Clubs, a 100 to 1 shot, which won the Lincoln handicap on Wednesday and Jack Horner for today at 25 to 1.

VOTE FOR TEACHERS FRANK NEER URGES

taught to 388 girls in the junior high schools of the city. The cafeterias at both of these schools are self supporting, the food being prepared by the girls of the domestic science department and sold to the students at cost.

Since the inception of the machine shop department, it has turned over to the taxpayers $5,000. A machine is now being constructed that will renew the old seats and desks and thereby save the taxpayers more money.

Art work has not been neglected in the schools. The ninth grade art class of Parrish junior high school is at present engaged in designing and making the scenery for the new stage of that school.

A definite program of physical education is being carried out throughout all the schools, upon the assumption that physical fitness is necessary to attain mental alertness.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Newmeyer's talk, Frank Neer, district governor of the Lions, and director on the Salem school board, explained to the members of the club that an election is to be held Monday at which the taxpayers will have the privilege of granting or rejecting an increase salary for the Salem school teachers.

University Staunch Aid to Industry in Northwest

SEATTLE—Economic development of the Northwest, husky young commonwealth constituting one of the corners of the Union, has received staunch aid from the University of Washington.

The college of fisheries developed a process of canned crabs that added, the first year, $450,000 to the resources of Washington and Alaska. It now is devising a method to can smelt and is giving studied assistance to the cod fishing industry in the North Pacific, where there are 50,000 square miles of cod banks engaging thirty-six vessels.

The college of forestry originated a kiln for drying Douglas fir in thirty-three percent of the time formerly required. A large lumber firm estimated the saving in the last five years at more than $250,000.

The college of mines is devising methods of using sponge iron for the manufacture of foundry iron and steel and a way has been found for converting scrap iron into marketable steel, cheaply, quickly and efficiently.

More Productive Farms Prospect in Southwest

DENVER—The farming belt of the United States, moving westward again, is expanding to include in the area of great productivity the region embracing Western Kansas, parts of Oklahoma, the Panhandle of Texas and Eastern New Mexico, says A. Lincoln Fellows, irrigation engineer of the department of agriculture with headquarters here.

Older methods of dry farming must give way to more advanced and intensive methods under pressure of economic conditions, in his judgement.

Where the farmer who first settled the dry farming belt was contented with a bare living and a very few of the comforts of life, the present day farmer must have his modern conveniences, automobile and radio included, and must make better profits to pay for these things," he said.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

Central Press Sports Editor

TAMPA, Fla., March 20.—Just a year ago I stood looking over the Washington Senators with Clark Griffith and discussing the makeup to the team, then preparing to retain the championship newly won.

"We're going to left hand the league to death this year if our pitchers get going right," remarked Griffith, pointing to "Zeb" Zachary and George Mogridge he said: "There are two of the best southpaws in the game when they're going good."

Griffith had them, in addition to these two men, Duth Ruether just added to the staff and counted on to do his bit, along with the other two. Both Griff and Harris knew when they obtained Ruether that he rated as an in and outer, so they withheld a decision on him at the time.

When the 1925 campaign ended Ruether had turned in 18 victories and been licked just seven times. Zachary had won 12 games and lost 15. Mogridge alone had failed to render a good account of himself—eventually being traded to St. Louis for Hank Severid.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER WHICH cause one to wonder. Why did Griffith suddenly change his mind about Zachary and pin his hopes on Ruether, who has never had two good years in a row?

CHANGE OF HEART MAY BE FATAL I UNDERSTAND that Harris is counting on Joe Bush partly as a pinch hitter this year. The venerable one is a mean man at bat in a pinch. But why sacrifice a good lefthander to get a pinch hitter, one asks?
