LONG SLEEVES DECREED

SKIRTS TO BE SHORTER, NEW FASHIONS INDICATE

PARIS, April 5.—(By Associated Press.)—Shortened skirts and lengthened sleeves mark the new fashions in women's dresses displayed today at the grand opening of the Longchamps race track for the racing season. Dressmakers evidently have decided that what ever cloth is saved in the skirts must be used up in the rest of the frock, and the arms of the modishly gownned women were completely hidden under elaborate sleeves. Legs were as visible as arms were hidden. The bare arm appears to be deemed on the fill may go ahead. He also brought out that there is a question as to just who is to pay for the culvert over the power race. It will take two months to construct the culvert and to allow it to set long enough to harden properly. Those interested hope to have the culvert built at once so that upon its completion the fill can be rushed. The matter was referred to the city engineer, the city attorney and the street improvement committee.

Street Cars in Salem are to go the way of the buffalo and peon pants, it was indicated by T. L. Billingsley, manager of the Salem Street Railway company. Mr. Billingsley asks permission to banish street cars on the Commercial street and Fairgrounds road and substitute street buses.

"This is the second of three units," Mr. Billingsley explained. "The first was the Seventeenth street-Yew Park unit. The third will be the State street-Chemeketa street unit."

"We now have the wherewithal to carry out the first two units. We are ordering buses, each of which will seat 29 passengers. This will be our standard bus. The first buses will be placed on the Seventeenth street-Yew Park run, and the present buses will be held in reserve for special service. When our new buses arrive we will have 11 in all."

When the third unit of buses is installed, the street cars will be phased. Recently Mr. Billingsley had stated that the trend is away from the cars and towards the buses.

Several of the passengers on the present bus line have asked that the buses go to State and Commercial instead of State and Liberty. The council was asked permission to change the present routing from Seventeenth street to Fifteenth street on the return run. If such permission is extended, then the buses will go to Commercial instead of Liberty street.

A committee of five was appointed to confer with officials of the Salem Street Railway company on the matter of buses. Those appointed are Aldermen Rosebrough as chairman, Townsend, Herrick, Purvine and Johnson.

Although the issue of black pavement had apparently been laid to rest when the city council recently went on record as favoring only concrete pavement, the ghost returned at Monday night's meeting to enjoy several moments of heated prominence. The petition to pave Mission from Twelfth to Church streets with black top excited the discussion.

City Engineer Hugh Rogers declared that the macadam foundation is of such quality that scraping it off and laying on concrete would be a waste of energy and cash. He stated that the black top can be laid right on the present surface when it is polished and leveled off.

A special committee appointed to look into the matter reported that the Oregon Electric company has not been observing its franchise on the track, that jets from the main line down on Mill street alongside the Starr cannery. The franchise specifies that cars shall not stand on the side track for longer than 35 minutes. Freight cars have become used to standing there for much longer times, according to the report. "The city attorney was instructed to notify the Oregon Electric company that the franchise will have to be observed hereafter."

City Attorney Fred Williams' opinion concerning the annexation of West Salem by Salem was read. He brought out that because of the system of collecting taxes, the only way to merge the two cities is to bring West Salem into Marion county or to bring Salem into Polk county.

Petitions for the paving of 14 streets were granted. Seven bids were received for the hauling of the concrete this season for the paving of streets. The bids were referred to the street committee with power to act.

The bill of the Salem Abstract company for use of records by the city in its street paving was definitely rejected as the bill had failed to obtain the endorsement of the committee through whose hands it had passed.

Petitions for the paving of four streets were referred to the street committee.

Plans and specification for the paving of 16 streets were reported on and approved.

tion of cruelty to children, announced tonight that he will begin legal action tomorrow to have a guardian appointed for the girl in children's court.

He said that an investigation by him has shown that the girl's mother is not a fit guardian for her. He said he would base this action on statements of Miss Mary Conlin, former landlady of the Heenans, that the mother, and daughter had often held drinking parties.

NEW YORK, April 5.—(By Associated Press.)—Martin C. Anson, former congressman, issued a statement today denying that Edward W. Browning, whose reported engagement to 15-year old Frances Heenan, caused several investigations to be started, had ever attended a party in his apartment. Mr. Anson also explained that he had only a slight acquaintance with Stella Lubin, 17 year old model, who died March 28, a week after she attended a party with Browning and Miss Heenan.

A week before her death, Miss Lubin telephoned Miss Heenan, according to the latter, saying that she had been made ill by something eaten at supper in "the senator's" apartment.

He explained that he had been introduced to Miss Lubin by Browning at a reception given by one of his clients from Washington and at which Miss Lubin was a guest in Brownings party. The only time he ever saw the girl again, he said, was the following Sunday when he went automobile driving with her for a few hours, in company with another woman. Returning from the drive, Miss Lubin remained for a while in his apartment, where there were several other persons, Mr. Anson said. Then she went home. This was a week before the girl's death.

Bits For Breakfast

Grow more flax—

And do it now; plant it by the 15th.

The linen mills will need more fibre than is in sight right now. So the state will take on 300 to 400 acres more, if the farmers want to grow it; and they can deliver either the straw after threshing out the seed, or the flax as they harvest it. There is plenty of fiber on hand. Act quickly, if you want to grow more flax.

Most of the flax is out of the ground now; some of it an inch to two or three inches high. The recent rains did it a lot of good. About 90 per cent of the seed for the acreage already contracted for has been planted.

The flax plant at the penitentiary is turning out over $500 worth of products every week in the year, and it is speeding up every day. It is turning out about 1000 pounds of spinning top a day, and 500 pounds of long line fiber, and 100 bushels of flax seed and a quantity of upholstery tow, besides the ground flax seed for the drug trade, and the waste (shives) being burned. As stated, the values run up now to over $500 a day, and will grow. They will possibly grow up more than $1000, if the waste (shives) can be used in making paper string, as is now contemplated—the matter being investigated. Quite a manufacturing industry already; and becoming more so fast.

The lime plant is about ready to start up, and this will add a good many dollars each day to the gross receipts.

There are plans for putting in more scutching machines, and later, machines for working up the cut flax straw, and eventually for retting and scutching by the new French method, investigated recently by John Quinlan, superintendent of the penitentiary industries, who went to Canada for this and other investigations.

One can plainly see now that the Oregon penitentiary is well on the way towards becoming fully self-supporting. This may come within the next year.

The bookkeeping is being very well done now, throughout the penitentiary industries. They know pretty well where they are "at" all the time, and will know better as the operations are kept going full tilt for a full season, so it can run every day in the year.
