Issue Statement Concerning Religious Belief, Faculty

Islantly a questionnaire issued from the university of Oregon psychology department was submitted to the members of the freshmen Bible class at Willamette university. The questions had to d owith matters religious. such as the nature of heaven and hell, the make up and powers of God, the make up and powers of the devil, and immortality.

Because of the conflicting answers and wide difference of opinions as revealed by the students, the questions and answers attracted considerable attention, being sent throughout the country on press wires.

nestionnaire has given out an roneous impression concerning their religious beliefs, have issued statement which is herewith submitted in part.

"Furthermore, the nature of the questionnaire itself made it difficult to answer. It might be appropriate here to note that the sixteen students who indicated people those who do not regard seriously an unsigned questionnaire of any character whatsoever. We believe that this class is no exception to the general rule, and that this fact accounts for many of the seemingly contradictory statements.

"Finally, we, the members of of Willamette University, hold in highest esteem the faculty and out to us the possibilities of teachings of the faculty, therefore, to be in no way responsible for the statements as expressed by the tabuation of the results of this government. But now that the east is fixed comfortably, easterners are objecting to further paternalism on the part of the government.

"But people are going to quit New York and use the smaller harbors. The farmers here are York.

"We need a merchant marine. The shipping board is doing better than most people think. True, it is not making money. But neither are its foreign competitors. When the board started seven years ago, the foreign companies pooh-poohed it. Now they are asking for conferences with the board to see if something can not be done to stem the losses they are meeting.

"While the shipping board merits a lot of criticism hurled against it, we seldom hear of its accomplishments. "Wheat is being shipped across the Atlantic for less money than it costs to load and unload it, but the result is that the country is profiting by prosperity. Ultimately we will have to give the board our backing or we won't have any

"Editorial writers who know nothing about it and who are influenced by foreign propaganda, say our ships are tied up in our harbors. Why do they not tell the rest of the story-that ships in every important shipping country are tied up just as severely as ours are. Other countries have made the mistake of launching too many ships. But they are not

"For our coast's progress, a merchant marine is necessary. We are in a position to force our own rights. The control of this country is in the west right now, and we can demand our rights.

"But if you want to kill the shipping board, just cut its appropriation each year until it can't float enough ships to be consequental, or make the shipping board a one man board."
