Mr. Coolidge Enjoys Cigars But Not Pipe or Cigarettes

WASHINGTON. — President Coolidge enjoys a good cigar. But, unlike Vice President Dawes, he does not care for a pipe, and, differing from his predecessor in office, President Harding, he rarely, if ever smokes cigars. Although there is a widespread impression that Mr. Coolidge is partial to cheap cigars—stogies, cheroots or the five centers that former Vice-President Marshall extolled, he really confines his smoking almost entirely to a rather expensive brand—a perfect to that retails for at least a quarter and has a wide sale in exclusive men's clubs. The President smokes several cigars a day. He uses an ivory holder which at a quick glance looks like a cigarette and has given rise to reports that at times he tries a cigarette for a change. As for pipes—Mr. Coolidge has received a number of them as gifts, but he never uses them. a11

Why Your Eyes Should Be Examined

In traveling by rail you have often observed that at every division point men come down alongside the cars with flaming torches and a hammer and wheels for imperfections and weakness that may have developed. These are precautions taken for your safety. Every so often as a safety measure it is wise for every man and woman to visit a competent professional man and have their eyes examined. Your eyes may be weakening so gradually, so imperceptibly when measured from day to day, that you do not recognize the fact. But the optometrist will recognize it in making an examination. If your eyes are weakening you should wear glasses—glasses that will exactly fit your individual needs. They will enable you to secure better vision, add to your comfort and prolong the natural powers of your eyes. Profit by Our Many Years of Experience middleweights — Al McCoy and Johnny Wilson. No other division ever has developed a modern left-handed title-holder, although Lew Tindler of Philadelphia and George (K. O.) Chaney of Baltimore attained the front rank of challengers for the lightweight and featherweight crowns, respectively in the heyday of Benny Leonard and Johnny Kilbane. Paul Berlenbach, the present light heavyweight king, was a natural southpaw until his trainer, Dan Hickey, altered his style. a11
