LUTHER BURBANK WAS A GREAT MAN

"Whoever could make two ears of corn, or two blades of grass, to grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind, and do more essential service to his country, than the whole race of politicians put together."

So wrote Dean Swift.

Milton, defining the proper attributes of a man who could be called great, said:

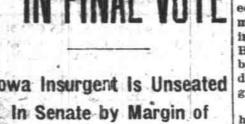

"He alone is worthy of the appellation who, either does great things or teaches how they may be done, or describes them with a suitable majesty when they have been done; but those only are great things which tend to render life more happy, which increase the innocent enjoyments and comforts of existence, or which pave the way to a state of future bliss more permanent and more pure."

By the standards of Swift and Milton, Luther Burbank, who was called the plant wizard, and whose spirit winged its immortal way to the gardens of asphodel beyond the stars thirteen minutes after the clocks had announced the ushering in of a new day on Sunday morning, was great.

Luther Burbank exceeded the standard of Dean Swift, for he not only made two ears of corn and two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, but he improved the qualities of the corn and the grass; and he fully measured up to the standard of Milton, for his work of infinite patience and care and high ability made life more happy for millions of his fellow men, and increased the innocent enjoyment and comfort of existence, and paved the way to a state of future bliss more permanent and more pure for the whole human TRCC

Nearly all of the senators were week of debate which terminat- present during the closing debate and the chamber was filled with tensity as senators in last minute appeals sought to swing doubtful senators to their side.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho; ended the discussion by declaring there was no evidence to warrant the crowding aside of Sention, while Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, drew fire when he accused the senate election committee with failing to do its duty in conducting the recount.

Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, who drew up the committee's majority report favoring the seating of Steck, replied that no senator could investigate the case and not decide that Steck was elected. He was supported by Sef-ator George, democrat, Georgia, another member of the committee. Brookhart, who supported the La Follette-Wheeler presidential ticket in 1924, has been serving as a senator throughout the present session.

And his was a life of unselfishness. Mark Twain in the preface to his only serious book, Joan of Arc, said the Maid of Orleans was the most unselfish person in all history, save

One-Jesus of Nazareth. Luther Burbank will rank high on that bright list. Comits, defined by some one as the ability and disposition to take infinite pains, was more for Luther Burbank than just infinite pains. He took infinite pains with unbounded mpathy. His fruits and flowers and vegetables which he ade better and more beautiful and more productive were sam children; loved as the father loves his offspring, d as tenderly cared for. An unnamed poet might have had-Luther Burbank in mind when he wrote:

- Work, thou, for pleasure:
- Paint, or sing, or carve, the thing thou lovest tho' the body starve;

He who works for glory, misses oft the goal; He who works for money, coins his very soul; Work for the work's sake, and it may be That these things shall be added unto thee."

A majority of the voters who cast their ballots in the ool election of yesterday afternoon surely misunderstood the issue. Perhaps the wording on the ballot helped to misead them, for it was "BONDS X YES and BONDS X NO." But no new bond issue was involved, and no new tax. It is pity. The people of the southern part of the city are in all fairness entitled to a suitable site for their junior high school uilding, which was one of the buildings provided for in the 500,000 bond issue voted three years ago.

ENLIST FOR THE WHOLE WAR

If we are to see the Willamette river made a still water stream from Salem to Wilsonville, and from Eugene to Salem, must enlist for the whole war-

More than this, we must all so enlist-

Meaning all the people of the Willamette valley, and all of the people of Oregon, for that matter, because that which one section of this state benefits directly or indirectly

If boats and barges had still water in the Willamette, arrying the heavy freight cheaply, connecting directly with cean going vessels in the harbor of Portland, putting us in h with world markets with a water route all the way, would be more business for all our railroads and truck s, and other present and possible passenger and freight ms and methods, because of the vast development that rould take place in a thousand ways here in this region between the coast and Cascade ranges, potentially richer than valley of the Nile.

Let every one in this state understand this, and then all pall together, and we will before long get dams and locks in the river, making such still water transportation facilities

It is said two dams 16 feet high would make still water lem to Wilsonville. It would not take many more to extend still water on up to Eugene.
