Ella McMunn Pays Tribute to Ruth Matthes Who Died Following an Accident Friday Evening, News Comes as Shock After Beautiful Day

Tribute to Ruth Matthes

By ELLA McMUNN.

It seemed to me that I never saw a more beautiful day than Saturday promised to be, nor was anything lacking in the way of flowers, sweet with the dew of the night before, nor of birds, sitting on the fence posts, singing because they were too full of joy to go on about their affairs until they had returned thanks for a lovely world. It was the sort of day that, at evening, causes me sometimes to write in my diary just this: "Gloriously Happy!"

All that of course as I walked down to the mail box. There was a letter. I read it and smiled. And I wondered why a man who passed driving a water wagon should give me such a look of surprise and stern rebuke, but of course the man knew what I was at that moment ignorant of. Indeed the whole world knew, before the news reached us in the little white house, where it should have been told first, that our little Ruth's life had been ground out Friday evening, only a mile away, and that Georgia lay bruised and suffering in the hospital.

Today there are birds and flowers and perfume-laden breezes, but they have no meaning for us. We can think only of little Ruth, with her dimpled hands folded together, lying so white and still—the same little hands that, only a day or two ago, had reached into the cookie jar to fill her pockets before she started to drive.

Six households have been plunged into a mute, stunned, unbearably sense of grief by the loss of the little girl, who loved us all, without making any particular distinction as to relationship. Uncle John, who lives just across lots from Ruth's home, is wearing his heart out, because of the unspeakable loneliness since she does not come tripping over a dozen times a day to help him "cook," as she called it, or to get the "funny" paper, or just anything to use as a pretext for a call.

Her grandmother, ("Omie, Dear") McMunn, is laying away Ruth's dolls and toys and little aprons and shoes, up at the big, lonely white house on the hill, for it is a lonely house now, but yesterday, I saw someone she had overlooked, her wagon, upside down by the path, and the empty swing, moving back and forth in the breeze, and her dog came out to every passing automobile to see if he had returned from this extra long visit.

When a fair blossom is snatched out of a happy home there is nothing we can say to her father and mother, Frank and Georgia, except that we love them and grieve with them, for just now they can see only the long, empty years ahead; but when, some day the shadows shall gather for them it will be a comfort to know that beyond the shining portals they shall see little Ruth.

BROWNING IS THREATENED

NEW YORK, April 15.—After receiving several threatening telegrams, Edward J. Browning, an immensely wealthy husband of the former Frances Heenan, 15, surrounded himself tonight with a bodyguard of six private detectives.

Salem—Adam Engel will build 12-apartment house, to cost $58,000.

peace officer of many years' service. I cannot for a moment believe that he would fire at an arrested man unless he had been shot at or was in imminent danger. He was an escapee on a visa or permit, and had been able to fire the first shot before the assumption is that at that instant he would not have missed his target. Cody was also an expert with firearms.

Cody admitted he was under arrest, submitted to search, and admitted that he knew the man named Browning, and that he saw the star on his vest, George Prines, Archie Cody's partner, and that when he saw the sheriff was off with his badge he would shoot him on his saddle and ride away. I cannot find one scintilla of evidence that leaves any doubt but that Archie Cody deliberately and intentionally shot and killed Sheriff Austin Goodman in attempting to escape.

I have had Archie Cody examined by alienists, who have given a lifetime to mental tests, and their report is: "We have given Archie Cody an examination and we find him sane and capable of distinguishing right from wrong." "It has been represented to me that the jury in this case was prejudiced against the defendant, the cannot believe it. The sheriff's name was in Harry's suit. The crime was committed in Milheur county. The defendant was tried and convicted in Malheur county.

"In reviewing this case the supreme court of the state of Oregon used the following words: 'The entire record discloses that the defendant not only had been indicted by the grand jury, his rights were protected, and he was given every opportunity to make his defense. The evidence was sufficient to warrant in the first degree. It is believed the testimony of the witnesses for the state, that the defendant was sane at the time of fact to be determined by the jury.' Archie Cody had been twice committed to the Oregon state penitentiary, and had served one term at Folsom prison in California.

"An exhaustive investigation has been made in the case. I have willingly listened to every plea. What attitude has been given by this office to the nature of plea presented. Patiently has the entire history even to a statement against capital punishment, a question asked, by the electorate of Oregon, and which could not properly be brought before this office as an issue in this case."

While Cody professes no religious belief, he asked that Father Thomas W. Keenan, priest chaplain, and pastor of the St. Vincent de Paul church here, be with him during last night and this morning. His request was granted by Warden Little.

SANTIAM MINE STOCK IS HELD

Calumet & Arizona Mining Company Will Operate on Present Capital

3 PROPERTIES BOUGHT

Cabins Going Up, Saw Mill, Air Compressor and Rock Crusher Will Be Installed There at Once

(Under the heading, "A Future Butte City on the Santiam," the Aumville Star of last Thursday carried the following story:)

While on a trip up the Little North Fork of the Santiam the first of the week, we learned that the Calumet & Arizona Mining company of Bisbee, Arizona, had purchased three valuable claims in that section.

The Lewis & Clark silver-lead mine, the Dawes silver-lead mine and the Silver King mines are included in the group of properties. The company is now on the ground building cabins and a saw mill and will operate an air compressor and other labor-saving machinery to break up the valuable rock on these claims.

These properties have been idle for the past twenty years, and the Calumet & Arizona Mining company, which is one of the biggest mining concerns in the United States, have had their eye on the claims for some time and finally got hold of them.

Engineers and geologists, who have been with the company for 20 years, are on the ground and work is started in earnest. New roads will be built and every movement the company makes will mean money to them.

No stock will be sold as the company has all the money they want to develop the claims, and outside of hiring a large number of men and distributing a large amount of money in this district for labor, machinery and other equipment, the profit will go to the new concern.

At present there are nine men in the camp and more will be on the job as soon as the cabins and necessary arrangements are completed, and no time will be lost for the want of equipment.

The Star editor has, for the past two years, told his readers that the Little North Fork of the Santiam held minerals that were rich and it would only be a matter of a short time till that part of the country would take on a boom; and right now it promises to put the famous Butte City, Montana, in the background.

We have visited these mines from time to time along with geologists, engineers and big mining men who have told us that the "stuff" was there, but it was in such shape that unless some big concern, with capital to operate, would take it over, it would be some time before the fact would be realized by the skeptics.

Two of the properties acquired by the Bisbee company are above the rich Lotz-Larsen mines, and the Silver King is located this side or near Elkhorn, which puts the Lotz-Larsen mines right in the center of the big industry.

While the good news has not been broadcast yet, mining men and capitalists are visiting the camps already, and it will only be a short time till the Little North Fork of the Santiam will become one of the busiest places in the mining game in the United States.

When one considers that Calumet stock has sold as high as $200 a share, it is indeed good news to know that this company has taken hold of the rich claims—although as stated above no stock will be offered for sale from their mines in the Santiam district.

PREMIER BURNS UP ROAD

MUSSOLINI SHOWS NEW SIDE OF CHARACTER ON TRIP

TRIPOLI, April 14.—(By Associated Press.)—Benito Mussolini picked one of his last days of Tripoli was devoted primarily to an inspection of the excavations of the ancient city of Leptis Magna—to cast off the cloak of the Caesar of the new Roman empire and appear in a role the world little knew, that of a likeable boyish and very human person. He drove his own car 150 miles at such a breakneck speed that he left all the other cars behind and caused that in which the Associated Press correspondent was riding to turn turtle in a sand dune.

Instead of wearing his customary tense expression, Mussolini smiled constantly, talked freely with the members of his entourage, pinched and kissed the cheeks of little fascists in fatherly fashion and gave the camera men opportunities for good pictures. He posed for a photograph with the American correspondents to whom he lengthily described the things he had seen in the last few days and the enthusiasm with which he had been welcomed.

Watkins Adopts Wilson's Aims, Filing for Senate

Henry J. Bean, Salem, Becomes Candidate for Justice of State Supreme Court; List of Candidates Declaring for May Primaries Increases

Elton Watkins, democrat, of Portland, Tuesday filed in the offices of the secretary of state here his declaration of candidacy for the office of United States senator at the primary election. He previously served one term as representative in congress from the third congressional district, "If nominated and elected," read Mr. Watkins' platform, "I will advocate legislation insuring the following: "Agricultural prosperity so that American farmers can maintain their homes and families along American standards, educate their children, and in addition save something."

"A merchant marine maintained by preferential rights and indirect aids without subsidies. "Tax reduction and further economy by abolishing useless and overlapping bureaus, reducing armaments and outlawing war. "Develop Oregon, by securing her just share of appropriations for hospitals, irrigation, reclamation, highways, rivers and harbors. "Hydro-electric development for transportation, irrigation, power, heat and light for homes, farms and industries. "Continue strict immigration, naturalization, deportation, and better Americanization, educational and child labor laws. "Square deal for soldiers."

Mr. Watkins has requested that the following slogan be printed after his name on the official ballot: "With Woodrow Wilson's ideals and progressive policies, let us march to victory."

N. J. Sinnott, representative in congress from the second congressional district, would succeed himself at the primary election. He filed his formal declaration of candidacy with the secretary of state here Tuesday.

"If nominated and elected," read Mr. Sinnott's platform, "I will work for the best interests of my district, state and nation, as I have tried to do during the seven terms I have been honored in representing the people of the second district of the state of Oregon in the congress of the United States." Mr. Sinnott has asked that the following slogan be printed after his name on the ballot: "Chairman public lands committee, ranking member irrigation committee and member of the house steering committee"

Other declarations of candidacy filed in the state department here Tuesday follow: Loyal M. Graham, republican, Forest Grove, candidate for representative in the legislature for the 15th representative district, comprising Washington county. Louis Kohl, democrat, Logan, candidate for representative in the legislature for the 16th district, comprising Clackamas county. Tom F. Mahoney, republican, Portland, candidate for representative in the legislature for the 18th district, comprising Multnomah county. A. E. Allen, republican, candidate for representative in the legislature for the 20th district, comprising Columbia county. L. M. Hesse, republican, Scholls, candidate for representative in the legislature for the 15th district, comprising Washington county. Thomas A. McBride, Deer Island, republican, candidate for justice of the state supreme court. George M. Brown, Roseburg, republican, candidate for justice of the state supreme court. Henry J. Bean, Salem, candidate for justice of the state supreme court.

Shops were open and places of amusement carried on as usual tonight, but few people seemed inclined to take advantage of the opportunity offered, although the military was imposing no restrictions on free access.

Comment on the day's events was for the most part guarded, the residents seemingly inclined to hesitate about discussing the incident. While some were inclined to attribute today's fareups to feeling engendered by a hotly contested county election, it was almost generally believed that the election merely served to bring to a head the bitter factional feeling that had been brewing for some months.

Out of the maze of conflicting versions of the affair one thing is certain—a comparatively unimportant election brawl served as a medium for the opposing sides to renew an old conflict which previously had taken a toll of 14 lives.

The opening incident was an argument between John Smith, klan leader, and an unidentified man, growing out of Smith's action in challenging votes at an election precinct. Smith was struck on the head in the ensuing argument and a man made hasty retreat.

After this incident Herrin resumed its normal atmosphere apparently in the belief that the incident was closed, and little prepared for the swift moving events that were to follow.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon, however, a band of men said to have been deputies, advanced from the European hotel, where B. Glenn Young, the man who is credited with having much to do with Herrin's present troubles, was shot and killed a little more than a year ago, at the Smith garage. They opened fire as they moved forward, Smith, who had been talking to friends in front of the garage, took refuge inside of the building, together with three others.

The raiding band maintained a state of siege around the garage for a time, several hundred shots being fired. A slight bullet wound in the neck, received by Smith was the only casualty in this affray, although the front of the garage was literally riddled with bullets.

Abandoning the siege, the attacking party took to automobiles, evidently as a ruse to draw the men from inside the garage. They returned a short time later only to find that a company of militia men had arrived from Carbondale to free the barricaded men. While the guardsmen were investigating the affair at the garage the raiders circled the city, entering the town from the north and drove directly to the Masonic hall, where Ward A. polling place was located. They immediately poured out a volley of shots almost instantly killing the three deputy constables, John Ford, former chief of police and one of the principals in past factional affairs, who was among those standing in front of the polling place, escaped without being injured, but witnessed the killing of his brother.

In the exchange of shots that followed, Treadway and Briggs, who were sitting in an open roadster, were killed, while Weaver in another car was wounded. Weaver later died in a hospital from the effects of his wounds.

SIX KILLED IN HERRIN RIOTS

'Bloody Herrin' Again Scene of Faction Gunplay; State Troops Called

FIVE OFFICERS KILLED

Apparently Unimportant Election Brawl Takes Six Lives; Furious Battle Rages at Polling Place

HERRIN, Ill., April 13.—(By Associated Press.)—Bitterness between klan and anti-klan forces brought gun play back to faction-torn Herrin today as citizens went to the polls to vote in the state primary election. Six men were killed and one slightly wounded in the fighting. The town was outwardly calm tonight.

Harlan Ford, brother of former Chief of Police John Ford, Mack Sizemore and brother, Sizemore, both constables. Deputy Sheriffs Briggs, Weaver and Treadway. The wounded: John Smith, klan leader, shot in neck. Condition not serious. Streets of the town were virtually deserted save for the militia men although there seemed little likelihood that martial law would be declared unless there were further developments. In general there was little to remind one of the furious battle that raged about the Masonic hall late today and its counterpart, the pistol battle around the garage of John Smith.

The above from the Aumville paper has reference to the same news story that was carried in The Statesman of April 9. The force of ten men in the camp at the present time is the engineering force. There will soon be added a force to install the machinery, and then a large force of experienced miners. The search will be for lead and zinc ores, and it will be inclusive and thorough. This part of the work alone will mount into big figures, and if the values are found that are expected, and as extensive as they are thought to be, the Santiam region will become, within a very short time, a great-mining district, perhaps working many thousands of men.

Some of the men interested, and keeping watch over the operations in that district, are saying this is certain to be the biggest thing that ever struck the Salem district. There can be no doubt but the development of the Santiam claims the ores of which run principally to copper, along with some values in gold and silver, will follow quickly the working of the lead and zinc claims. California-Oregon Power Co. will spend $700,000 in improvements in Klamath county this year.

GEORGE W. EYRE DIES

HEART ATTACK, FOLLOWING STROKE PROVES FATAL

George W. Eyre, vice president of the United States National bank since its organization, and a retired farmer and stockman, died at his home 1973 Mill street at noon Tuesday, at the age of 69 years. Death was due to a heart attack, following a stroke suffered several months ago.

Mr. Eyre was born in Illinois on July 10, 1856. He came to Salem in 1904 and has been a resident of this city since. He is the father of David W. Eyre, president of the United States National bank, and was one of the organizers of that institution.

He is survived by his wife, Ida M. Eyre, two sons, David W. Eyre and Charles E. Eyre, an employe of the Salem postoffice, and four daughters, Mrs. Edith Eyre White, Pearl, Mary and Winifred Eyre. Seven grandchildren also survive him.

Funeral services will be held from the Rindon & Son mortuary on Thursday, April 15, at 10 o'clock. The body will be forwarded to Onarga, Illinois, for interment.

BERGDOLL IS ACQUITTED

AMERICAN EVADER IS TO FILE COUNTER CHARGES

MOSBACH, Baden, Germany, April 14.—(By Associated Press.)—Grover C. Bergdoll, the American draft evader, was speedily acquitted today of charges of sedition and impairing the morals of minors.

Prof. Hans Gruel, of the University of Heidelberg, testified that his examination of 17-year-old Leisel Schmidt, the chief witness against Bergdoll, convinced him that she was of "subnormal mentality" and untrustworthy.

Facing a sentence of from one to 10 years for each offense, Bergdoll admitted that he had received the greatest scare of his life, despite previous hectic escapades. Nervous and with perspiration streaming down his forehead, Bergdoll bitterly attacked the private detective Sachs, a former American who had preferred the charges and who was not present in court.

To The Associated Press correspondent, Bergdoll said: "I am through with Americans. I have lost all respect for Americans, because they have hounded me and by underhanded methods, such as the employment of Sachs, have tried to throw me into jail. But the accounts are not closed. I will file a counter suit for damages and libel against Sachs."

Women and Children Suffer in Passaic Strike

More than 600 families are on verge of starvation as a result of the strike in Passaic, N. J., textile mills, which has been marked by several assaults by police on unarmed marchers. Strikers, harassed daily by leaders, continue to picket the mills several hours daily, wearing gas masks and steel helmets as protection against the police. Photo shows some of the pickets and (inset) Elizabeth Godley, Flynn, a leader.
