MUSIC OF WATER

All night long from set of sun
Through the starry woods they run,
Singing through the purple dark
Songs to make a traveler hark.

All night long, when winds are low,
Underneath my window go
The immortal happy streams,
Making music through my dreams.

Eminent Tenor Soloist to Appear in Concert Tomorrow

The appearance of Lawrence Strauss, tenor, in his much anticipated concert tomorrow evening at the First Methodist church calls attention once more to the excellent artist attractions that the Salem Civic Music club has been bringing before the local public since the beginning of the season.

Tomorrow's concert will be on the same high plane as the attractions in the series preceding.

Mr. Strauss, according to the authoritative London Musical News and Herald, "adds to a velvety tenor voice an exceptional interpretative power, combined with an enormous respect for the poet's intentions. We welcome to our shores an artist who can sing as well as he can and who gives us the added joy of recreating our songs in a way few of our native singers trouble to achieve."

Coming from England to America the San Francisco Examiner has this to say of him: "He is that rare thing, a singer with brains." And the San Francisco Journal has this: "His distinct, if it does not exceed, that of any American singer with whom we are familiar."

Mr. Strauss will sing the following program:

I
Aria from Suzanne... Paladique
L'Adieu du Matin (Farewell at Dawn)... Pessard
Fantoche (Queer Figures)... Debussy
Le Moulin (The Wind Mill)... Piaris
II
Ave Virgin des Gessanges (Wings of Song)... Mendelssohn
Die Forelle (The Trout)... Schubert

Had pierced through Egypt's blackest night?
If they saw all, oh, what a sight!
So this is why the lilies now,
Are purest white, and always bow
Before you, when you chance to pass,
Or silently step through the grass.
They've been entrusted to this day
To keep God's secret for a way.
And they are kissed with morning dew
To scent the air with fragrance new.

And mystic. Oh, you chosen few
Who understand the ways of God,
Explain to us how from the sod
Came forth a flower virgin pure,
To live, to suffer, to endure,
Through countless ages in the past.

The questions that will ever last,
And oh, thou flower from the sky,
Drop not when strangers pass and sigh:
For they but wish that they like you
Might know the story ever new.
And so proclaim throughout the land
That selfsame story ever grand.

—HELEN MAGERS.

Marion Lawrence Class Meets at H. F. Shanks Home

An outstanding meeting of the Marion Lawrence Bible class of the First Methodist church took place on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Shanks, 195 S. Cottage street when sixty-four members gathered for a delightful evening. Mrs. M. C. Findley is the teacher of the class.

The rooms of the Shanks home were exceedingly lovely for the occasion with bowls and baskets of lavender lilacs, spirea, white iris, and rose tamarac, and potted ferns.

Delicious refreshments were served following the program of the evening. In charge of these features were Mrs. J. Mickey, Mrs. A. A. Underhill, Mrs. Hobson, and Mrs. Kershner.

The first hour of the evening was devoted to conversation. Later an oldtime song-fest was enjoyed, with Miss Grace Elisabeth Smith at the piano.

The following were in the group for the evening: Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Taylor, Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Blatchford, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mickey, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Underhill, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hobson, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. McAdams, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. McAdams, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Boyer, Mr. and Mrs. F. Cole, Mrs. Merrill, Mrs. Lavender, Mrs. A. B. Laidlaw, Mrs. W. D. Smith, Miss Grace Elisabeth Smith, Miss

Former Salem Girl is Chosen Class Poet

Salem friends of Miss Helen Magers, daughter of the late Albert G. and Augusta Magers, will be interested to know that this eighteen-year-old girl who is this year a senior at the Washington High school in Portland has been chosen official poet of her class which numbers more than two hundred. Miss Magers is the niece of Miss Minetta Magers, prominent in musical circles.

The Lens, the Washington High school publication, features the work of this young poet in a very prominent manner. In a recent issue, a full page is devoted to Miss Magers' charming poem, while "The W. H. S. Ghost" is given a half page in the same manner.

One of the loveliest of Miss Magers' poems is entitled "Easter Morn," and is as follows:

EASTER MORN

How deeply still the morning air,
That hovered o'er that Garden fair!
The lilies clad in purest white,
Had raised their heads to greet the light.

They saw the women come to pray
At Jesus' tomb at break of day,
They saw the one who once did sin
Weep silently, and enter in.
For lo! The stone had rolled away!
The lilies saw it done you say?
Oh, who may know what's hidden there
Deep down within those petals fair?
Did they see Christ, the Blessed One,
Step forth, before the rays of sun

AN ASSURANCE OF GOOD APPEARANCE

Looking "down-at-the-heel" when the "chance comes" keeps many a man on the tail-end of opportunity. Good-looking eye-glasses—the kind you see on the aggressive, go-getter type of business man—are an assurance of good appearance, at least from the collar up. Get them today—but be careful where you go to get them.

Woman's Club Sponsors Program at Woodburn Training School

The Woodburn Training School for Boys was the scene of one of the most delightful programs which the institutions department of the Salem Woman's club has sponsored during an active season on Tuesday evening when numbers in music and magic were given.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robertson gave a pleasing musical skit, with Miss Lucile Ross playing their accompaniments. The Pied Piper's orchestra gave delightful numbers, while Jack Spong captivated the boys with his sleight of hand performances.

Included in the group motoring to Woodburn for the evening were: Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hamilton, Mrs. C. K. Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hoffarth, Mrs. Arletta M. Page, Mrs. George H. Alden, and Mrs. S. M. Endicott.
