BUILD UP A BIG ASPARAGUS INDUSTRY

Referring to the above heading, how can a hig asparagus dustry be built up in the Salem district?

It can be done by securing the cooperation of the canneries we already have, or getting new canneries making a spiration of a pleasant surprise specialty of packing asparagus-

And this can be done by organizing the growers to guarantee a suitable supply at prices that will allow of canning at a profit.

It might be done through cooperative canneries belonging to the growers themselves.

The building up of a big asparagus industry here would be a good thing in several ways. There are two reasons that Mrs. J. H. Yarnell. are worthy of especial mention:

First: This would give an early canning crop; beginning about two months before the next, gooseberries.

Second: There is no vegetable that lends itself so well for canning purposes; no other vegetable that, when not in city's speed limit. prime and tender condition, is improved by the modern processes of canning-made more tender and appetizing.

We can grow the best asparagus-

No one in any country ever raised better white asparagus than was formerly produced on the Miramonte farm of burn, was here Friday morning, Muecke Bros., near Aurora-

And no one in any country ever produced a finer quality of green tipped asparagus than the supply that is now coming From the Labish beaverdam lands near Salem to our local markets, and going out to wider markets.

The new "Washington" variety, originated by the United States Department of Agriculture, has been tried out in the Damage is estimated at about $600 Salem district, and it does wonderfully well here. It makes a product that the wide world cannot beat, if it can be equaled in another section.

There is no good reason why asparagus growing on an extensive scale should not be developed here in the Salem district. The growers here now who produce it commercially petition bears the property holders.

It is a safe crop. Using the rust-resisting Washington Portland Students Herevariety, there can be no danger of failure, under proper conditions of culture here, and on the right soil, so abundant in this district: and with the asparagus beetle kept out or its visited a number of the state inravages controlled.

What Salem needs is cannery managers who will help to push asparagus growing here. And the organizing of our state tuberculosis hospital. The farmers to grow asparagus on a large scale. They can produce the white kind, to supply the market demand for that luncheon at the feeble minded inkind. And they can produce the green kind, which is a better school for girls. The junket was flavored vegetable-

And there is a possibility of making a specialty of the latter product, to be put up in cans, with Salem as the center for the production of a superior article.

One of the next major developments for the Salem district should be a gigantic asparagus industry.

NOT SO IN OREGON

"Three of the greatest states-New York, Illinois and Massachusetts-are in such condition that the criminal element practically rules them. The administration of criminal justice has broken down in this conutry and, in all but a few states, is a disgrace to civilization."

The above are the words of William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

This is a sad condition-

But it is not true in Oregon. Perhaps we are not sufficiently appreciative of the fact that we live in a state that is orderly; in which the laws of the land are enforced; in which and reported that his home at 1700 tering a through street. He was the crime wave is absent.

Our penitentiary population is not as large proportionately as it was twenty years ago, before we heard of the crime wave. It is not half as high in proportion to our whole population as it is in Kansas, supposed to be a law abiding state. And this is not due to the paroling of our prisoners, either. They are serving on an average some 24 more days than they were before we had the present parole law. And we have a number of new crimes, too; incident in part to our automobile age and to the enforcement of our dry laws.

Let us be thankful that we live in Oregon, where the standards of honesty are proportionately high; where the 1875 South High street at a cost great majority of the people are observant of the rules of of $3850. O. R. Thompson was order and decency-

And where the proportionate number of the criminal and first street at a cost of $3,000. feeble minded and otherwise dependent classes is growing con antly lower, through the operation of wise and well administered laws, and the general trend for the better of wholesome public sentiment.
