

SPENT GIRLHOOD DAYS IN SALEM

Mrs. R. H. Norton, Who Was Minnie Leininger in Old Days, Visits Here

Minnie Leininger was a popular girl and young lady in Salem in the eighties. She was a grand daughter of Wesley Graves, who then owned the Chemeketa hotel, afterwards the Willamette hotel, and now the Marion hotel. She is now Mrs. R. H. Norton of Los Angeles, and she is a guest for a week or two of the Marion hotel, which was home to her in the old times.

Wesley Graves was the fourth proprietor and manager of the Chemeketa hotel. The first one was Mr. Cutting, father of Judge Charles Cutting. The second one was R. P. Earhart, afterwards secretary of state. The third was Thomas Smith of The Dalles. Then came Wesley Graves. He left Salem in 1886. He went to Lewiston, Idaho, where he died, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Brownell. Mary Graves was married to W. H. Leininger, who assisted Wesley Graves in running the hotel. He was also an inventor.

He was the inventor of the "Oregon boot," now known the world over. It is a device to keep prisoners from running away; a heavy piece of iron fastened to a man's boot, locked around his leg, or legs. Mr. Leininger invented a squirrel exterminator while he was in Salem; and other devices. He was working on a machine to catch crabs in the harbor of Oakland, Cal., when he died there in April, 1888.

Marion (Minnie) Leininger was married to W. T. Radir in 1889. He met a tragic death near Astoria in 1899. He was timber owner, dealer and cruiser. While cruising timber holdings near Astoria he got ptomaine poison in his camp food, and died while trying to get out of the timber, and before a messenger who had been sent out could reach him, accompanied by a doctor. The Radir home was in Union county, at the Prospect stock ranch, near La Grande.

After the death of her husband, Mrs. Radir moved to Portland. She was married there in 1902 to R. H. Norton, a mining engineer. They went to Los Angeles later, and Mr. Norton died there five years ago.

Mrs. Norton has a daughter, Miss Vere Radir-Norton, who is a practicing attorney in Los Angeles, and California state inheritance tax appraiser for that city and section. Her son, Paul Radir, is a graduate of Stanford university, and is now assistant instructor in biology in that institution. The Norton home is at 1773 Westmoreland Boulevard, Los Angeles.

Minnie (Marion) Leininger has kept track of Salem people these many years, through old acquaintances and friends here. But this is her first visit to her old home scenes in all these years. She was tied down by home duties; Mr. Norton was in delicate health for years, and the children were to educate.

She is wonderfully pleased with Salem as she sees it now. Some of her friends here of the old days are helping to make her visit a pleasant one, and she is making her stay much longer than she intended, on account of her pleasant surprises at the wonderful advancements she sees here on all sides.

"THAT'S MY BABY" IS AT THE OREGON

Douglas MacLean and Margaret Morris Are Starred in Speedy Comedy

In "That's My Baby," his latest hilarious starring vehicle, Douglas MacLean returns to the rollicking, swift rolling type of situation comedy typified by such past successes as "The Hottentot," "Going Up" and "Introduce Me." A first night audience yesterday at the Oregon theater greeted the production with rapt attention and continuous roars of laughter.

Unlike many of the other current farces, "That's My Baby" has the novelty of a series of situations that are refreshingly new. The irrepressible MacLean plays the role of an infatuated young man, who falls in love with a feminine ankle, starts a whirlwind courtship of the ankle's lovely owner, only to find himself suddenly saddled with a strange baby about as much as he needs smallpox.

Comic complications pile up with increasing rapidity and take an unexpected turn when MacLean gives the girl's father what he thinks is a headache powder but which turns out to be poison.

The life-and-death chase that follows involves automobiles, airplanes, parachutes and a load of excitement, all the thrills of a daredevil stunt aviator and driver of a racing auto, while still encumbered with the baby, you'll have a faint idea of the hysterical fun generated by this episode.

Under William Beaudine's capable direction, a notable supporting cast ably seconds the happy-go-lucky MacLean. Margaret Morris makes a particularly attractive heroine, and the work of Claude Gillingwater, Eugene Forde, Wade Boteler, Richard Tucker and Fred Kelsey is exceptionally creditable. The picture will be held over for the last show on Monday night.

does is to ponder over how he is going to win inspection at the next meeting. A patrol leader loves his job if he is a real one and he feels that he is responsible for the welfare of a quarter of the troop and is proud of this responsibility. Help him out.

Troop 3

Kenneth Hiron has been promoted to the rank of patrol leader and will take charge of the first patrol. Bob Garrett, formerly patrol leader, was advanced to the position of senior patrol leader of Troop 3. The officers of the troop have made a ruling that all members of the troop must show proper advancement within a reasonable length of time.

Fragment of Paine's Tomb Sought for Return to U. S.

LIVERPOOL—The Society of Lovers of Old Liverpool is searching for a fragment of the tombstone of Tom Paine, author of "The Age of Reason," the "Rights of Man," and other books so that they can restore it to America.

J. M. Dow told members Tom Paine escaped from the French Revolution, came to London and then returned to the United States. Congress presented him with a farm at New Rochelle, New York State. He died in 1818 and shortly after his burial his tombstone was smashed by vandals on account of his anti-sectarian views and writings.

William Cobbett, a friend of Paine, was in America at the time and furious at the outrage, brought the larger fragments of the fractured stone to Liverpool. He presented it to Edward Rushton, a Liverpool magistrate who died in 1850. The stone was seen twenty years ago in a suburban garden but can not now be located.

Eugene—Contract let for paving Tenth avenue from Monroe to Almaden, for $27,566.

Bronze Plate Prepared—A bronze plate has been prepared in recognition of the interest taken by the Salem Boys' chorus in the building of the new home of the YMCA. Inscribed on the plate are the words, "First subscription to the fund to erect this building was made on December 21, 1921, by the Salem Boys' Chorus." Creswell—Plant being built for manufacturing pottery, to employ 25 to 50 men.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.
