GOD'S OTHER BIBLE LISTS OLD SERMONS

Revelation Is Seen in Nature; Sir Thomas Browne's Views Expressed

Sir Thomas Browne wrote: "There are two books from which I collect my divinity; besides the written one of God, another of His servant Nature, that universal and public manuscript that lies expanded upon the eyes of all. Those that never saw Him in the one have discovered him in the other."

God revealed Himself in nature as well as in history, the heart of man, and the Holy Scriptures. A nature sermon has no text but deals rather with facts, events, and pictures of life.

Our need of nature in this generation is very great, because there is no controversy there. In the written Bible God cooperated with man in making his revelation. Sometimes it is difficult to draw the line between the human and the divine element.

There is no sin in nature. No blade of grass ever broke a divine command; no flower ever blushed with shame; no tree ever rebelled against the Most High.

Long after the death of both parents Richard on reading some family letters, acknowledged his debt in a letter to Cecilia, his step-sister: "The contents of these letters have not only moved me, but verily shaken me to the depths."

Despite the vast amount of delecting literature about Richard Wagner, John H. Runciman, his best biographer, says of him: "Outside his musicianship the man had interests in everything human--in painting, sculpture, drama, poetry and prose."

The motor car was driven by a determined young woman who had knocked down a man without injuring him much. She did not try to get away. Instead, she stopped the car, descended to the solid earth and faced him manfully.

"I'm sorry it happened," she said grudgingly, "but it was all your fault. You must have been walking carelessly. I'm an experienced driver. I've been driving a car for seven years."

"Well," replied her victim angrily, "I'm not a novice myself. I've been walking for 57 years."

POULTRY POINTERS FROM OAC EXPERTS

Paragraphs That May Help the Big Poultry Industry Boom Here

(The following paragraphs are from a current bulletin of the department of industrial journalism of the Oregon Agricultural college.)

No poultry medicine will cure ills produced under conditions where the growing pullets did not have a chance to develop into money makers.

Too many poultrymen rest their oars after the first three or four weeks and remark that their pullets are out of danger. It takes six or seven months to mature a pullet and there is no time in that entire period when she is out of danger.

If there is any place the poultryman can afford to spend time, money and labor it is on the proper management of growing pullets. The business itself depends upon the pullet and the quality of pullet is determined by the ability of the man raising them.

The development that has taken place in the poultry business in the past 20 years is even greater than the automobile comparison. If the prospective poultry keeper has not kept with the development; if he goes into it because he has kept chickens on the farm for 30 years; if he permits egotism rather than wisdom of investigation of his enterprise to guide his management plans he will shortly be lined up with the many that fall in the commercial poultry business.

A well balanced growing ration and clean soil for the brooding and ranging the pullets are the two fundamental principles which the poultryman cannot violate and expect to make a dime in the business.

A high percentage of Oregon poultrymen are brooding chicks on an new ground. The abundance of sunshine and luxuriant growth of succulent green feed have been factors in keeping ordinary chick diseases reduced to the minimum.

It should not cost $10 for fuel for a brood of 500 chicks until they are really old enough to do without artificial heat. The brooder represents quite an investment in cash, labor and equipment, but the running operations

POISON BAIT FOR CHERRY MAGGOT

Growers Must Go After the Filthy Pest and Keep Right After It

The cherry maggot can easily and cheaply be controlled by spraying, according to C. L. Long, O. A. C. extension specialist in horticulture.

Spray sufficient for one acre is made by dissolving one-half pound of arsenate of lead in 10 gallons of water and adding 2 quarts of molasses or syrup. This solution is sprayed by apparatus free of any ill-smelling spray mixture.

One pint is enough for a full sized tree as only the surfaces of the lower two-thirds of the outer leaves to be sprayed.

Only the first few days after the adult, the cherry fruit fly, appears, can this pest be controlled. The fly arrives about the time the Royal Ann takes on its first color and feeds on anything sweet that it can find.

The first spraying is at this time and is followed by other sprayings of the same solution one and two weeks later. If it rains between sprays or within 10 days after the third spray, extra spraying is done as soon as the trees dry.

This fly is expected to come about June 1. The growers will be informed of its presence through the press, KOAC radio station, and by county agents.

"The Cherry Fruit Fly," station circular 35, giving life history and control measures, is obtained from the county agent or the O. A. C. experiment station.

are low enough that no economizing should be done on the brooder stove. The chicks desire heat for a short period many times each day. If the brooder hover and heat is not there the chicks hunt companionship heat and it is a lucky poultryman who does not pay for his gross cruelty to chicks.

The greater the number of plants, humans or animals congested in a given space the greater is the danger of disease. The longer this number of plants, humans or animals is kept congested in this limited area the more certain disease will appear. Soil contamination is more dangerous to growing stock than to old hens. Soil contamination dangers are nothing for the poultryman to be afraid of, but they are surely vital factors to guard against.

Onions From Texas and Egypt in Annual Races. BROWNSVILLE, Tex.--A ship loaded with onions seeds across the Atlantic from Egypt. A train loaded with a similar cargo rushes across the United States from the magic valley of the Rio Grande.

They are headed for New York and each is trying to get there first, while the onion farmers in Egypt and the valley watch the thrilling race with what might be termed "baited breath."

This classic sweepstakes of the appetite is run every year in the latter days of March. Texas raises enough onions to flavor all the salad in the world. So does Egypt. An the two crops mature at about the same time, with the gods of climate playing Egypt a little the favorite, just enough to balance the transportation advantage of the Rio Grande valley.
