

STEINER TO TALK ON BALLOT ISSUES

Political Rally Will Be Staged This Evening at Salem Armory

The Steiner for United States Senator club has made arrangements for a big political rally this evening at the Salem armory from 7 to 9 o'clock. Two big bands will parade the streets and also play in front of the armory. The drum corps of the American Legion will take part by giving some numbers. There will be other entertaining features.

According to those in charge of the Steiner headquarters there has been so much demand to hear Steiner in Salem that the following program has been arranged:

T. M. Hicks, president of the club will preside. Selections by the Mt. Angel band, Steinkand, director; selections by the Salem band, Steelhammer, director; selections by Willamette University quartette; selections by the American Legion drum corps; vocal selections by Mrs. W. Carlton Smith; address by Frederick Steiner, candidate for Republican nomination as U. S. senator, upon the issues of the campaign.

O. J. Wilson, for 21 years the Buick man in Salem. When better cars are built, Buick will build them. The better Buick is here for you and your family. (*)

Cobbs & Mitchell Co. Lumber and building materials for every purpose. Get estimates, look at quality of material, then you will order. 349 S. 12th St. (*)

Patton Bros., oldest and thoroughly reliable book store. Choice books and literature, office and school supplies, stationery, Fountain pens. 340 State St. (*)

REVIEW ENDORSES MARK M'CALLISTER

Said the Jefferson Review of last week:

"Mark D. McCallister, who is a candidate for reelection for the Republican nomination for state representative, is so well known throughout the county and made such a splendid record during his service in the legislature that there is no doubt of his election. He is able, conscientious and a hard worker. He has had much experience in various departments of the affairs and knows what is needed. He was on prominent committees during the last session and did some good work for the taxpayers by holding down appropriations. His slogan is 'apply common sense and business methods in state affairs.'"

LEGAL TANGLE SUSTAINS VETO

nance, making like provisions. Mayor Giesy stated that his reasons for vetoing the ordinance is that he does not believe it makes legal the raise in pay. The street commissioner, he said, is unable to do any work on city streets, either paving or improving, until the work is started. The ordinance provides that the commissioner shall be paid $200 a month instead of $150 a month, from January, 1926.

But it also provides that 25 per cent of this shall be paid out of the street improvement fund. This fund, the mayor held, is a special fund, and can be used only for street work. Inasmuch as the street commissioner does no street work from January until March, it was the mayor's contention that his salary for the first three months would not be for street work, and therefore, no portion of it could come out of the street improvement fund.

Mayor Giesy, after the discovery of the facts had been made, expressed the belief that the state law reads the same way.

At the recommendation of the city zoning and planning commission, the city council granted Foster & Kleiser the right to construct a bill board at the corner of Commercial and Mill street. The bill board is already nearing completion.

The commission also turned in a recommendation that the Foster & Kleiser company be allowed to construct an "illuminated posting structure" at North Capitol street and the Tlie road. But because the people in that community have arisen in protest, the commission asked, through Alderman W. H. Dancy, to have the matter again referred to it. The request was granted.

Alderman George Thompson informed the council that there is a barn between Liberty and Commercial streets, just north of South street, that is about ready to fall apart. The barn is said to belong to E. R. Ryan. The city attorney was instructed to look into the matter to see if the barn should be torn down.

Alderman Dancy called the attention of the council to the fact that the sewer committee and the city engineer had been instructed to report on the matter of George Will's sewer on North Commercial street, which matter had been referred to them last December. City Engineer Hugh Rogers stated that he has not yet had time to investigate the matter thoroughly, but will do so today.

The application of J. B. Sullivan for a license for his junk shop at 286 Chemeketa street was referred to the city zoning and planning commission.

The following petitions for paving were received and referred to the committee on streets: Washington, from Fairmount to the alley in blocks 25-26. Myer, from Fir to John. Nineteenth, from Garden Road to Madison. Madison, from Southern Pacific right of way to Seventeenth. Jefferson, from Seventeenth to S. P. right-of-way.

A remonstrance was filed against the paving of Letelle street from Liberty to Commercial streets. The remonstrance was referred to the city engineer.

The house numbering ordinance was amended to give the city engineer power to use discretion in numbering irregular streets. When amended the ordinance passed without a dissenting vote.

The junk ordinance, providing that junk shall not be stored in open lots unless enclosed with a 10-foot fence made of material prescribed by the council, was passed.

TUXEDO PROPERTY IS AGAIN ENDORSED

Gathering at Parrish Junior High School Favors Purchase of Site

The fact that the school board had for two years been endeavoring to find a satisfactory location in South Salem for its junior high school and that Tuxedo Park was the only available site to be had, was brought out in a discussion held last evening at the Parrish junior high school.

Wm. Gahlerdorf, member of the school board, said he at first favored part of the Bush pasture, but as it could not be had, he believed Tuxedo Park was the very best location in Salem, and that the school board was unanimous in selecting this site.

R. W. Simeral, also a member of the school board, said that in selecting a site for the South Salem school, the board had in mind sufficient playgrounds. He said the elevation of Tuxedo Park was 87 1/2 feet above river level, while State at Liberty street was only 42 feet above river level. Mr. Simeral also said that 1085 pupils were now attending Parrish junior high school and that it would be necessary to build a junior high in south Salem to relieve the pressure on Parrish.

Leo M. Childs, president of the Marion County Realty Board, said that one feature of Tuxedo Park was worthy of note and that was, that the site was not near a railroad, nor adjacent to a thoroughfare, and for these reasons, very desirable for school purposes. He said that since South Salem was unanimous for the purchase of the Park that he hoped the voters of Salem would vote "Yes" at the Wednesday election.

E. A. Rhoten, member of a committee of five from South Salem to aid in the selection of a proper site for a junior high school, said that after looking all over south Salem, the committee was unanimous that the Tuxedo Park site was the best to be had.

In a general discussion of the school election to be held Wednesday afternoon in the sample room of the Marion hotel on Commercial street, it was brought out that many had formerly voted against the site, under the impression that additional bonds were to be issued, due to the legal wording, "Bonds, Yes, No."

It was also brought out that many thought the bonds had not been voted, unaware of the fact that the bonds were already voted. That the only question before voters was that of transferring the junior high school building from the present inadequate site of the Lincoln school, to a much larger and desirable site known as Tuxedo Park.

The ballot to be presented voters Wednesday afternoon will have an explanation (in red ink) stating that the bonds were voted March 12, 1923 and that the present election is merely to give the school board the right to erect the school building on Tuxedo Park, instead of on the Lincoln school site.

4 BUSTER BROWN SHOE STORES NOW

They Are in the Live Cities of Salem, Pendleton, Eugene and Corvallis

There are now Buster Brown shoe stores in Salem, Pendleton, Eugene and Corvallis, all owned by Arbuckle, King & Co., Inc., with headquarters at Salem. The principal stockholders of the company, and the managers of the business, are George Arbuckle and George M. King of Salem.

The Salem Buster Brown shoe store was established in 1919, the Pendleton store was opened in 1921, the Eugene store March 17 of this year, and the Corvallis store on March 27.

The Eugene store is at 921 Wilkemette street, in a good location, and it is similar to the Salem store in appearance and stock and general business. The Corvallis store is in the new Elker temple, and traveling men in that line say it is one of the finest shoe stores in the whole country.

The four stores, in some of the best cities of the state, give the Buster Brown people buying power that enables them to carry on a business that is mutually advantageous to customer and dealer. These men have reason to be gratified over their success, evidenced by the remarkable growth their business has shown from the start with their single store at 125 N. Commercial street in Salem.

The Commercial Book Store has everything you need in books and stationery and supplies for the school, office or home, at the lowest possible prices.

CITY ZONING TAXATION ISSUES UP FOR BALLOT

out how to zone the city of Salem?"

It is not a question of zone, or not zone. It is a question of whether $15,000 and three years time should be spent on what, at best can only be recommendations, offered from time to time, or in a lump near the end of that period.

Considerable doubt has existed in the minds of many taxpayers concerning the wisdom of granting a total of $15,000, which may and may not meet with public favor, in face of the fact that money once voted is usually all spent before the experiment ends.

Included in the zoning commission proper are many persons who have given conscientious effort, without compensation, to the task of investigating. That does not alter the fact that the sum of money asked is seen by many as too large to be granted, at one time, and before the public has any concrete realization of just what is to be undertaken by the commission.

While members of the zoning commission now serve without salary, just as the mayor and councilmen serve without salary, the figure proposed at council meeting April 19 as compensation for the "engineer" is much higher than any salary now paid to any of the city's employees. These men face large responsibilities. While the duties of the "engineer" would be only to recom-

When the council met on April 19 to consider the advisability of placing the request for a .3 mill tax levy on the ballot the project was reported back from the ordinance committee with the recommendation that it be not passed. Strongest opposition came in the form of an open declaration that the sum asked was too large. This was met by the assertion that in as much as the city council had created the commission, the city council should not kill the commission without first giving the people the chance to express their opinion at the polls. This assertion ultimately prevailed and the request for the tax levy went on the ballot, though two aldermen continued to vote against it.

The .3 mill tax levy, therefore, was passed to the people, to grant or deny, on the theory that the public should authorize the project or renounce it. This the voters will do on Friday.

The issue you face is not "shall the city of Salem be zoned." You face the issue "is $15,000 too large a sum to grant at the present time? Will the city gain more by wading so deep into the zoning project that it can only withdraw by the loss of a great deal of money, and a great deal of time, some of which will be spent by conscientious persons without compensation, but hazarded, just the same." That is the issue.

In an adjoining column, the case for the city zoning commission is present in more detail than the case against the city zoning commission is presented here. Taxpayers will decide on Friday.

As on Sunday, this paper thoroughly questions the wisdom of granting this tax increase.

HEIR BELIEVED LOCATED

FORTUNE AWAITS YOUTH WHO RAN AWAY

EL DORADO, Ark., May 17.—

(By Associated Press.)—Robert

William Bradley, lost heir to $200,000 Smackover oil estate, sought for two years, is reported to be located at Spokane, Wash., whether he has just returned from a two year voyage to the Orient.

Efforts are being made to verify the reported presence of Bradley in Spokane, indicated in a letter said to have been received by George Murphy, a Smackover negro, raised on the Bradley farm.

Young Bradley ran away from home seven years ago and has been heard from only indirectly since. Since his disappearance, oil was discovered on what was regarded as barren farm land and a fortune has been piling up to his credit as heir to the land.
