Miss Rodolf Plans Invitational Dance Fantasy

Salem Dance connoisseurs, who have been especially attracted by the notable quality of work done by Miss Helen Rodolf, will be glad to have simultaneous knowledge of the scholarship which she won for the month of June and of the invitational dance fantasy which will be given under her skillful direction the latter part of the week. Miss Rodolf's scholarship provides an entire month of intensive study with Theodore Kosloff, Estella Reed and Hirsch Arnold. Following the expiration of the Kosloff scholarship in San Francisco, Miss Rodolf will join the Portia Mansfield camp for the remaining two months of the summer.

The program, for which invitations are being received, will be an original adaptation of Oscar Wilde's "The Nightingale and the Rose," which promises to be as distinctively delightful as it is strictly modern.

The music of Paul Bliss is being used for the accompaniment throughout, while the interpretative dances have been created by Miss Rodolf to the music of Debussy and Dent Mowery. Each role has been especially created to express that lovely, silent thing that is the personality of each serious young danseuse.

The story, which is one that is characteristically its author's own, will be brought to the audience through a special speaking part which Miss Nancy Thielson will carry. The accompanist for the performance will be Miss Jean Hobson.

The story, dwelling on the love of the student Nancy Thielson for the princess (Helen Eschliman) will be enacted with a marked vivaciousness and symbolism. Miss Rodolf, herself, will take the sacrificial role of the nightingale. The six courtiers for the royal characters in the scenes will be Katherine Langhridge, Ruthita Hoffnell, Katherine Goulet, Bonnie Schaefer, Marie Patton and Doris Hicks. The Spanish entertainers will be Jean Patton and Eleanor Perry.

In Wilde's story, the princess promises the student he may have the coveted dance with her for the price of one red rose. Seeking in vain for the red rose, while the liars, with Myra Beit taking the role, the butterfly, danced by Dorothy White; the sunbeam (Frances Martin); and the two daisies, role has been especially created to
