

Jack Reynolds to Arrive Friday for World's Title Match With Reed

3,000 TO WITNESS COACHES IN MEET

Chautauqua Pavilion Ready for Event, Accommodations Ample

ALBANY, Ore., May 26.—Seats to accommodate 3,000 people have been provided in the chautauqua pavilion at Albany by the American Legion for the world championship wrestling match to be held there Saturday, May 29. This, it is believed, will be ample to handle the crowds that will be here to witness the greatest athletic event of the kind that has ever been held in the Willamette valley. The roof of the pavilion will insure against any interference from rain.

Jack Reynolds is scheduled to arrive at Albany the day before the match. He has been wrestling en route, winning everywhere, but will be called upon to show his best when he meets Robin Reed, now western welterweight champion. At stake will be Reynolds' world title belt, of gold, studded with diamonds, which will rest in a neutral corner. This belt was provided by the Police Gazette, sporting publication, and its possession gives the holder undisputed claim to the world championship.

Reed's remarkable career as a professional wrestler will be climaxed by the Albany classic. He has been in the professional ranks less than two years, and has defeated some of the best welterweights in the United States.

Reynolds, on the other hand, has no less a remarkable record. He was at one time pronounced tubercular. It was his determination to live that eventually brought him to the apex of fame in the wrestling world. His appearance at Albany will be his first in the west.

The champion is coming west under a $2,500 guarantee, which has been made up by Albany business men.

All tickets for the match are reserved. Advance sales indicate a record-breaking crowd, but it is not believed that it will be necessary to turn any away. The Southern Pacific is offering reduced rates for this event and the O. A. C. military tournament, which will be held in the morning and afternoon of May 29. The match will be in the evening.

The following clipping from the Ohio State Journal, Columbus, O., gives an insight into Reynolds' wrestling methods:

"Jack Reynolds successfully defended his world's welterweight championship against Eugene Tremblay of Montreal, Canadian title holder, in their two-fall match before 4000 fans last night at Fairmont Arena.

"Never before in the history of the sport did fans acclaim a victor in such a rousing fashion as was Reynolds against the silver-haired, business-like and strong challenger from across the border. Straw hats flew into the air, some reaching the ring beside the fallen gladiator while Reynolds was half carried to his dressing quarters.

"It was by no means an easy triumph for the American. He lost the first fall in eight minutes and during that time he was made to look like a mere beggar. He could not escape the hammer lock and head scissors hold, at which Tremblay is an exponent.

"However, Reynolds from then on watched his arms. He did not relish having them twisted by the powerful, easy going Canadian. The brute strength soon gave way to science and Reynolds was on the offensive. Without escaping punishment, however, Reynolds battled on. He worked on his opponent's body, cutting off his breathing. He also worked on Tremblay's arms, releasing much of his strength.

"At the 18-minute mark Tremblay lay in a heap in the center of the ring. He had lost a fall by the leg split hold, invented by Reynolds and new to the Canadian. There was no counter for it.

"What in thunder was that hold?" Tremblay asked of Referee Haft.

"They again entered the ring, this time on even terms as far as falls were concerned. Tremblay still strong and Reynolds always thinking up new tricks, they battled on.

"Tremblay tried toe holds and sought an opening to snag his opponent's arms. But Reynolds had learned his lesson after the first eight minutes.

"They could not reach a decision and started jabbing each other's face. Tremblay's nose shed its claret. Reynolds, never able to stand a punch, wobbled about the ring as if drunk. Referee Haft promised disqualification should they continue rough-house fashion.

"Both settled down while the fans were shouting, the echoes reaching all corners of the arena. It still was either man's battle. But at the 30-minute mark the foxy Reynolds fastened his second leg split hold, rolled over and Tremblay gave up.

They say I'm "fussy"

WELL, let that go. I'm ready to admit that so far as pipe tobacco is concerned, I've got ideas. And if insisting on a tobacco that won't bite the tongue or parch the throat is "being fussy," you can write "guilty" alongside my name, and I won't even appeal the charge.

I can't speak for anybody else, but personally I smoke for pleasure! So I smoke Prince Albert. I'll say I do. Right after breakfast, on up until I switch off the light for the night. Pipe-load after pipe-load. Day after day. Prince Albert treats my tongue as gently as a mother handles a brand-new baby.

They tell me it's the Prince Albert process that cuts out bite and parch. Fair enough. I'll testify before the well-known world that P. A. is the coolest, sweetest, most genuinely friendly smoke a fellow can get on this planet. You suspect that the minute you throw back the hinged lid on the tidy red tin and get a whiff of real tobacco.

Now, I'm telling you to be fussy about your smoking. Many a pipe-smoker has fooled himself when he should have been soothing himself with P. A. I say it pays to be fussy about anything that means so much to a man. What do you think?

P. A. is sold everywhere in the red tin, round and half-pound tin brands, and round crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT
—no other tobacco is like it!
