

HICKMAN RESIGNS AS COLLEGE HEAD

Trustees Meet and Select Faculty Committee for Ensuing Year

The faculty of Kimball College of Theology will comprise six men during the next term of instruction, according to a decision reached at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the institution held in Salem yesterday.

The faculty committee selected at the meeting is composed of Bishop W. O. Shepard, E. L. Mills and Richmond Kelly, all of Portland; D. H. Leach of Salem, and D. Lester Fields of Grants Pass. Members of this committee were charged with the responsibility of continuing, if possible, relationships with W. H. Hertzog and C. I. Andrews.

Professors E. S. Hammond and J. D. McCormick were reelected for another year. The faculty committee was instructed to proceed and fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of Dr. E. C. Hickman, president of Kimball college, and D. W. Riddell.

Ronald Glover of Salem was elected chairman of the board of directors and the committee on finance and budget. Other members of the committee are J. O. Goltra of Salem and A. L. Howard, W. J. Giff and C. W. DeGraff, all of Portland.

A committee of three was appointed to revise the by-laws so that three new members may be added to the board of trustees. The additional trustees, under recommendation of the board, would be members of the alumni of the institution.

Edward Laird Mills, chairman of the board of trustees was among those who attended the meeting. He lives in Portland.

MINE DISASTER FATAL TO TWO

stuck in the chute. We were working on it and finally pried it free when the muck broke loose in the chute. I was on the left side and my partner and Frank were on the right side, and the main mass went to the right. Something hit me and knocked me down and out. I guess that's what broke my nose. "I don't know how long it was before I came to, but I heard the timbermen yelling from under the muck. 'Get me out of here,' I kept saying. The boys on the outside dug a hole over the top of the muck in the drift and there was about a four-foot hole through which they put the stretcher.

"We knew we could not get Patrick and Frank out. They had not made a noise and we figured they were dead. They were under tons of muck and we feared to start another slide. So we stuck to getting Isenberg out. He was yelling all the time and there was about five feet of muck on his head. Only one of his feet protruded from the mass. It took three-quarters of an hour for us to get him. I can't figure how any of us escaped. The muck broke the trolley line which brings the cars to the chutes and three or four of the cars were hurled."

Isenberg is not expected to live. Two others are receiving aid at the mine hospital. An extra night crew has been put on to facilitate work of getting out the bodies of Frank and Patrick.

OREGON GRAPE FOR LITERARY SHRINES

Dr. and Mrs. Franklin of Salem Will Place Them While in Europe

At the last meeting of the local writers section, Viola Price Franklin, second vice president of each the Northwest Poetry society and Oregon Writers' league, named Robert Paulus and Edna Garfield to represent her in these organizations during her absence in Europe.

At this meeting Mrs. Franklin expressed her desire to place upon notable literary shrines which she and Dr. Franklin will visit during their tour, an appropriate Oregon emblem—preferably the Oregon Grape; in response to which unique souvenirs, consisting of sprays of Oregon grape, bearing streamers of red, white and blue ribbon, inscribed with the words "Oregon—U. S. A." and "Oregon Writers' League," were prepared and presented to her by Edna Garfield; the Oregon grape being from the premises of her sister in South Salem.

The address of Dr. and Mrs. F. G. Franklin while in Europe will be, care of American Railway Express, care of College of William and Mary Tour, care of Fitchner Party, Paris, France.

mittee and its discussion from the floor:

"Resolution—

"Whereas,

In the past candidates for office have filed as republicans and have by their actions shown that they were not republicans, and have refused or neglected to support the other nominees of the republican party and have refused or neglected to support the County Central Committee in carrying on the campaign, and

Whereas, many good men will not run for public office because they are not asked by a representative body of republicans, therefore

Be It Resolved, by the Marion County Central Committee, in regular meeting assembled, that prior to the Primary election in 1928, the Marion County Republican Central Committee meet on call of the chairman, and ask citizens of known worth to run for offices to be filled by the voters of Marion county.

Danger of political dynamite in this resolution was scented by many who favor some kind of supplement to the present primary law for the purpose of re-creating and maintaining a greater interest in party organization; in the selection of better qualified men as candidates and to promote a more general use of the franchise in the primaries and elections.

Several amendments to the resolution offered were proposed but all upon final analysis were withdrawn and the original resolution was laid to rest subject to revival however and further consideration at the call of the chairman.

The pronounced failure of the corrupt practice act to prohibit an unlimited amount of money expenditure by candidates was rapped. The expenditures in the recent Pennsylvania senatorial contest were held up as an example.

The meeting adjourned subject to call of the chairman.

of most of the members was that all measures designed to restore harmony should be adopted.

Committee members appeared interested chiefly in the platform Colonel Brookhart works out for his campaign.

His speech at Mason City which some party leaders declared savored of socialism, has been widely discussed and seems just now to be the principal obstacle in the way of a reconciliation.

Brookhart's statement that he had been misunderstood when he discussed limitation of capital earnings apparently has caused some of his political opponents of the past to withhold judgment until later in the campaign. The views of the unseated senator and party "regular" will next come into prominence at the state convention, which will frame the party's platform for the fall campaign. This probably will be the most important work before the convention inasmuch as all nominations were made in the primary.
