RULES FOR RESUSCITATION

FROM DROWNING, ELECTRIC SHOCK, ASPHYXIATION BY SMOKE OR GASES

BY THE PRONE-PRESSURE METHOD

Electric power companies have made exhaustive studies of resuscitation, and we feel a certain moral obligation to give the public the benefit of our experience, information and knowledge in this matter, and in line with that idea we are publishing these rules.

The cooperation and instructive participation of all civic, industrial and labor organizations is solicited in this effort to preserve human life.

Persons apparently dead from any of the causes above mentioned may be brought back to life by anyone who is able to put into effect the following rules:

CLIP THESE RULES AND KEEP THEM IN YOUR CAR. AT SOME PLACE— AT SOME TIME THEY MAY BE THE MEANS OF SAVING A LIFE.

Follow These Instructions Even If the Victim Appears to Be Dead

- WHAT TO DO FIRST
 - 1-A. Electric Shock—Quickly release the victim from contact with electric circuits being yourself careful to avoid receiving a shock. Use any dry nonconductor (rubber gloves, clothing, rope or board) to remove either the victim or the conductor. Beware of using metal or any moist material. If you know how, shut off the current.
 - 1-B. Drowning—Lift the middle of the body, applying pressure to the waist and lungs, causing all possible water to flow down and out through the mouth.
 - 1-C. Asphyxiation—Immediately force as much as possible of the smoke or gas out of the lungs by hugging the body of the victim just above the waist.
 - 2. Important in All Cases—Feel rapidly with your fingers in the victim's mouth or throat and remove any foreign body. (Tobacco, false teeth, etc.) If the mouth is tight shut, pay no more attention to it until later. Immediately after following the above instructions try to recall the victim's fading consciousness by the following methods:
 - (a) Apply a stinging blow with the palm of the hand preferably to an exposed part of the body or strike the soles of the shoes with any hard object available; at the same time call to him sharply, using his name or nickname, if known.
 - (b) Let the body fall to the ground once or twice from a height of two or three feet, being careful that the head does not strike a hard object. The application of this rule alone may be sufficient to start natural respiration. If it does not—
- ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION
 - 3. Start instantly artificial respiration. Do not stop to loosen parts of clothing, except collar. Every moment of delay is serious.
 - (a) Lay the patient on his belly, one arm directly extended overhead, the other bent at elbow and with face to one side, resting on the hand or forearm, so that nose and mouth are free for breathing. (see fig. 1).

Fig. 1

(b) Kneel straddling the patient's hips with knees just below the patient's hip bones or opening of pants pockets; place the palms of your hands on the small of the back, with fingers spread over the lowest ribs, the little finger just touching the lowest rib, the thumb alongside of your fingers; tips of fingers just out of your sight, as in Fig. 1.

(c) While counting one, two and with arms held straight, swing forward slowly so that the weight of your body is gradually, but not violently, brought to bear upon the patient. See Fig. 2. This act should take from two to three seconds.

- (d) While counting three immediately swing backward so as to remove the pressure, thus returning to the position shown in Fig. 3.
- (e) While counting four, five—rest.
- (f) Repeat deliberately twelve to fifteen times a minute the swinging forward and backward—a complete respiration in four or five seconds. Time with your breathing.
- (g) As soon as the artificial respiration has been started, and while it is being continued, an assistant should loosen any tight clothing about the patient's neck, chest or waist. Keep patient warm.

- (h) If natural respiration does not result within a few minutes, repeat at frequent intervals the procedure specified in rule 2-A. This should not be done by the operator if more than one person is present.
- (4) Continue resuscitation (if necessary four hours or longer) without interruption, until natural breathing is restored, or until a physician declares rigor mortis (stiffening of the body) has set in. If natural breathing stops after being restored, use resuscitation again.
- (5) No not give any liquid by mouth until the patient is fully conscious. Place ammonia near the nose, determining safe distance by first trying how near it may be held to your own. Assistant should hit patient's shoe heels

- about twenty (20) times with a stick or something similar and repeat this operation every five minutes until breathing commences.
- (6) Give the patient fresh air, but keep him warm. When patient revives keep him lying down and do not raise him. If doctor has not arrived, give patient one teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a small glass of water if he can swallow.
- (7) Carry on resuscitation at closest possible point to the accident. Do not move patient until he is breathing normally without assistance. If absolutely necessary to move, he should be placed on a hard surface, such as a door or floor conveyance. Do not stop or interrupt resuscitation for an instant.

- III. SEND FOR A DOCTOR
 - (8) If alone with victim, do not neglect immediate and continued resuscitation in order to call a doctor; start at once, the first few minutes are valuable. If other persons are present, send one of them for a doctor without a moment's delay.
 - (9) Do not stop or interrupt resuscitation until body breathes or rigor mortis (stiffening) sets in.
- IV. SELF PREPARATION MAY BE ANOTHER'S PRESERVATION

Practice the application of rule three upon your fellow workmen or playmates. Many medals are awarded annually for doing more than to apply the above rules. A medal is a small compensation compared with the satisfaction of saving a human life.
