Louis Anderson will be placed in charge and will supervise work at the Thirteenth street grounds. Anderson graduated from the University of Oregon, majoring in physical education. Last year he played quarterback on the Oregon varsity. He is also an Oregon letterman in track and baseball. A new dam has been constructed on Mill creek, and a deeper swimming pool will be available to those fond of the sport. A new diving board and a platform have also been installed.

Basketball goals are being installed. A baseball diamond for the girls is being laid out. Included in the activities will be games, story telling, athletics, tests, rifle work, competitive sports and swimming tests.

An invitation has been extended to mothers to bring their children and spend the afternoon at the playgrounds.

The committee from the Rotary club in charge of the work are C. P. Bishop, George Arbuckle, George Hug, Eric Butler, Carl Webb and Bob Boardman.

SEARCH CONTINUED FOR GIRL'S KILLER

attack by a rough looking stranger on a ten year old girl in the city today had no connection with the Gaines' tragedy.

Mrs. Elizabeth L. Baines, step-mother of Sylvia, denied that she and Wallace Gaines, known as Bob, had quarrelled because the Smith college graduate had left her mother. Mrs. H. E. Maynard, Lynnfield, Mass., and come to Seattle to live in September.

"Bob and I did quarrel," admitted Mrs. Elizabeth Gaines, "but never over Sylvia. The cause of all our trouble was Bob's drinking. When Sylvia came out here she joined me in protesting against his use of liquor.

"I always felt that it was much better for me to drink with Bob than to have him drinking alone or with some one else. It was too much for me, and last November I broke down. While nervous from quarrelling with Bob and trying to keep up with him, I tried to kill myself.

Bob suggested that I visit a friend in San Francisco. I went down there in March and remained until a few days ago. I was on my way home when I heard of Sylvia's death."

SEATTLE, June 19.—(By Associated Press.)—Frank Monegan, aged 30, a service automobile truck driver was arrested here today for investigation in an attack upon Carrie Vickery, 10 years old, in her home this morning. The girl, alone in the house had admitted a man who asked for a drink of water. When inside a hall the fiend seized her and stuffing a handkerchief into her mouth carried her to a second floor. The outrage was discovered when the Vickery girl, weak and hysterical stumbled into the house of a neighbor.

Neighbors said they saw a delivery truck parked in front of the girl's home throughout the morning.

Detective Chief Tennant expressed the opinion that the man who assaulted Carrie was not the same man who brutally murdered Sylvia Gaines, here Wednesday night.

"The murderer of Miss Gaines is probably as far from Seattle as possible for him to get," Tennant
