

FIBER FIELD FLAX DAY ON SATURDAY

Lunch and Speaking at Aumsville at Noon, Tour in the Forenoon

To study the problems of fiber field flax, production will be the purpose of a field tour and picnic scheduled by the Aumsville Community club to be held on Saturday, June 26.

Arrangements for the program have been completed, according to A. E. Bradley, Aumsville farmer, who has been active in arranging the tour. Those participating in the event will assemble at 10 a. m. at Aumsville park in Aumsville, from which the caravan will leave on an inspection tour of a number of fiber flax fields. Some very excellent flax is being grown in Aumsville district this year and, according to some, is as good as has ever been produced in the Willamette valley.

The forenoon will be devoted to inspection of a number of these fields together with experimental plantings being conducted by the OAC experiment station. A number of varieties of fiber flax will be seen, together with the advantages or disadvantages of various methods and rates of seeding. The value of commercial fertilizers in connection with fiber flax production will also be observed.

Many notables have been invited to participate in the noon day program and include Hon. Walter M. Pierce, governor; E. L. Peterson, republican candidate for governor; Thomas Kay, state treasurer; Frank Durbin, prominent local business man and farmer; James T. Jardine, director of the OAC experiment station.

A basket lunch will be served at the Aumsville park at noon, and every one interested in fiber flax production in Marion county is invited to bring a basket and spend the day in studying fiber flax production and facts pertaining to it.

William L. Tentach, district agricultural agent, has been asked to conduct the field phase of the tour, while Charles Hein, president of the club, will preside during the afternoon program.

COMPANY'S BOOKS OPEN FOR CHECKING

Supreme Court Rules Stockholder Has Right to Inspect Records

A stockholder has a right to inspect the books and records of his company even though it is for the purpose of bringing an action or suit against the corporation, according to an opinion handed down by the supreme court here yesterday.

The only time an exception might be made to this right of a stockholder to inspect the records of his company, the opinion holds, would be in the event it were shown "that a stockholder in desiring an inspection has a sinister design or an ulterior motive which may result in injury to the corporation," in which event "a court in the exercise of its discretion, should not aid him."

Since no such "sinister design" nor "ulterior motive" was shown to exist on the part of Bernert the court holds that he is entitled to inspect the books and records of his company.

In commenting upon books and records of corporations, organized under the laws of Oregon the opinion declares that "the right of examination is not limited to stockholders, but includes any person interested therein and applying therefor." Nor is it provided that the purpose of the inspection be stated. The only restriction is the inspection shall be made at reasonable hours.

"The effect of the statute is to give stockholders an absolute legal right to inspect the books and records of a company in which they are interested. It was enacted for their protection."

PICTURE OF BRIGHT LIGHTS AT ELSINORE

"Dancing Mothers," New Paramount Release, Stars Conway Tearle

New York City has been pictured in song, story, and fable. O. Henry, one of fiction's most lovable characters, always spoke of it as his "Bagdad-on-the-Subway."

"Dancing Mothers," the Paramount picture, playing at the Elsinore theater, shows the other side of a great city. It is a tale of the bright lights, and the persons who help to keep them lit. If you have ever wanted to see the interior of a night club or the interesting lives led by its denizens—now is your chance. The sordid side has been omitted, and the sort you like to see is there.

Herbert Bronson directed "Dancing Mothers" for Paramount. It was adapted from the Selwyn-Goulding stage success by Forrest Halsey. Conway Tearle, Alice Joyce and Clara Bow are starred.

STOCK MORTALITY CUTS INTO PROFIT

Annual Pig Crop Proceeds Fall 44 Per Cent, Says Veterinarian

The high mortality in young and new born animals constitutes one of the chief drains on agriculture and is responsible for many farm failures in the opinion of Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian.

In a report issued here yesterday, Dr. Lytle points out that a recent survey conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture has revealed a loss of 44 per cent in the annual pig crop of the country through disease, exposure and mismanagement.

"This is a great drain and, while not altogether avoidable, is of such excessive magnitude that the percentages may, with care and caution, be greatly reduced," the report reads.

Similar losses are experienced among colts, calves and sheep although the mortality among the latter is much lower than in the case of other animals.

Better housing facilities at foaling, calving, lambing and farrowing time with warm dry sheds and thorough disinfection of the barns, corrals and yards, is recommended in the report as means of reducing this loss.

WATCH YOUR WIFE NOW AT THE OREGON

"Watch Your Wife," Universal-Jewel co-starring Virginia Valli and Pat O'Malley, is the current attraction at the Oregon theater. It is a photoplay that is certain to cause much comment wherever it is shown. It goes behind the scenes of home life and reveals the many little difficulties that beset husband and wife. "Watch Your Wife" offers something new in motion picture plots. It is clean and entertaining throughout.

Miss Valli plays the wife of an author made irritable by his work. O'Malley is the author. Quarrels are frequent. The wife is just as high-strung as the husband. Divorce presents the only way out, and the two separate. But the husband finds that home without a wife is not much; the wife's jealousy is awakened when she sees her husband in the company of another woman. The husband's jealousy is aroused when he sees his wife with another man. The husband's companion has been "rented" from a social service bureau; the wife's admirer is a fortune seeker.
