

Salem General Hospital Gaining New Prominence

Salem Institution Now One of 12 in Oregon Measuring Up to "Grade A" Standard of the American College of Surgeons

Salem General hospital is taking another forward step in keeping up with the steady advance of medical science. This hospital, which belongs entirely to this community and is operated in its interest, is now one of 12 in Oregon which measures up to the "Grade A" standard of the American College of Surgeons, and this means that under their supervision the interest of the patient is the first consideration. This wing will provide more room so that any one desiring to enter the hospital may always find the kind of room or ward desired and to provide surplus space so that no surgeon or physician in this community need ever find it necessary to offer his patients anything less than the very best hospital facilities obtainable in Oregon.

The management is now adding the east wing, which will supply 31 additional beds, an X-Ray room, an adequate laboratory room, a solarium, and a lot of space to be used as nurses' and maids' rooms, with much better quarters for the superintendent.

The construction will follow exactly that of the main unit, and, being a continuation of the same job, the contract was let to Cuyler Van Patten. The contracting price, including all architectural work, the building larger than originally planned, turned over complete in every detail, ready to furnish and move into, is $33,445. It is proposed to have it finished in about four months.

The hospital management has authorized a $100,000 bond issue, $65,000 of which is to be paid now, the money from which will be used to pay a floating debt. Due to the fact that not enough money was raised by the citizens to complete the main unit at the time it was built, the unpaid balance of which is $21,431.53, this will be paid and enough will remain from the sale of the bonds to build and equip a laundry in a separate building.

In time Salem will require the room to be made available by building the west wing—at which time the balance of the $100,000 may be issued and sold without delay or added cost on account of preliminary details incident to preparation for any bond issue.

It will now be possible for the good people of Salem to interest themselves in furnishing these new rooms and such other new equipment as may be required in the interest of the most modern and efficient service for that is what the managers strive for. Much must always depend upon cooperation of the medical staff, which in the case of the Salem General hospital comprises 31 of Salem's leading physicians and surgeons. Another essential thing is that every citizen of this community shall feel a personal interest—a proprietary interest, if you please—in its further growth and success. Visit it and become acquainted with the very efficient superintendent and her staff. Perhaps they may be able to convince you that some things necessary to be done in a standardized hospital may not be popular—but are always in the best interest of the patient.

CHAMBERS BUILDING PLASTERING STARTS

Top Floor Entirely Lathed, Will Be Completed About August 1

Plastering and lathing work has started on the new structure being built on High street between Center and Chemeketa for Chambers & Chambers, local furniture house. The top floor has been entirely lathed, and the plastering work has begun there, while the lathing has also been started on the balcony.

The building will have three floors, and a full basement when finished. Chambers & Chambers will occupy the lower floor while the upstairs is being fitted for the Capital Business College.

The work is keeping up with the original schedule, which called for completion by about August 1. The plastering is expected to be finished in about 10 days. Work on installing the windows and some of the finishing was started last week.

The upstairs is being fitted for the use of classrooms. Blackboards and other necessary fixtures are being installed. Several of the blackboards are already in. Windows are installed at frequent intervals, while skylights are also present in several rooms, giving enough light for school work.

All the men being used in the construction work are residents of Salem. Six carpenters were at work last week, while more will be employed after this. Six or seven plasterers are also at work, together with plumbers, electricians and men of other trades who are working at top speed to have the building ready for occupation on scheduled time.

Carl O. Engstrom is the contractor. Freeman & Struble, a Salem firm, were architects.

SHIPLEY RUSHES STORE CHANGES

Tearing Down Show Window to Begin Monday, for Improvements

Tearing down of the present show window of the Shipley store on Liberty streets between State and Court, which is also known as the Eckerlin annex, will begin on Monday. The new show window which is to be 28 feet deep, will be finished in the most modern and up-to-date style.

Island cases and arcades, such as are seen on most of the high class stores in large cities, will be installed, giving a show window which is expected to be one of the most attractive in town, according to Mr. Shipley.

Remodeling of the rear part of the store is nearly completed. A new balcony has been installed, on the north side of which is located the offices.

Remodeling of the office rooms will also help increase the store's efficiency, it is thought.

The other side and the rear of the new mezzanine floor will have a ladies' waiting room, lavatories and a waiting room for the girl employees of the store. A millinery department will also be installed there.

New style ventilation has been obtained for the remodeled fitting rooms. A new basket system for handling cash has been installed and the work of waiting on customers is expected to be speeded up to a great extent by this means. New display tables and more aisle room will result in permitting a greater amount of goods to be displayed than has been possible before.

August 1 has been set as the final date for completion of remodeling, including the new display window.

BLIGH BUILDING IS RISING FAST

Thirty-two Office Rooms to Be Built on Second Floor, Plan

Work on the new Bligh theater building being erected at High and State streets is progressing rapidly keeping up with the original schedule. Terra Cotta and brick work will be started next week. The plaster will be down from Portland by that time, so lathing and plastering will also start.

Roofing is already done on the store parts on the first floor. Pouring of the gallery framing for the theater auditorium will begin Monday, according to a statement made by the superintendent in charge of the construction work. The auditorium will be highly decorated. A total of $45,000 is being spent to make the inside of this big room one of the most beautiful theater interiors in the state.

Corinthian columns will be used for the organ grill at the side of the stage. A great variety of plaster decorations with carving patterns will be used to give the desired effect to the walls of the room. These castings are expected to arrive this week so that the work of installing them can begin immediately.

The foyer will be finished with marble sides and floor to be in keeping with the luxuriant and highly decorative effect of the whole theater interior.

Office rooms numbering 32 will be built on the second floor. These rooms have individual lavatories, and all of the offices are connected with each other. They will be mahogany trimmed throughout.

The exterior of the building will be of Williams white cream brick. It will be trimmed with terra cotta. Marble bases will be installed in all store entrances. Work on putting in these features is expected to begin soon.

One hundred and thirty men are working on the building at present in order to keep the work up to top speed. It is expected to be finished by September 1, or as near that date as possible.

Tranchell and Parelus of Portland are the contractors in charge of the construction. The total cost is expected to be more than $200,000.

CHERRY POOL GOES RIGHT ON PACKING

The cherry pool people, at the plant of the Pacific Fruit & Produce company, shipped a pre-cooled refrigerator car of black cherries, mostly Lamberts, to the big eastern city markets yesterday, and had enough boxes packed to fill another car at quitting time of the second shift last night.

They will be getting cherries for several days yet. Fine ones, too, mostly.

Young & Wells are through receiving Lamberts.

The canneries are all still running full up on loganberries; double shifts for those that have been using double shifts, and 24 hours for the Hunt cannery. The receipts are expected to slow down a little now, and perhaps the Hunt cannery will be able to get through without full night shifts after this.
