JOY KILLERS HIT BY HERBERT COPE

"Father, Coming West, Will See Oregon, if Not Heaven," He Says

"The joy killers are the ones I want to hit tonight," said Herbert Leon Cope, noted humorist, in explaining "The Philosophy of Laughter" to a Chautauqua audience last night. "God fixes it so everybody gets some happiness out of life, but some people seem to get their out of being gloomy."

The big brown tent on the Willamette University campus was filled completely by young, old, and middle aged, who alternately chuckled and screamed with laughter at the clever sayings and humorous stories with which Mr. Cope plentifully filled his talk.

"The minute you start to learn something, you feel better than you did before," said Mr. Cope. "Thinking of something funny and learning about funny things gives your brain a chance to rest whenever you are feeling sad and dull."

"I am supposed to be a funny man, but no one tries harder to preach than I do. Back of everything I say is one thought that I want you to remember. Everybody has an equal chance for happiness. It is not a result of what you have, it comes from within. The most unhappy people you meet are not the blind and crippled and otherwise afflicted; but they are the ones who create their own misery out of nothing."

"There is one thing I've learned that every old person knows and that I want every young one to know; that is that it's the fun of getting things, not having them; that we enjoy."

The western part of the United States is the most favored land he knows of, says Mr. Cope, and he can't see why anyone should want to leave it when thousands of people all over the country are buying tickets out here every day.

"I've seen more wonders and more glory in these western states than in any others and I've been in every state in the Union. I mean this sincerely. It isn't any palaver such as you often hear, I'm bringing my father out to this country and if he never gets to heaven, I'll at least have the satisfaction of knowing that he at least got as far as Oregon on the way there."

The farmers of the country were enlivened by Mr. Cope, who claims he is one himself and believes that most of the big men of the nation were raised in towns with less than 500 population.

Scotts Mills
