

"Salem Must Advertise" Declare Returning Lions

"Other States Swamped Delegates With Literature, We Had Only 500 Pamphlets, But the Loganberry Juice Went Fast," They Declare

Salem and the rest of the northwest will have to advertise more to compete with California and other states, according to Harry Scott, Frank Neer, C. F. Giese, and Newell Williams, who returned late last night from the Lions club convention held in San Francisco and Hollywood last week. They arrived swathed in overcoats and two day old whiskers, stating that parts of "Sunny California" in July are not always as sunny as they are claimed, hence the overcoats.

"It would have done any business man in Salem good to be there and find out what those people do in the line of advertising," said the returning delegates. "All the other clubs had tons of literature and worked like beavers to advertise their home states."

The Salem delegates had 500 pamphlets on Oregon, but said they didn't go far when it came to distributing them among the 10,000 or more people who attended the convention, coming from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Gallons and gallons of loganberry juice were dispensed by the local delegates. They served 1500 gallons while at San Francisco and 250 more at Hollywood. In the few days they were there, the juice went over big, they say, as delegates swarmed the booth to get some of the cooling liquid.

The main convention was at San Francisco from July 19 to 24. When it was over they went to Hollywood, where they danced with movie queens, according to C. F. Giese. Frank Neer denied this report emphatically, saying that he had a good time without bothering with side issues.

All delegates reported a fine time, saying that the people in Hollywood and San Francisco showed them all the hospitality that could be expected.

The party traveled in Mr. Giese's car, which he drove both ways. Other members of the party refused to give him much credit for this feat, saying the only reason he did it all was that he wouldn't trust any one else. They all admitted he was a good driver, however.

Miss Florence Pope, of the Salem chamber of commerce, helped the party serve loganberry juice at the convention. They report that she will remain two or three days in Oakland before returning to Salem.

and he went down to a crushing defeat. Failure to obtain renomination, coupled with infirmities of age and his close application to senatorial duties, led, believed by his friends, to his death.

During the recent session he served as chairman of the judicial committee, Senator Watson of Indiana taking over the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee on which he retained membership as the ranking republican.

Only a few minutes before word was received of the death, a telegram had been sent from the executive offices addressed to Mr. Cummins on an executive matter.

Another misive bearing on the Carmel angle was received by Mrs. McPherson, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, her mother disclosed. She said the evangelist had received a letter signed "the real McIntyre" who volunteered to come to Los Angeles and to "tell of his escapade" if he was assured no action would be taken against him. This letter was said also to have come from the neighborhood of San Francisco.

"McIntyre" or "McIntyre" (both spellings having been used) was the name given by the man who is said to have been identified as Ormiston.

Finger print experts, who previously announced that the prints on a spice can taken from the Carmel cottage were too blurred to be of any advantage tonight announced that they were going over several books found in the house leaf by leaf.

Mrs. McPherson appeared at the office of the district attorney today and accepted service of a subpoena ordering her to appear before the grand jury when it resumes its inquiry Tuesday to determine whether perjury was committed by any witness at the previous investigation into the kidnapping story of the evangelist.

Summoned with her in the new investigation of the jury are 22 witnesses from Carmel and Los Angeles.

A new turn in the defense of the evangelist's kidnapping story came today when one of her attorneys, Roland R. Wooley, returning from Carmel where he had been making investigations in her behalf, declared that he believed that "Ormiston was implicated in the kidnapping."

White Men Have Prolific Gardens in Arctic Circle

TANANA, Alaska.—(AP.)—Ice and snow with dreary wastes of frozen ground through which ice-blocked streams move sluggishly—the popular conception of the arctic circle—are not always what the visitor sees in part of Alaska that maps designate as being in the frigid zone.

Bewildering a bit might be to one whose knowledge of the Northland has been gotten from movies portraying fur-hooded Eskimo mushing over snow crusts when it is summer everywhere else, the visitor to the Koyukuk river region would find from May to September, prolific gardens cultivated by white men.

There—within the arctic circle—are long days of sunshine during June, July and August, including a full month ending July 7 in which the sun never sets and from the middle of May to the coming of frosts in September vegetation grows luxuriantly.

ORMISTON SAYS NOTE WILL CLEAR MYSTERY

the man identified as Ormiston, resembled the Angelus temple evangelist, who disappeared at Santa Monica May 18, the day before the pair appeared at Carmel.

Mrs. McPherson issued a nationwide appeal to Ormiston to come forward to clear her name immediately after the Carmel disclosures. Today, prior to the announcement of the receipt of the telegram from Chicago, one of Mrs. McPherson's attorneys declared that he believed the radio operator was implicated in the alleged kidnaping of the evangelist.

"I am loathe to believe that Mr. Ormiston had any part in the plot to kidnap Sister McPherson," said Mrs. Kennedy in making public the telegram. "I believe that this telegram sounds more like Ormiston than any of the messages which have purported to come from him."

LOS ANGELES, July 30.—(By Associated Press.)—The investigation of the mysterious disappearance last May of Almee Semple McPherson and her reappearance in Mexico June 23, flashed back to Arizona tonight with the report that the evangelist had been identified as a woman seen at Lowell, Ariz., hotel on June 18. The new witness, an Arizona mining man was said to have visited the Angelus temple recently and identified Mrs. McPherson as the woman who registered at the hotel June 18 and checked out the following day. She was accompanied by another woman, according to the mining man.

Other developments in the official investigation today were said to include the discovery of additional handwriting specimens from the cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea which was occupied for ten days by a man and woman identified as Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus temple radio operator and a woman. Officials refused to comment on this phase of the case.

The handwriting already in the hands of officials had consisted of two pieces of paper upon which grocery lists had been written. New complications in the Carmel phase of the investigation were added by a telegram received by District Attorney Asa Keyes today from San Francisco signed with the name "Belle Owen" which read:

"It was my sister, not Almee, who was with Ormiston at Carmel. My sister is on the way from the east as rapidly as she possibly can come."

Immediate check on the San Francisco sending office showed that the sender "Belle Owen" was known at the hotel from which the telegram was sent and the sender's address proved to be that of the Plinkwick Stage company. No employee of the stage company could be found who knew "Belle Owen."

After the receipt of the telegram, Keyes left his office hurriedly and Captain of Detectives Cline and Joe Ryan, deputy district attorney in charge of the investigation went into conference. The officials refused to comment on the telegram.

Portland, July 30.—(By Associated Press.)—The general fire situation in Oregon took a slight turn for the worse today, judging from reports received by Portland forest services officials.
