Plan Number 405
Compactness Is Feature of Home Plans

With a ground space of 28 by 30 feet, today's house plan is one ideally adapted for a small town lot or for use as a cottage at the beach.

While but one bedroom is provided for in the plan, a wall bed in the living room makes that room an auxiliary chamber for emergency use.

One of the features of the house is its general compactness, and especially in the arrangement of the kitchen. This room is 8 feet by 6 inches by 9 feet and is designed for use with the minimum amount of walking by the housewife. It will be noticed that the sink is directly under the window where ample light is provided for such culinary operations as are conducted in the sink or on the adjacent drain boards.

The dining alcove is adjoining the kitchen and at the front of the house. The kitchen, dining alcove and enclosed back porch, with a built-in ice box, form one unit of the house, a unit which is separated from the rest of the rooms.

130 MEN PUSHING BLIGH JOB WORK

Many Forms to Be Taken Off Concrete This Week, Wood Is Free

The new Bligh theater building is rapidly reaching its finished appearance. The roof sheeting on the theater part of the building is on and the cement work there was completed last week. Floor is being laid on the auditorium.

A range of 18 plasterers is working on the building. They have finished the office portion and will start next on the mezzanine floor of the theater portion. This has all been lathed, work there being completed last week.

The floor in the basement has been laid and hardened. The boiler and fans for ventilating were installed there last week. This work had to wait until the basement floor had dried.

Some cement work remains to be done. A high tower will be erected over the stage. Work on this will begin soon.

Brick and terra cotta laying on the first floor has been in progress for considerable time and is practically finished. The ornamental plaster work for the interior has arrived and will be installed as soon as the work there is far enough advanced to permit it. This ornamental work is considered very beautiful, and is expected to make the auditorium interior one of the handsomest on the coast.

Many forms will be taken off the concrete work this week, and the wood from there any one who wants it can have it for the trouble of hauling it away.

The work is being completed as rapidly as possible. 130 men being employed on the job under Tranchesi & Parelius, contractors.

Banker Rescues Hero of Boyhood

Forty years of bad luck have been the lot of Walter Wellman, but his efforts to conquer the pole by airship and cross the Atlantic in the air, failures though they were, captured the imagination of a young man to whom Wellman appeared as an epic hero. That was in 1907 and 1910. So when Wellman was recently jailed for inability to pay a debt, the young man, H. M. Jacoby, now a successful banker, sent him funds to cover the indebtedness. Wellman and one of his ill-fated ships appear above.

CARPENTERS BEGIN ON PULP ADDITION

Work on Roof Nearly Complete, Plumbing Being Put In Place

The new annex to the paper mill on South Commercial street will soon be completed. Work is now at an advanced stage, with little of the actual construction remaining. It will be practically finished by Saturday.

The steel work to support the roof has been completed and the roof is now covered except for a strip across the front about 30 feet deep. This portion will be built up higher than the rest, a second floor put on and used for an office.

The floor here is being laid now and the cement wall in front of it will be poured as soon as the forms are in. The cement work on the lower part of the front wall and the forms are being removed.

Carpenters and plumbers are now at work on the building. The carpenters are laying the floor for the future offices and are putting up the walls. The plumbing installations are being put in as rapidly as possible. Electrical work in the basement has been completed and will be finished upstairs soon.

Bricklaying on the side walls has been carried on for two weeks and is now practically completed. A little more remains, which will probably be finished some time this week.

CHAMBERS BUILDING IS NOW COMPLETED

New Home of Furniture Company Ready; Business College to Move In

This week will see the end of all construction work on the new home of the Chambers & Chambers Furniture company on North High street. The upstairs portion of the building, which will be occupied by the Capital Business college, was completed about a week ago and is now practically ready for occupancy.

The sidewalk in front of the building was laid last week. It stretches clear to the curb, and has a passageway leading to a freight entrance at the edge of the street. A sidewalk light is installed above the passageway.

The front of the building is ready for plate glass. Glass fronts will be placed on both the main floor and mezzanine, which will be occupied by the furniture house.

The painters are working on the downstairs part of the building, having completed their work upstairs. An electric sign was installed on the front of the building this week.

The original date set for completion of the job was August 1. It would have been finished before, the contractors said, but they were held up by failure of part of their material to arrive on time.

architects, to prepare a recommendation for one or the other. Declaring that "doubt should be resolved in favor of the exercise of the right of the people to initiate a law if they so see fit" and urging that "privilege of a citizen should not be taken away by a narrow or technical construction of the law," the supreme court in an opinion handed down held that initiative petitions filed in support of the so-called hydro-electric measure sponsored by the Housewives Council of Portland, contained a sufficient number of signatures of legal voters to warrant the measure being placed on the ballot at the general election in November. The opinion was written by Justice Belt with Justice Burnett dissenting.

Intense opposition to proposals that would reduce parking limits on Salem streets from two hours to one hour, as outlined in a new ordinance pending in the city council, broke out when four petitions were circulated among downtown business men in an attempt to head off the move to curtail parking hours.

BRAVO, BARKING DOG, PROVES HIS COURAGE

my wrist and six or seven feet long. I picked this up and struck the snake over the back. It is very easy to kill a snake. One does not need to be afraid of snakes if they see them. A snake cannot jump unless it is coiled, and it cannot jump sideways. A blow over the back will break its back and then it cannot run or jump, it is almost helpless and easy to kill. As soon as I struck it, Eravo caught it by the throat and soon killed it. When stretched out it was over 10 feet in length.

When I told father about it he said, "Bravo is a good dog, he knows how to stand by the post of duty. Learn a lesson, my boy, from your faithful dog."

One of our neighbors had a big dog; a terribly big dog, by the name of Bounce. He was a great big white dog, a mongrel, I think, but one of the largest I ever saw. He had a perfectly terrible voice, and his barking could be heard for long distances. But Bounce was absolutely useless. He was good for nothing. He was not even safe to play with. He would go bounding over the fields, barking like some great fierce monster, and everybody in the neighborhood was afraid of him. You would think to hear him bark that he really was after something worth while. His own master could not get and useful work out of him, for he was not even a watch dog. I remember there was a man in our neighborhood by the name of Bill Simonds. Bill was one of those men who had a big voice and made good use of it for his own entertainment. I remember father one time saying, "Bill Simonds makes me think of Bounce." The neighbor to whom he was talking laughed. I have thought of it since, and I guess father was about right.

If it was in the mid-summer when the wheat was to harvest, Bill was the best corn-husker in the country. In the autumn when the men went out to husk corn, Bill was the champion wheat binder, for we bound the wheat by hand in those days. Always Bill was the best hand when we went in to the house at meal time. There he could really outdo all others. He was just a big brag. Everybody knew he was, and paid little attention to what he said. There was another man in our neighborhood by the name of Stokes, Ben Stokes. Ben was never a hand to say much, but you could always depend on him in a pinch. He would never leave a job until it was finished. He would never fall when things went hard. He could always be counted on when needed.

One day when I had been saying that I'd like a certain job that was really too hard for me, and saying I could easily do it, and boasting of my ability, father finally said, "Alright, you may do it."

I had not been at it long before I found that it was not so easy as I thought, and I wanted to give it up. I told father that I guessed it was too much for me, and he said:

"Brag is a good dog, but he is finished, but it taught me a good lesson, and I thought about Bravo and Blue Racer."

WILLAMETTE RELICS NOW IN NEW HOME

Exhibits Moved From Third Floor of Eaton Hall to Balcony of Gym

New headquarters for the Willamette university's museum were completed last week on the balcony of the gymnasium there. The museum exhibits were formerly kept on the third floor of Eaton Hall, but the room there has been remodeled to make two classrooms.

Remodeling work has also been done in the business office there. A portion of one of the classrooms was partitioned off to make an addition to the business office, thereby increasing its capacity.

Work will be done on the lawn and grounds this week. They will be cleared up and grass seed planted on the part now plowed up.

Further repair work will be made on Lausanne hall and other buildings later.
