liscussion at the initiative of Capt. William Wedgewood Benn, liberal who called attention to certain newspaper attacks on the American debt position that had appeared in England. He said that he had considered it unfortunate that Chancellor Churchill had been frawn into this controversy with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on the matter. Captain Benn also eferred to Chancellor Churchill's challenge to United States Senator 3orah to produce proof of the later's charges that the British attiude was leading up to cancellation of the debt. Foreign Secretary Chamberlain, in reply said that the chancellor's tatement did not have to do with the terms of the settlement, but was merely concerned with the haracter of the loans made to creat Britain and the purposes for
