Broken Roof Lines Add to Its Pleasing Oddity

THE OSSEO, DESIGN 5B22

BUNGALOWS for small families seem to be filling a long felt need in most cities and to be constantly growing in popular favor. Compact arrangement on a single floor and the agreeable absence of tiresome stair climbing are chiefly responsible, although beauty of design and moderate cost are also big arguments in their behalf. Unquestionably there is a coziness about a bungalow that is not found in the larger type of dwelling.

In this bungalow the architect has displayed exceptional taste both in the design and the interior arrangement. The relief from the more usual square type of bungalow has produced a very attractive combination of roof lines in peculiar harmony, and has provided a floor plan giving the best possible lighting conditions. Nor has the size of the rooms suffered at all.

The extended vestibule is an ideal innovation in this case, not only protecting the living room from exposure to inclement weather conditions but affording an excellent and much desired coat closet. The living room is large, well lighted and has an open grate which is certain to be much enjoyed. The dining room is handily placed, large and well lighted, while the kitchen is also roomy, well equipped and fitted with an inclosed areaway for the ice box, a very convenient arrangement.

A small hall, entered from the living room, leads to the sleeping rooms and bath. Both bedrooms are large and supplied with excellent closets, each being lighted by windows on two sides. Between them is the bath with a pair of linen closets in the hall approach. Every available foot of space is utilized throughout and in every respect the home is a step saver.

The Common Brick Manufacturers' Association, Cleveland, Ohio, can furnish complete drawings for his design. Leaflet on brick construction sent upon request.

CHAMBERS READY FOR NEW HOME

Business College to Move Laetr, Building Nears Completion

The Chambers & Chambers Furniture company is ready to move into its new home on North High street, as the building is nearly ready for occupation. The Capital Business College, which will occupy the top floor of the building, is not expected to move in until about the time for the school session to begin.

A marquee over the sidewalk on High street is still unfinished. The framework for it and the chains which will support it are in place, but the marquee itself is being made at a local shop and is not yet ready for installation. It will probably be put in Monday, according to Carl Engstrom, builder.

Large plate glass windows for the front of the building were installed last week. The whole front of the building to a height of about 15 feet above the ground is taken up by these windows. Corners for these windows are not yet in place, but will be made early this week.

The interior is practically complete, except for some painting, which will be finished soon. Painters have been working on the building for several weeks. The interior of the furniture store is plastered white, with the woodwork finishings also painted white.

Electricians are also putting on a few finishing touches, such as sockets and switches, but this work is nearly done. The steam boiler for heating, together with most of the piping, is already installed. The radiators for heating have arrived, and will be placed in the rooms early this week.

It may have developed our tact. It may have taught us real value. . . . But it has made our business life more difficult, more uncertain. . . . There you are, Martha. According to this anonymous writer your path to success is not as steep as Mary's nor the going half as rocky or so full of pitfalls. And, Mary, if your beauty is proving a liability, only diligence, self-control, lack of self-consciousness and a knowledge of the essentials of true living will help you reach your goal.

Mr. Bligh also closed a deal with the Pantages company to bring vaudeville acts here for the new theater.

END PAPER MILL JOB SEPTEMBER 1

Window Frames Are Placed, Though Glass Setting Will Take Time

The paper mill annex on South Commercial street has reached the final stages of construction, with September 1, set as the date for completion. Cleaning out of rubbish on the first floor of the new structure has begun, in preparation for installing paper mill machinery.

The roof is all on, after several weeks work, and roofers are now busy putting on a tar paper and gravel patent roofing material. There are three "monitors" projecting above the roof, and windows for ventilation are being installed along both sides of each.

Nearly all the window frames for these are in place, and the frames for the main windows in the front and on both sides of the building are also nearly done.

Glaziers will commence their operations of glazing in these windows early this week. A considerable job is before them, as practically the whole front and one side of the building are taken up by window space.

Office space is being built in the front of the building one floor level above the street. The second floor extends only about 60 feet back from the street, the rest of the building being only one story high, besides the basement.

Floor is now being laid in this office space, and the walls and other woodwork are being built. This work is nearly done, and will be over before the end of the week, it is believed. Vault space is also being built into the offices.

To Dedicate Hindenburg House on Next Birthday

BERLIN.—President von Hindenburg's 80th birthday in 1927 will mark the dedication of a Hindenburg house in Berlin, according to plans of the Eastern German league.

The league is striving to enlighten the rest of Germany on the problems and aims of the province of East Prussia which is separated from the Reich proper by the Polish corridor. It will erect a building from which the propaganda will be carried on. The building will be named Hindenburg house, in view of the field marshal's victories in East Prussia in the war.

PANTAGES TALENT BOOKED BY BLIGH

Decoration of Auditorium to Begin This Week, Cement Work Done

Decoration of the auditorium of the new Bligh theater now under construction will begin Monday or Tuesday. The decorators will be here then and will start in on the mezzanine floor.

Cement work is finished about the middle of the week. Opalescent sign glass to be used on the dome over the theater entrance was selected in Seattle by Frank Bligh, owner, who returned Friday after a two days trip to the north. The dome will be built out over the sidewalk, and will be an imitation of the state house dome. Lights using 15,000 watts will be installed in it.

Mr. Bligh also closed a deal with the Pantages company to bring vaudeville acts here for the new theater.

A ventilating system with air washers and blowers is being put in place this week. Plumbing fixtures in the office section are also being installed, and will be finished some time next week, it is believed.

Terrazo floors are being laid in the office section. They consist of chipped marble ground up with pumice and laid in plaster. A machine for grinding the marble is on the grounds and will complete the work early this week.

The tiler and marble men are beginning work. Marble will be placed around the front of the store, and baseboards and partitions in the toilets will be made of it.

A second load of decorative terra cotta will arrive the first part of the week and be put in place immediately. The first load has already been used for decorations on the front wall of the building.

Arctic Trout Survive in Many Frozen Streams

TANANA, Alaska.—AP)—Arctic brook trout are found in all mountain streams throughout Alaska, being quite abundant in the extreme headwaters where they spawn. The arctic divide is no barrier as all creeks flowing north into the Arctic ocean team with speckled trout.

In Alaska, stories are told around camp fires of the extreme hardness of the arctic trout which may be just fish stories or an exception to the rule that all frozen fish are dead fish.

After freezing solid to bottom the creeks in the high altitudes begin a series of overflows, the oncoming waters backing up and oozing to the surface along the banks and then spreading out and freezing, layer upon layer, forming new ice.

In the deeper channels and eddies the backing up water uplifts the ice and forms great hummocks and ridges that split in crevasses to the waters underneath. In the deepest pools and eddies, far down from the heads of the small streams, the arctic trout is supposed to live during the long winter, returning with the high waters in the spring.

Honor System Fails With Philippine Cons

MANILA, P. I.—A policy of confining the worst Moro criminals from Mindanao and Sulu in Bilibid prison in Manila instead of at the San Ramon penal colony at Zamboanga, has been inaugurated. A dozen of the most desperate convicts have been brought here.

At the San Ramon colony the prisoners are placed on their honor to a large extent, with the result that many of them have escaped and formed outlaw bands which have terrorized the Moro country.

Taxation of gasoline and other motor vehicle fuels "should be limited to a rate which will preserve it as the very essential factor it has proved to be in the financing of a sane, sensible, and conservative highway building program," in the opinion of Sam A. Kozer, secretary of state, as voiced in a paper on the "History and Significance of the Gasoline Tax" prepared by him and read before the group conference of officials-administering the motor vehicle fuel tax laws of the various states held in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Members of Capital Post No. 9, American Legion drum and bugle corps, for the past two years winners of the Oregon state championship, declined an invitation to compete at Longview on August 20, and voted instead to enter the competition and parade in connection with the "Trail to Rail" celebration in Eugene the same day.

English to Broadcast Hum of the Mosquito

LONDON.—The hum of the mosquito is to be broadcast throughout England.

The song of the nightingale, caught by the microphone in woods 30 miles from London some time ago, proved such a success that now the buzz of insects is to be given a trial.

Prof. Moore Hogarth, of the college of pestology, announces that he has in training a family of mosquitoes which, when proficient, will broadcast the high-pitched metallic ping so familiar to human being wherever these insects abound.

Instead of trying to "get a line" out others, suppose you get one on yourself.

ed responsibility an even a liability for the woman who must earn her own living.

"Even large-minded women find it difficult not to be suspicious of pretty women. . . . Even some men are antagonistic toward those of the opposite sex who outdistance them on the road to success; and should these women be pretty they do not escape intrigues and insinuations. . . . There are men of temperament to whom the proclivity of an attractive woman is disturbing and dangerous. . . . Men ordinarily courteous are deliberately curt and rude to such a woman. Rather than lend themselves prey to her beguilements they turn their backs upon her, are swift to criticize her slightest error.

"Indifference is another handicap to the pretty girl's progress. Her indifference is bound to antagonize men whose attention she flouts. The male of the species does not relish being made ridiculous. . . . When it is necessary for a woman in the employ of a man of small caliber to put him in his place he will resent it. She may as well look for another job.
