

CUTTER GOES TO BOGOSLOF ISLAND

Volcanic Activity Reported by Crew of Passing Japanese Ship

CORDOVA, Alaska, Aug. 19.—(By Associated Press.)—The cutter Haida of the United States coast guard was rushing tonight to investigate renewed volcanic activity at Bogoslof Island which May 18, 1796, rose from Bering Sea 1000 miles southwest of here and alongside which another islet appeared in an eruption September 1, 1910.

In these islets so small that the only indication of them on maps is their printed name, the Yokohama Maru, a Japanese steamer Tuesday observed "a great eruption."

The Yokohama, which stood off 11 miles, watched the activity for 24 hours and reported via navy radio stations here and on St. Paul Island in Bering Sea that she "believed the eruption is on the north part of the south island of Bogoslof."

For a year renewed volcanic activity has been observed in the Aleutian Islands, stretching from the mainland of Alaska 1200 miles, across the north end of the Pacific ocean almost to Asia.

Volcanic activity last summer was marked by the densest smoke seen in a quarter of a century over the Aleutian Islands and in December by a report, which was never verified, that Mount McKinley, in the Alaskan range and on the mainland 900 miles northeast of Bogoslof, was smoking.

October 14, 1910, arriving at Seward, Alaska, the cutter Tahoma of the coast guard, reported that Bogoslof continued "in more violent eruption than ever before."

The Tahoma stood off 10 miles when she saw the eruption in September, 1910, and made triangulations that showed smoke and ashes rising a mile and a half above a crater of Bogoslof. Flames burst out and lava flowed down the sides and large boulders were thrown high in the air.

CALL "NORTHWESTERN" "CITY OF SALEM; KARR" is a difficult job, involving considerable red tape, according to Mr. Karr. The matter must go through the Portland customs house and be carried from there up to Washington, D. C., before it finishes its travels.

The steamer is now in Portland, and will be ready to come out in a few days, ready to begin its regular run between that city and Salem. Considerable money has been spent on its repairs and it is now in excellent condition, Mr. Karr stated.

"With the work the government has done on the Willamette river channel, there is no need of closing down the run ever again," he continued. "The river is now at the lowest stage it has ever been, but I think we could safely bring the ship up to Salem with 60 or 70 tons of cargo. The ship only draws 19 inches of water."

The government will put in operation a dredge known as the "Dayton Digger" on this part of the river permanently, Mr. Karr has learned. It will remain stationed here at Salem as long as the channel conditions make its use necessary. This will be a material aid to safe and easy navigation of this part of the channel, he believes.

GAINES GUILTY, JURY IS OUT ONLY 4 HOURS

ferred I'd kill 'em. That's just what I happened."

The defense offered 20 witnesses as against more than 75 for the prosecution. Testimony of John A. Billings, a city fireman, was that he saw Gaines more than two miles from the scene of the murder within a few minutes of the time the crime was committed.

Mrs. S. O. Stokes swore that she saw an evil looking man following Sylvia on a path near the lake grove of trees five minutes before she was killed. John Le Niv, a student, testified that shortly before 10 o'clock that night he saw a roughly dressed man within 10 yards of the grove of trees. Mrs. Stokes and Le Niv swore that the man each saw in no detail resembled Gaines.

Defense attorneys presented motions for arrest of judgment and for a new trial.

Edward Townsend, foreman of the jury, reported that it took three ballots to reach the final decision.

"The first stood 10 to 2 for conviction. Both of those who held out were the two women on the jury." After a two-hour discussion as to our rights and duties, and clearing up some questions, we took a second ballot. It stood unanimous for conviction. Then we balloted as to first or second degree. The decision for first degree murder was unanimous.

"I want to say that the jurors were exceptionally high class. They were fair and cool."

"It was sure a body blow," declared Gaines as he was escorted by deputy sheriffs to the King county jail.

He walked from the court room west and indifferent, passing in front of Sheriff Matt Starbuck with the nonchalance of a spectator.

Gaines was followed by his wife and his brother, William. Just before the condemned man had stepped into an automobile to be

TINKHAM CLAIMS LEAGUE CORRUPT

Flayer of Drys Says Records Will Support Criminal Charges

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(By Associated Press.)—Renewing his demand for criminal prosecution of the anti-saloon league under the corrupt practices act, Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, insisted today that all of his charges against the organization can be authenticated by the records or public statement of Wayne B. Wheeler, its general counsel.

"The professional dry lobbyist, Mr. Wayne B. Wheeler, has replied to my charges of criminal offenses committed by his ecclesiastical political association—the anti-saloon league, with evasion," said Mr. Tinkham in a statement. "The charges have been officially made and sent to the department of justice. Wheeler's defense with him when to a charge of criminal offenses his plea is that others are guilty of the same offenses. This is complete confession of the crimes."

He killed the body of the soul that had the strongest claim upon him until he destroyed it. What manner of man is he, who could do this? The man who did it was a man without sympathy, without emotion, without conscience, without a soul.

"That man," he pointed at Gaines, "you have before you."

"He has no soul, no conscience, no sympathy—and he deserves none. Ladies and gentlemen, do your duty. Bring in the words, and let the law and justice be vindicated."

Within five minutes after the jury had retired, Defense Attorney Carmody began laying the foundation for an appeal in the event his client is convicted.

He took exception to four of the instructions delivered to the jury over his protest, and further excepted the court's refusal to submit any instructions which the defense suggested.

WET BALLOT TITLE READY

VETERANS MEASURE NOW READY FOR SIGNATURES

The ballot title for the measure which is being initiated by the World War Veterans League to sound out the sentiment of the voters of Oregon on the question of repealing the prohibition amendment to the federal constitution, has been completed by Attorney General Van Winkle, and is now ready for circulation for signatures.

The measure will go on the ballot at the general election in November, 1928. If sufficient signatures are obtained, its approval by the voters of Oregon would instruct the governor and secretary of state to forward a memorial to congress asking for the submission of the question of the repeal of the amendment to the several states.

Bits For Breakfast

That sounds good—Weather man says fair.

Elsinore has been celebrating the five hundredth anniversary of its charter. That is, Elsinore, Denmark, and not the Elsinore theatre of Salem, which is not yet that old; but perhaps will be about 500 years from now. Johannes Poulsen, Denmark's chief actor and great student of the past, organized a tournament celebration of jousting and plays, some of them Shakespeare's plays, but not Hamlet, representing the things done in Elsinore 500 years ago. There was the burning (dramatically) of a witch, calling up the ancient days of Elsinore. One year, there, in the 17th century, eight witches were burned. This Elsinore celebration is described in this week's Literary Digest (of tomorrow's date), copies of which arrived in Salem yesterday.

They played Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" at the celebration, but not his Hamlet. That was the omission that outsiders find fault with; but the people of the modern town of Elsinore want it known that they have something besides the fame of Hamlet. They will not convince the outside world that they have anything that will make the name of Elsinore so universally known.

"Moans, coming to the Oregon theatre for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, will draw big crowds. It will be fascinating. Better than that, it will be educational. Salem people will learn a great deal more about Samoa, of which they, in common with the rest of the world, know little, excepting in a hazy way.

The last interview of Fred Siemusloff, in which he advocated best sugar factories for the benefit of the live stock industry here, will become historical. They will help to make the words live, though the man who spoke them died the next morning.

MARY TO SEE AMERICA

QUEEN OF RUMANIA WILL NOT TRAVEL INCOGNITO

PARIS, Aug. 19.—(By A.P.)—Queen Mary of Rumania has decided upon her desired trip to the United States and she will sail for New York at the end of September. Her friends here say she will not travel incognito but as a queen, and so will not be able to visit any American home as a formal guest. She will lodge at hotels on her travels except in Washington, where she probably will lodge at her country's legation.

The queen hopes to travel as much as possible by automobile, her friends say, to get more intimate views of American life and to see as much as possible of American scenery.

NET CLOSES ON RUM MEN

NEW FINDS IN MELLETT CASE MAY CONVICT POLICE

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19.—(By Associated Press.)—Evidence through which he expects to convict a number of Canton policemen in a liquor conspiracy with members of the Canton underworld—a conspiracy which Don R. Mellett, alias, Canton publisher, was preparing to expose before his death—is in the possession of United States Attorney A. E. Bernstein.

This was revealed by Bernstein tonight, after he had concluded a busy day of examination of persons known to be familiar with vice conditions in Canton, which the crusading publisher waged against in the columns of his newspaper.

The case will be laid before a federal grand jury here about the middle of next month, the district attorney announced.

"We have got the goods on the violators of federal laws in Canton and we're going through with a real cleanup," he said.

PRINCE ENJOYS HAWAII

ROYAL SWEDISH COUPLE DISROBE BEHIND ROCKS

HONOLULU, Aug. 19.—(By Associated Press.)—Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf and Princess Louise of Sweden were entertained today at Kukuila. The prince expressed their pleasure, saying:

"It was the finest thing we have seen in Hawaii."

As there were no bathing houses at that point on the beach, the prince and princess disappeared behind huge rocks to change into bathing suits so that they might go into the surf and help haul ashore the fish, which formed the major part of the lunch. Yesterday the royal couple circled Oahu Island by automobile.

CRIMINALS WRECK TRAIN

TWENTY-ONE DIE IN BERLIN-COLOGNE DERAILMENT

LEHRT, Germany, Aug. 19.—(By Associated Press.)—The Berlin-Cologne express was derailed near this place today and 21 passengers were killed and many injured. Dr. Dörpmueller, director general of the German Railway company, after an investigation, declared the wreck was the result of a criminal plot, since it occurred along a straight stretch of the Berlin-Hanover route and on a good roadbed.

The fishplates of the rails had been removed and these, together with the nut bolts, were found in the woods nearby.

MEXICAN FIGHT IS FATAL

FORMER GOVERNOR OF TABASCO INJURED IN RIOT

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—(By Associated Press.)—Two deputies were mortally wounded, Colonel Andres Garcia was killed, and Tomas Garcia, former governor of the state of Tabasco, was shot in the face in a street battle in the business section of Mexico City today.

Deputies Marcos Diaz and Santiago Caparrosa, both from Tabasco, were shot several times through the body. They were at first believed to have been killed, but they showed signs of life when transferred to the hospital. Their death is expected at any time.

OLD GRANT HOME BURNS

BIRTHPLACE OF FAMOUS GENERAL LOST IN FLAMES

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—(By Associated Press.)—The house in which General U. S. Grant was born at Point Pleasant, Ohio, was destroyed by fire today.

Upon the occasion of the Grant centennial in 1922, President Harding visited Point Pleasant and made an anniversary address before several thousand visitors from many places who journeyed there for the observance.

A good job sometimes goes to the wrong man; but, bless me, it doesn't stay there.

POWERS AGREEING ON MEXICO POLICY

The department, Mr. Kellogg added, does not want the ambassador to resign, but wishes and expects him to return to Mexico City after his vacation. Mr. Sheffield is to be received by Mr. Kellogg in Washington next Wednesday and later probably will be received by Mr. Coolidge here.

During his visit to White Pine camp, Secretary Kellogg has conferred at length with the president on the Mexican situation and it has been made clear with reference to the religious struggle in that country that the Washington government will maintain a hands-off policy on all domestic questions there. It intends at the same time to protect American citizens in person and property, if and when their rights are infringed.

As for the oil and land laws, it has been stated that questions arising in that field are being treated by the state department in accordance with a general policy laid down by President Coolidge in conformity with agreements entered into by the United States and Mexico.

While the president and secretary of state have not discussed the policy of a conference with officials, prohibition enforcement and anti-smuggling machinery along the Canadian border, it was indicated today that some such conference probably would be sought before long.

Mr. Kellogg was said to have given no consideration to the matter as yet but it was asserted that "it would be the natural thing"
