TEA TO BE SERVED DURING AFTERNOON

Work of Physicians Under Auspices of Community Council Reviewed

By Lillie Madsen
SILVERTON, Ore., Aug. 25.—(Special).—The health center which is working under the auspices of the Silverton Community Council will hold its first open house today at the Washington Irving school.

Since last November, 18 clinics have been held during which time 32 children have been examined. Of these, 379 were of school age while 71 were pre-school children and 23 were infants under one year of age.

The open house, which will be in the nature of a tea between the hours of 2:30 and 4:30, is for the purpose of displaying the materials which have been collected for the health center during the past year. Among these are two scales, a mirror, a clock, chairs and the loan closet collection. The loan closet, which is in charge of Mrs. Leroy Lemmon, contains materials and clothing which are used in emergency cases. Heading the health center, is Miss Catherine Woodward, while assisting her are Mrs. F. F. Rahn, Mrs. Carl Lowe, and Mrs. Russell Scott. Miss Woodward has supervised the clinics which have been held.

Dr. R. E. Kleinsorge is heading the medical committee while the other doctors of the city are assisting him. This committee has done a great deal of beneficial work during the summer in giving medical attention to many who needed it and were unable to pay for it.

The dental committee, which is headed by Dr. C. R. Wilson assisted by the local dentists, has also done much for the community. This committee has given considerable dental service to those directed to it by the general health center committee. For one patient, the committee made a set of teeth.

The welfare committee, which looks after and investigates needy cases is headed by the Rev. S. W. Hall. The Rev. Hall is assisted by Mrs. C. R. Keene, Mrs. S. E. Richardson, Seth Beebe and Charles Reynolds.

The nursing committee, composed of Mrs. Jasper Dullum, Mrs. R. E. Kleinsorge, and Mrs. H. B. Latham, has compiled a list of all the nurses and practical nurses in the city. In this list

HUNDREDS FLEE, TIDES RISE BEFORE HURRICANE

The wind had reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour. Shortly after that time wires to Morgan City were reported down and communication with that point impossible.

Weather bureau officials expressed the belief that the storm probably would strike the coast in the neighborhood of Morgan City and Burwood.

At Burwood the wind had reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour at 2:30 o'clock and still was rising.

The tide also was rising, both there and at Morgan City as well as points along the Mississippi coast, and the barometer continued to drop.

Continuous rains fell along the Mississippi and east Louisiana coast.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., Aug. 25.—(AP).—Thousands of coast residents fled inland today in fear of the storm then reported approaching from the gulf.

Practically the entire population of the villages of High Island and Caplen moved to places further inland to remain until the storm had struck or passed. Hundreds are here tonight from Sabine Pass, nearly all veterans of previous coast storms.

Few of those who came to Port Arthur feared damage to their homes, although several families arrived with household belongings on heavily loaded trucks. Others had taken the precaution, they said, of moving belongings left at home to second floors.

house, but was held up in the senate.

"However, we are promised its easy passage in December. Or, take the Roosevelt and forest highways fast approaching completion, for which public funds were required; or the action of congress at the session just closed, providing for the advancement to be paid counties of the money to be paid them from the sales of timber and lands in the former Oregon & California railroad grant land in lieu of taxes.

"The amount now due them for 11 years is over $5,000,000, and in addition some $475,000 will be hereafter paid to them annually.

"The senate bill for this purpose having been adversely reported on by the department of the interior, I arranged meetings with this department, and with the bureau of the budget, at which the merits of my bill were carefully stated, after which similar presentation was made to the committee on the public lands of the house. My bill passed the house, was passed by the senate and signed by the president. The counties get the money as the bill authorized the expenditure of the funds from the treasury.

"Oregon fared well in the matter of appropriations and legislations just closed. The Oregon delegates in congress consistently work together for her welfare."

When asked concerning further reductions in natural taxes, he said: "That will depend upon the surplus earnings of the present revenue act. It will be possible, it seems, in the near future, to make further reduction. The lessening of the burden of taxation has proven a great stimulus to business, and the receipts are much in excess of the anticipated payments. I think in the next act reducing taxes, relief will be given to corporations which were not benefited by the acts of 1924 and 1925, except in the removal of the capital stock tax, for which I am given credit."

Concerning the payment of the debts due the United States by our allies during the World war, he said: "The settlements made with them have been separate settlements, based upon the ability of each of the several nations to pay. Each settlement is absolute and final. We have made no agreement to revise them later for the reason that extensive and careful investigations were made by the debt funding commission, the treasury department, the department of commerce and other public and private agencies of the ability of each debtor nation to pay, and each settlement is based upon such ability.

"The fact that some will pay a larger percentage of the amounts due than others does not affect or alter the situation. We proposed to each this basis of ability to pay, and each agreed to it, and the settlements so far made are mutual agreements of what each nation can and ought to pay.

"I think we have been generous, and the action of France in delaying to confirm the agreement is diminishing her prestige. A nation, as well as an individual, ought to pay its just obligations. If Secretary McAdoo had taken, as the law required, bonds from the nations to whom we made the loans, when each loan was made, instead of ambassadorial notes of hand, the present debt funding activities and the discontent arising out of them would have been obviated.

"The attempt of Clemenceau, who found his opportunity for attempting to promote ill feeling in this failure to take bonds when the loans were made, while having some effect in France, apparently will not prevent the ratification of the agreement.

"I am glad to be home again. There is no country like Oregon, and no people like Oregonians."

soon quieted. Asked what caused the elephants to stampede, the mahout said: "A bulldog walked into the tent and suddenly, seeing the trunk of an elephant waving around thought it was a serpent, and sunk his jaws firmly into it. There was no chance to stop the animals then, for they picked up their hobbles and chains and charged away."

"Eight of the animals made their escape, but several of them were captured within a few hours. The others took to the woods and it was like hunting wild animals in an African jungle. No damage was done aside from a few fences being torn down, but the farmers in that district thought they were seeing things when some of the elephants entered their fields in search of food.

"These animals are docile now, and they may be the rest of the season, but after they have once broken away they are apt to do so again. I don't trust 'em at all. We are going in to do our 'turn' now, and if you want to see them act, come along, and watch all the people look at the elephants, for they are what they have come to see."

PRUNES COME FAST CANNERS ARE BUSY

There Will Be Some Waste of Prunes for the Want of Dryer Space

Prunes are coming fast. They are falling on the ground in many orchards, faster than they can be taken care of by the pickers; faster than dryer space can be had to take care of them, too.

Salem canners are very busy now, with both prunes and pears, with some evergreen blackberries still coming.

The Paulus plant is 'canning' pears and prunes, and drying prunes. Putting through some evergreens. Not taking any more evergreens. There is not enough dryer space to take care of all the prunes offered in the district. Will be some waste of prunes.

The Northwest cannery is full handed on pears and prunes. Prunes coming so fast that some are being put into cold storage, which is fortunately available at this cannery.

The Oregon Packing company is full handed with pears, prunes and evergreens at the 12th street plant, and beans and cucumbers at the 13th street plant.

The West Salem cannery is running on pears all day, and prunes half the night. Prunes coming faster than they can be handled. Many dropping on the ground. Looks like prune harvest will not last much more than 10 days longer. There will be some loss of prunes.

The Producers' Cooperative cannery is finishing pears, going onto prunes this morning. Looks like a short prune harvest.

The Hunt cannery is running 24 hours a day on pears, prunes and evergreens. If the days were longer, they could take care of the harvest faster.

The Starr cannery is exclusively on prunes. Have all they can handle.

Young & Wells are receiving for packing and shipment late pears. Just beginning. Starting on D'Anjou, Comice, Claireau and Bosc varieties. They are also contracting apples.
