Waldo Finn and A. H. Rohde Escape Serious Injury

CRASH COMES AT 1 A. M.

Blinded by Lights of Approaching Vehicle, Driver Fails to See Curve, Hits Gravel, Swerves, but Falls.

W. F. Rohde and Ernest Harps, both of McCoy, were almost instantly killed when the touring car in which they were riding in company with A. H. Rohde and Waldo Finn, also of McCoy, left the road about three quarters of a mile west of Brunks corner on the Salem-Dallas highway, skidding from the curve and landing wrong side up in the deep ditch at the side of the road.

A. H. Rhode and Waldo Finn escaped without injury. According to the story told by A. H. Rhode, the car was running between 25 and 30 miles an hour when they reached the curve. W. F. Rohde, who was driving, was completely blinded by the lights of an approaching car, was unable to see the curve, and took the ditch.

Seeing the danger, he swerved abruptly to the left, but was unable to right the car, which skidded sideways, landing wrong side up on the ground 15 feet below.

According to the survivors they were returning to McCoy from Salem.

E. K. Busselle, of Salem, was the first witness on the scene and declared that the accident must have occurred slightly after 1 a. m. this morning.

"When I arrived all of the men were living, but I could tell that two were fatally hurt. One, I believe, had a fractured back and the other a broken neck. They must have lived for nearly half an hour before the end came. They talked for a few moments before the end came but I could not be certain what they said."

Traffic officers rushed to the spot but no attempt had been made to remove the two bodies pending the arrival of the Polk county coroner who had not appeared at 2 o'clock

OLD STUFF

BERLIN.—There is a theatre here that is thriving lustily while others wane, and it's called The Stauders Cabaret. It has no program, no starred performers—nothing, in fact, and that's why it's so popular. The en-ience does all the entertaining. Any one with the price of admission—which equals the price of a drink—is privileged to get up and perform until howled down by his hearers. . . . All of which isn't so novel. Go to any Broadway theatre thriller and, with a minimum of encouragement from the stage, the audience provides all the entertainment.

PERMANENT

WASHINGTON.—Presidents may come and presidents may go—they do, in fact—but Rudolph Forster remains in the White House with as much permanence as mere mortals can attain. He has been executive secretary of the White House, as an institution, ever since the inauguration of McKinley and now, while the man may change, the White House incumbents are fighting mosquitoes Forster remains in the calm and peaceful mansion. He is lord and master of all the servants and that's considerable. His experience renders him capable of meeting any and all situations.

New York's Tribute Supreme as Girl Conquerer of Channel Is Conducted Triumphant Through Canyon of Lower Broadway

Gertrude Ederle, channel conquerer, returns.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(By Associated Press)—Gertrude Ederle was given a homecoming ovation today as New York has never given a woman before. Packed throngs that witnessed her triumphant procession up the canyon of lower Broadway were estimated as greater than those that welcomed returning heroes after the World war. It was the day of days for the youthful swimmer who was the first of her sex to conquer the English Channel and in time better than any man had ever achieved it.

A triumphant parade of brass bands, fluttering flags, showers of confetti and ticker tape and thunderous shouts of applause marked her progress up the famous thoroughfare.

Six Women Crushed The crowd that gathered outside the city hall, where Mayor Walker presented her with a scroll commemorating her deed, reached such proportions that 100 extra policemen were called to prevent serious trouble. Six women and children were wounded in the crush of humanity.

Later "Trudy" arrived home in Upper Amsterdam avenue, her appearance being the occasion of a jubilant celebration by her neighbors.

Ederles turned out to the number of 42 cousins and aunts, not to mention uncles and brothers, according to one of them who counted noses on the two tugs that bore the big reception down the river this morning. With the mayor's committee, headed by Glover Whalen, was Mrs. Ederle, with two sisters and two brothers of "Trudy" and a dozen or so of the close friends. Mrs. Ederle was tearful and excited and de-

Every time you take a drink my face will come in the glass to haunt you; every time you dance you will feel the arms of my spirit about you; every time you hear music it will be my funeral march; every time anyone kisses you my lips shall come between."

An 18 months old baby of the couple was being cared for by friends while police sought the mother.
