THE CITY WATER QUESTION

Councilman George J. Wenderoth, chairman of the special committee to secure an appraisal of the value of the water works, and get the question of the sale of the property to the city on the ballot, said yesterday that he was promised this report during the month of August—

And that month is not yet finished, but this is the last day. The report has not yet been received.

He is to get the report with the understanding that the question of paying for the appraisal, on the part of the city, is to be submitted at the same time the vote is taken on the whole matter—

The idea being to have this on the November ballot.

There are many reasons why this should be accomplished, if possible.

In the first place, valuable time is slipping away. While the question of securing a supply of mountain water would not come up at the first election, this will no doubt be considered, in case the people of the city shall decide upon municipal ownership of the water works; and in that case there must be no unnecessary delay in securing the proper mountain supply, or rather an option upon it, carrying with it an opportunity to develop power, in order to aid in paying interest on the bonds, and finally providing a sinking fund for the payment of the principal.

Then there is the matter of justice to the owners of the water works system. The city should keep faith with them—

The people of Salem should either take their property or leave it alone, in order not to keep them "up in the air" as to needed improvements or other arrangements depending on a decision in favor of municipal ownership or against it.

If at all possible, that issue ought to be on the November ballot.

BOOZE AND GAS DO NOT MIX

Several of the people killed in automobile wrecks hereabouts were stewed to the gills with rotgut booze—

Not mentioning names, out of sympathy to relatives.

This is from the Portland Journal of last night: "Two dead from pistol wounds in Portland Thursday night! Booze is said by the police to have figured in both killings. It isn't only the poison in the stuff that slaughters—the impulse that the poison puts into the human brain helps the grave gather in the dead."

And yet there are men considering themselves 100 per cent Americans who do not believe greater efforts ought to be made to enforce the dry laws. And they take their own lives in their hands every time they go in autos on the highways—

They may meet a driver crazed with moonshine.

Booze and gasoline will not mix with safety to the man who mixes it, or without danger to all the people against whom he may run amuck.

HISTORY

A few years ago I read in the San Francisco Examiner the following by Ambrose Bierce:

"Three lines great Whittier's death announced,
 Ten columns shout that Sullivan is trounced,
 Oh, ye gods, for some spot where hogs will squeal for swill and men will not."

Some people do not think of their reputation or the feelings of relatives until they have committed some overt act and are in the clutches of the law.

Weston is not the first man who walked until he was broke or walked after he was broke.

Salem, Aug. 30, 1926.

—FIRST AID.

Salem should get into trim for beet sugar factories. They are coming. A lot of people are going to profit immensely from their coming, and the city and country as a whole are going to get benefits beyond their present dreaming—benefits that will be far reaching and permanent.

THEIR PLAY

(Portland Journal.)

"Oregon capital for Oregon industries" is the plea which the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce is broadcasting to the business men of the state.

The chamber contends that industrial development from within is one of the state's needs. It urges every Oregon city to be considerate and render service to local industries.

It is an intelligent plan. Salem has shown the way in the capital her people have put into the flax industry. Two mills there are financed by Oregon capital.

These mills will consume large volumes of raw material grown in Oregon fields. Three hundred prisoners in the Oregon penitentiary have been taken out of idleness and put to work in preparing the raw flax for the mills and Governor Pierce is convinced that ultimately every convict can be employed at useful labor to the end that the prison, instead of being a burden, can be made self-sustaining.

The profits from the mills will not go to stockholders in distant states, but to Oregon stockholders. It is Oregon capital, employing Oregon labor, converting Oregon raw material into Oregon finished products. It is Oregon flying with her own wings.

Best of all, it is Oregon people demonstrating their faith in Oregon industries by establishing with their own money and conducting with their own skill, Oregon industries. It is the best argument in the world for outside capital to come to Oregon and engage in industries. A people who build no industries but call on outsiders to come in and build industries for them do not get very far.

INDIAN SCHOOL IS LARGEST IN U. S.

60 Teachers Will Care for Education of More Than 1000 Pupils

The Chemawa Indian school, largest in the United States, will start its 47th year when the season opens September 6. Over 1,000 pupils are expected this year, which is expected to be one of the greatest years in the institution's history. Over 60 instructors will be provided.

The school was started by M. C. Wilkinson at Forest Grove in February, 1880. The first students came from the Puyallup reservation in Washington. It continued to grow there for five years and was moved to the present site in October, 1885.

Since Mr. Wilkinson started the school seventeen superintendents have been in charge. They were H. J. Minthorn, W. V. Coffin, John Lee, W. Beadle, G. M. Irwin, C. W. Wasson, James G. Dickson, O. H. Parker, Charles R. Rakestraw, Edwin Chalcraft, Thomas Potter, Harry Wadsworth, Harwood Hall, and James H. McGregor. The present holder of the office, who started his duties April 1 of this year, is Mr. Wilkinson, founder of the school, was a lieutenant in the third infantry, United States army. He was killed during a Chippewa Indian uprising near Fort Snelling, Minn., in 1889.

VALENTINO THRILLS IN ELSINORE FILM

Romance Brigands, Russians, Comedy All Combine in "The Eagle"

Rudolph Valentino, playing in "The Eagle," is at the Elsinore theatre for the last time today in his first United Artists Corporation production. The first and most important thing to say about "The Eagle" is that it is great entertainment. It is a fast moving compound of comedy, thrills and romance.

Valentino makes his first appearance as a Cossack lieutenant. Believe it or not, he runs away when the amorous and middle-aged zarina tries to make advances to him. She signs his death warrant. This, and a great injustice to his father, cause the young man to turn bandit—a brigand who earns the title of the Eagle because of his swift and mysterious movements. Interest in the romance is heightened by the fact that the hero's sweetheart

CHICKEN FANCIER BUYS NEW FLOCK

Entire Flock of Rhode Island Reds Purchased by A. L. Lindbeck

A. L. Lindbeck, who in addition to his duties as Salem correspondent for the Oregon Journal, maintains a flock of Rhode Island Red chickens at his home in the Auburn district east of the city, has acquired possession of the entire flock of Reds owned by Christopher & Young of Newberg, Oregon, generally recognized as one of the best flocks of Reds in the West.

Along with the flock Mr. Lindbeck acquires the strain name of "Gold Eagle" under which this flock has been bred and shown by Christopher & Young during the past 23 years. The flock includes many show birds which have won ribbons at the state fair and the Portland show during the past two years as well as a number of high record hens, some with official trap nest records made at the Western Washington laying contest at Puyallup.

With the acquisition of the Christopher & Young flock Mr. Lindbeck now owns one of the largest flocks of Reds in Oregon and is putting all of his pullets into the trap nests this fall with a view to carrying on the pedigree work which has made possible the reputation won by the "Gold Eagle" flock up to this time.
