JURY TO BEGIN ELECTION QUIZ

U'Ren, Steiwer, Latourette and Stanfield Expected to Testify

CASE COMES UP TODAY

Documentary Evidence to Be Examined by Grand Jurors in Hands of District Attorney Carson

Charges that Frederick Steiwer, republican nominee for United States senator, falsified expense accounts in connection with the primary election last May, will be investigated by members of the Marion county grand jury in a session beginning today.

District Attorney Carson said that the investigation probably would require two or three days in that a large number of witnesses would be called to testify. Among the prominent men who will appear before the jury are Mr. U'Ren, Mr. Steiwer, John Latourette, treasurer of the Steiwer-for-senator committee, and Robert N. Stanfield, who was defeated by Mr. Steiwer at the primary election.

Documentary evidence to be examined by the grand jury will include the original expense accounts filed by Mr. Steiwer and a supplementary expense account filed by H. E. Henshaw, an officer of the Multnomah County Republican club.

Mr. U'Ren charged in his complaint filed with District Attorney Carson that Mr. Steiwer and Mr. Latourette failed to include in their primary election expense accounts certain funds paid to at least two members of the Multnomah republican organization. It also was intimated in the complaint that Mr. Steiwer might have some knowledge of the origin of the so-called "yellow ticket" which was printed and circulated a few days previous to the primary election.

In view of the recent statement of Stanley Myers, district attorney of Multnomah county, that he had discovered the author of the "yellow ticket," it is not likely that any time in investigating this angle of the charges preferred against Mr. Steiwer.

The charges preferred by Mr. U'Ren caused little comment in Marion county where Mr. Steiwer spent his boyhood days and has many close friends. It was the consensus of opinion among Mr. Steiwer's friends here that the charges were filed by Mr. U'Ren for the purpose of boosting the political stock of Bert Haney, democratic nominee for United States senator, and not with a view of assisting in the election of Mr. Stanfield, independent nominee for the office.

District Attorney Carson said that he had received from the secretary of state copies of all expense accounts filed by Mr. Steiwer, and that these would be placed before the grand jury today when it convenes.

$25,000 Silver Fox Deal Made Here on Labor Day

Well Known Brooklyn Buyer and Breeder Takes 31 Peace River Black Silver Foxes From Rainbow Silver Fox Farms

How would you like to have a few dozen pairs of Peace River black silver foxes ready for sale at this time? You would be able to cash in for enough money to make you independent the balance of your life, if you conserved your funds.

James A. Kane, of 172 Lenox Road, Brooklyn, New York, spent Labor day in and near Salem in receiving and boxing for express shipment 31 foxes from the Rainbow Silver Fox Farms, a few miles south of Salem, located about a mile east of the Sunnyside store on the Pacific highway, the postoffice address being Turner, Route 3.

The Rainbow Silver Fox Farms belong to C. R. Gregg and sons, the sons being Lloyd, Earl and Glenn, who conduct the Better Yet bakery when they are not working with their foxes. Nine of the foxes sold yesterday belonged to Joe N. Smith, of Salem, and 22 to the Greggs, pater et filii, as the French would say.

And the whole transaction involved a payment of about $25,000; which even the mint growers of this district would have to admit is no slouch of a sum—

Especially when it is considered that most of the Gregg foxes were pups; and the Greggs have raised 19 pups this year from five pairs of foxes. They have the five pairs of foxes left for breeding purposes. Mr. Smith has two pairs left.

After More Foxes Mr. Kane, with his son, Wm. H. Kane, are after more Peace River silver foxes. They have engaged about 30 pairs in all, the others being from J. H. Morrison, the Francis Fox Farm, and Dr. Hussen of Portland, and Mr. Suhl.

TRAIN CRASHES TAKE 33 LIVES

First Corpse Taken From Debris Is Two Year Old Girl; Woman Pinned Down by Wreckage Is Released

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—At least eight persons were killed and 100 or more injured tonight when a local train from El Roy, Wis., on the Chicago and Northwestern railway was ploughed into by a Chicago and Northwestern train from Madison, Wis.

The El Roy train was discharging passengers at the Corland street station, four miles from downtown, when the Madison ran into it. The last two coaches of the El Roy train were telescoped, and it was in them that most of the deaths and injuries occurred.

Both trains were composed of wooden coaches and were filled with passengers returning to Chicago after holiday outings.

As the crash occurred a north-bound train with headlight blazing brightly was said to have been abreast the train struck, and that was given as the cause of the Madison train's engineer not seeing the halted train into which he drove.

Scores of patrol wagons and fire apparatus were rushed to the scene of the crash. Torches and axes were used in cutting out injured persons pinned down by the wreckage.

Doctors and nurses from nearby hospitals were rushed to the scene and gave first aid.

One woman whose leg was severed was pinned down by wreckage and was released only after long minutes of agony. A man was pinned down by a beam, but it was believed his life would be saved.

The situation was found to be less serious near the other towns. Below Salem only a moderate pollution was found by the experts.

According to Dr. Stricker this might be due to the great amount of industrial waste sent into the river at Salem and which undoubtedly destroys much of the bacteria from the sewage.

On the other hand, he thinks, the industrial waste may have a decided effect of lowering the oxygen content of the river and harm its fish life.

It is evident, according to Dr. Stricker, that the pollution is a serious problem.

Senate Millionaires and House Plebes Lead Campaigns of Both Big Parties

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The senate may be a millionaire's club but the house is a poor man's retreat.

"Stick" Howard of Georgia made this amiable generalization a few years ago. In common with most generalizations, it's pretty much fact.

And never more than right now has the distinction been more definitely discernable. Consider which men head up their respective party's campaign committees in the two houses of congress.

In the senate the republican party leader is runner-up for the title of "Richest man in the senate," Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, of Colorado.

The democratic campaign leader in the senate possesses the heaviest bank balance among his party colleagues. He is Senator Golet Gerry of Rhode Island.

Between them, these two senators could very nearly buy up the entire house of representatives, stow it away in some dark corner and then go right ahead and finance something heavy, say a primaries campaign in Pennsylvania.

But look now at the house. At the head of the republican campaigners stands the Hon. Will R. Wood of Indiana.

His democratic rival is the Hon. William C. Oldfield of Arkansas.

These two men are not wealthy. They are not of the aristocracy and there are those who say that they are not utterly at home on the polished floor of an effete ball room.

But in the give-and-take of a caucus they are in their element. They are veteran campaigners of the sort few can phase and none can bluff.

All four of the campaign generals are men who need no particular coaching in this crazy game of politics. Moneyed or otherwise, they know their material.
