

SOCIETY

A. C. Case and two sons, Arthur and Roy, were special guests.

The time was spent in social conversation and needlework.

The 50th anniversary of Mrs. F. G. Stearns was observed at Wednesday's meeting.

In the group last week were: Mrs. A. T. Case and sons, Arthur and Roy.

The Green Gate tea room at the Spa was the scene of a delightful dinner party.

The dinner table at the Spa was decorated with zinnias and marigolds.

Mrs. J. Sweeney, Miss Ruth Buckner, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Buckner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gonn, Mr. and Mrs. D. X. Beecher, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. East, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hosford, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hoffnell and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Laflair.

Lena Belle Tartar Spends Profitable Summer in Chicago

Miss Lena Belle Tartar and Miss Gretchen Kreamer spent eight exceedingly profitable weeks in Chicago this summer in both intensive and extensive study.

Miss Tartar, who will open her work for the new season as head of the music department of the Salem high school tomorrow morning, studied at the American Conservatory, a member of the national conference of music colleges with standardized curricula.

Miss Tartar did coaching with Karleton Hackett, one of the most eminent members on the Conservatory faculty for the Chicago Evening Post.

Miss Tartar also attended repertoire and lecture classes under other outstanding authorities.

Her work in theory was accomplished with Arthur Olaf Anderson, who is the author of two leading texts in modern harmony, revised to meet high school needs.

O. E. Robinson, director of music in the Hyde Park high school, was Miss Tartar's authority for her work in conducting.

Ear-training and opera coaching were valuable courses under John Kendall, supervisor of music in Michigan.

Miss Tartar and Miss Kreamer attended many opera attractions during the 11 weeks season at Ravinia Park.

Such artists as Borz, Mellis, Redberg, MacBeth, Chamlee, Martineff, Lazzari, Mojica, De frere and Basola made unforgettable appearances.

Treats of equal interest were the Chicago Symphony orchestra concerts each Sunday afternoon and Monday evening.

Miss Tartar and Miss Kreamer returned to the Pacific coast by the Canadian Pacific route.

Two delightful days were spent in the Jasper national park.

From Prince Rupert, the two took the boat to Vancouver, B. C., and Seattle.

Since her return to Oregon Miss Tartar has spent much of her time as the guest of relatives in Corvallis.

Wife of Portland Symphony Conductor Is Centenary Pianist

Elly Ney, as the Beethoven Centenary pianist, will face a crowded schedule of concert dates immediately on her arrival in America next January.

Contracts have already been signed for appearances in New York, Chicago, Boston, Los Angeles, St. Louis, Rochester, Portland, Ore., Eugene, Bellingham, Wash., Victoria, B. C., Sioux City, Iowa, Lexington, Ky., Bloomsburg, Pa., Erie, Pa., and Bridgeport, Conn.

Madame Ney is a native of Bonn, Beethoven's birthplace, and has made a life study of his work.

Perhaps no other living woman pianist has sheer physical "power" to play adequately some of his biggest compositions, such as the massive "Hammerklavier Sonata" which she presented with irresistible dash and ease at this summer's centenary festival in Bonn, and which she will repeat many times in America during the coming season.

She has an amazing facility for shifting from such works to the lilting measures of a Brahms Lullaby.

Probably no artist before the American public will be more discussed during the approaching Beethoven year.

Like every person of prominence she has antagonists, but in far greater numbers, ardent admirers. In any case, she is never ignored.

Her very evident "temperament" with all the world implies, her amazing technical facility, even her leonine mass of crinkly hair, are subjects of frequent comment.

Despite the pressure of the Beethoven Centenary, Madame Ney has specified to her management that she must have one week a month at her home in Portland, Ore., with her husband, Willem van Hoogstraten, and their little daughter.

The van Hoogstratens, she says, are "home folks."

Phelps-Chase Trio to Present

A particular treat for those who look forward to an evening of music and reading will be afforded on Friday evening of the week when Miss Naomi Phelps, soprano, assisted by Mrs. Guy Fitch Phelps, accompanist, and Mrs. Carole M. Chase, reader, will appear in benefit concert at the First Christian church under the auspices of the Young People of the church.

All three artists have a wide repertoire and have been received with unflinching enthusiasm throughout the state.

Mizpah Class of Jason Lee Church Meets at Geis Home

The annual Sunday school picnic of the Mizpah class of the Jason Lee Methodist church was held on Friday evening at the home of the teacher of the class, Mrs. C. A. Geis at 2440 Fairgrounds road.

On account of the inclement weather, a seven o'clock cafeteria dinner was served in the house instead of on the lawn as was planned. Thirty-one guests were present for the delightful affair.

The living rooms were beautifully decorated with fall flowers, colorful dahlias and zinnias predominating. Following the dinner hour a social hour was spent in class discussion and general conversation after which the president, Mrs. Albert Fuestman had charge of the program which was given as follows:

Song (by all): "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?"

Prayer: Mrs. Disbrow. Piano solo: Willamette Blackeslie.

Reading: Parker Gries. Reading: Lloyd Wright. Trio, piano and two violins: Willamette Blackeslie, Henrietta Blackeslie, Bernice Blackeslie.

Reading: Marcia Fuestman. Reading: Margaret McCoy. Song: Katherine Gels, ukelele Parker Gels.

The next regular monthly meeting will be held in the church the third Friday in October (October 15).

Franklins Reach Home After Summer in Europe

The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. F. G. Franklin are welcoming them home from a three months trip to Europe where they passed ninety joy-filled days in the scenic, cultural, and historic centers of Europe.

Dr. and Mrs. Franklin left Salem on June 3 and reached home on Friday September 17. They disembarked in England, spending a week in the British Isles. In company with their touring party they crossed the English Channel to Belgium, France, Italy, Germany and Switzerland were all visited in succession.

The two highlight cities in the itinerary, according to Dr. and Mrs. Franklin, were Paris and Rome. Paris was particularly delightful because of the hospitality extended them by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Barnes (Ester Paroungian) and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Davies (Edna Gilbert).

Dr. and Mrs. Franklin took passage for home from Havre, reaching the United States on the evening of Labor Day.
