

INVESTORS DRIVEN OUT SAYS CHAPMAN

Editor of Oregon Voter Tells Chamber of Commerce of Law's Evils

Big investors will not come to states in which there are income tax laws like that of Oregon. Hence the Dennis resolution which proposes to abolish all inheritance and income taxes until 1940, is necessary if Oregon is to have the industrial development it desires, C. C. Chapman, editor of the Oregon Voter, contended in a speech at the Salem chamber of commerce luncheon yesterday.

Wisconsin, which has an income tax law similar to the one desired for Oregon, is losing many of its big payrolls and big corporations since the law was passed, he intimated. It has put on surtaxes whenever it wants money and thus hit the big incomes harder and harder.

"I'd hate to say how many millions of dollars worth of investments are being kept out of Oregon because the investors fear the income tax," said Mr. Chapman. "My information on that subject is merely verbal. But I have plenty of documentary information that proves fully and completely that capital is afraid of a state that has an income tax like Oregon's."

The two income tax bills proposed for Oregon, which will be put to the ballot this fall, are the Grange bill and the offset bill. The Grange bill is admirably suited for an income tax, if we are to have such a tax, Mr. Chapman believes.

It will raise about $3,000,000 of revenue annually, and employs the graduated tax system, which is generally considered the best one. Exemptions under this bill are high to avoid antagonizing people of low income.

In administrative features the bill is good, thinks Mr. Chapman. It is modeled after the Wisconsin law, with the added benefit of Oregon's experience.

The offset bill is identical with this one except that it has the property tax as an offset, Mr. Chapman stated. In the Grange bill the property tax is deductible from the taxable income, while in the offset bill it is not deductible, making the taxable income somewhat higher.

Instead of being deducted from the taxable income, the property tax is applied as an offset to the income tax, and deducted from it. Therefore the only tax paid is the income tax minus the property tax. Revenue under this bill is estimated by Mr. Chapman at between $450,000 and $500,000. Other estimates agree with his, he stated.

The machinery necessary for collecting and determining tax on incomes will not pay with such a small revenue, Mr. Chapman believes, and he does not think this bill is worthy of consideration.

GUNDERSON WINS FAIR CUP AWARD

Silverton Community Exhibits Draw Many to Booths in Armory

SILVERTON, Ore., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Besides winning the silver loving cup offered for the grand champion Jersey cow at the Silverton Community fair, M. G. Gunderson carried away six other prizes in the stock show. Four of these were firsts, while the other two were seconds. E. O. Lee was a runner up on Mr. Gunderson in the Jersey class, Mr. Lee winning four firsts with no seconds or thirds.

The Silverton fair, which was concluded Saturday night, was much larger and, according to gate receipts, more successful than either of the previous two. A great deal of attention had been given to the farm exhibits which were displayed in the armory balcony.

Evan's Valley carried away first prize in the community farm exhibits while Valley View rated second. Roy Skaffe won first, with John Rheinhardt second, and C. Whitlock, third in the individual farm exhibits.

The apple display was particularly attractive, causing many fair visitors to remark that "Hood River apples had nothing on those of Silverton." Henry Torvend and G. H. Ottoway were winners of a number of apple prizes.

Silverton, as a community, has always been interested in all that has historical value. A display featuring things of this nature attracted considerable attention at the fair. Oldest of the collection was undoubtedly an account book said to be 526 years old, belonging to Mrs. G. F. Brazier of Silverton.

The book was written by Joseph Kippenstein in a scrip that only students of old German scripts could decipher. A counterpane made in 1839, a Civil war blanket, a mortar used in Denmark for spice grinding 200 years ago and now the property of Mrs. L. H. Meyer, a candlestick, once belonging to Francis Parkman, the historian, a ninety-year-old wooden doll, were some of the things displayed in this department.

$1000 ASKED TO AID 7000 TORNADO VICTIMS

ida came today from the nation's capital.

President Coolidge led the move for relief by formally asking the American people to contribute to a fund to aid those who had gone through "an overwhelming disaster."

He promised such assistance as was within the means of the government, and following his lead, the members of the cabinet whose departments were in position to offer help formally placed their resources at the command of those in charge of rehabilitation work.

The Red Cross was active early and the first response to the president's call was a contribution of $100,000 from the national headquarters of the organization. Whatever fund is donated, the organization will go into actual work and none will be used for administrative purposes.

President Coolidge asked that contributions in response to his appeal be made through the Red Cross headquarters here or through local Red Cross chapters. Many of these chapters already have relief workers on the scene, or on the way, and national headquarters has ordered its experts to the scene.

A coast guard fleet was sent to Florida waters to participate in the rescue work. It carried a detachment of marines and a quantity of supplies. The war department promised to do everything within its power in the way of furnishing material, food supplies and other necessities.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—(AP.)—With ingenuity, inspired by sympathy, Chicago today took a leading part in the relief of storm-stricken Florida.

A special train laden with doctors, nurses and medical and food supplies thundered toward the ravaged region in command of Dr. Herman Bundesen, the city's health officer, while Chicago dipped into her purse for the hurricane victims and planned for the methodical assistance of relief units working in the stricken state.

Portables Urged to Cut Public School Congestion

Increase of 229 Over Last Year's First Day Registration Reported, Total of 3927 Begin Formal Class Room Work Today

A total of 3927 students registered in the local schools yesterday, official registration day, late entrants are expected to swell this number, especially in the senior high school, before the week ends. Classes do not begin until this morning.

This is an increase of 229 over last year's first day registration, and is one of the biggest annual increases ever felt in the local schools. There was an increase in each school in the city, ranging from four at Richmond to 71 at Parrish junior high school. The Lincoln school is crowded to its maximum capacity because of the big increase of 40 students there. Steps are being considered to erect temporary portables for this year, as congestion there will be relieved when the new South Salem junior high school is finished next year.

Registration at the senior high school was 899, an increase of 37 over last year's 862 on the first day of school. Registration at Parrish junior high school was 885, an increase of 71 over the 814 of last year. The number at McKinley junior high school was 206, an increase of 16 over the 190 present last year. Total increase in the junior high schools was 87.

The total increase in the grade schools was 139, but out of this number only 105 were counted, as the Washington portable school which last year had 34 students, does not exist this year.

Registration at the Englewood school was 285, an increase of 23; at Garfield school, 288, an increase of 30; at Grant, 279, an increase of 22; at Highland 235, an increase of 11; at Lincoln 347, an increase of 40; at Park 256, an increase of 8, and at Richmond 247, an increase of 4.

Total grade school registration is 1937.
