Phelps-Chase Trio to Appear in Pleasing Concert on Friday

A concert which promises to be of more than ordinary interest will be presented by Naomi Phelps, soprano, Mrs. Carrie Chase, reader, and Mrs. Guy Fitch Phelps, accompanist tomorrow night at the First Presbyterian church.

A program of particularly delightful, and diversified, numbers has been arranged.

The trio has made many successful tours in the past two years, particularly in the Willamette valley where the neighboring towns have been quick to hear of these artistic entertainers.

After Miss Phelps sang in Philomath, assisted by Mrs. Chase's readings and her mother's accompaniments, the local paper declared her "a singer of rare charm and beauty."

The McMinnville paper, following another concert, calls attention to the fact that Miss Phelps is a lyric soprano whose training has been under an instructor once a teacher of Caruso. She is the daughter of Rev. Guy Fitch Phelps and her mother, Ethel Poling Phelps, is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Poling.

Mrs. Chase, the reader in the group, was splendidly trained in Sac City, Iowa.

LIVING and LOVING

Understanding, Fifty-Fifty. In common with the rest of the city cliff dwellers, when the door swings to behind us and between us and the street we are not yet at home. Sairs or the elevator still remain the means we must employ to gain the lock to which our key will prove the open sesame.

The other morning we were blocked in exit from our "lift" by a "lady of color." So august a personage did not invite argument even upon so important a subject as right of way. Against our will but in accordance with our common sense we bided our time while she held heated converse with the deus ex machina.

"Huh, man! You all ain't got no call to get so discomobulated!" grunted she. "I suttinly ain't the same lady as was here a while ago. You sholy did carry me up and carry me down, and I'se here again—come to see what time it is by that little clock hanging in the corner. Fifteen minutes more of grace I'se got, and here I stays 'til it's all used up. I don't belong to no union, but I knows my rights. Eight hours I'se gets paid for and eight I work! Nine o'clock I starts and catch me pokin' my nose 'fru de do' ahead of time! Miss Brown am some hustler! Why, dat woman'd set me to work soon as she saw me; sure! Must lie 'wake nights thinking up things fo' me to do and then sets 'round and watches me do them! 'Mis' Brown takes it easy all the while. I'm gwine to take it easy while I can."

Huffing and puffing the fat lady backed out of the elevator, amble over to a bench in the hallway and heaved herself down to "set out" those last minutes of leisure.

Did she enjoy them? She did not! Uneasy eye upon the clock,

Counting it time to quit only when our tasks are satisfactorily finished, measuring our working hours not by time's yardstick alone, possibly we did not sympathize quite as wholeheartedly with the lady of color as we might have done. Yet, not hearing 'Mis' Brown's' side of the story it may be that, told, it would not have done Madame credit.

Perhaps 'Mis' Brown' was inconsiderate! Perhaps she did cram too many duties into her handmaiden's day. Perhaps she was arrogant and thoughtless and altogether selfish. In such case who can blame the complainant?

Again, in justice to 'Mis' Brown' it is likely that she was none of these things, but a housewife proud of her home, anxious to keep it in apple-pie order, expecting and rightfully so, the fullest return for her generous wages.

At any rate, and whatever the reason, the lady of color's sentiments gave expression to a spirit that should not exist between employer and employee, were proof positive that even behind the closed doors of home labor and capital are still "at it."

What a shame and how ridiculous when each needs t'other so! Understanding, fifty-fifty is the alchemy whereby jealous competition is transformed to generous cooperation, and cooperation in its turn is the lubricant that keeps the wheels of progress anywhere running without litches.

Mistress or maid, let's use a little of it.

The NOBLE FRENCH PRUNE

The best prune for commercial or home use, for several reasons:

- First, because it is the best.
- Second, it is a very large, beautiful prune.
- Third, it is an extremely sweet prune.
- Fourth, it is a very quick, easy drying prune; does not drip and dries in about half the time of the Italian. It is harvested in August. It is an extra fine canning prune; has a delicious flavor, both dried and canned.

The Noble French prune is propagated and trees grown for sale by Noble Andrews, Rt. 6, Box 67, Salem, Oregon, three and a half miles straight east of the Oregon State Hospital, on the Fruitland road.

THIS WOMAN'S BATTLE Wins Against Ill Health

"At times I was hardly able to do my housework," writes Mrs. Margaret Wallace, of 1547 Safford Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

How many women have found themselves in this same condition! How many women have fought bravely on, day after day, cooking, washing, ironing, doing the dishes, and keeping the house clean, when they were in a weakened condition and had not sufficient strength to perform these duties.

A friend advised her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a fair trial. "I just can't give enough thanks to it," she writes. "Now I can eat anything at all and I am feeling better than I have for years. I shall never be without your medicine again."

A woman who is fighting for her health and her family's happiness is a valiant soldier. She wages her battle in her own kitchen. She has no thrilling battles to cheer her on, no waving banners.

Many other women tell us, as Mrs. Wallace did that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health.
