'Y' TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY SOON

Harry W. Stone to Be Principal Speaker at Celebration Here

Definite dates for the 35th anniversary week of the YMCA have been set, as October 10-13. The occasion is the celebration of the anniversary of the organization's founding in this city. It will begin with an anniversary meeting Sunday in the lobby, led by some of the original members and officers.

Monday and Tuesday nights' programs will be held on all four floors of the building. Details have not yet been prepared. An anniversary dinner will be held Wednesday night, to which members and their wives and friends will be invited. Invitations will be sent out soon. An attendance of about 400 is expected.

Harry W. Stone, recently returned from the YMCA world conference in Helsingfors, Finland, will be the main speaker. He made the trip with a party led by Sherwood Eddy, famous lecturer, and visited most of the countries of Europe.

LIVING and LOVING
BY FLORENCE SMITH VICKERT
Of course you've been to a horse race! We have! Such fun! We remember with what interest we watched the pre-race maneuvers of beasts and riders; how with more or less secret qualms of doubts as to our own judgement, we yet boldly "picked the winners" and proclaimed our choice to the world, sticking to our guns in the face of not a little scornful opposition (opposition based on other things than slender legs and a glossy coat, as later events proved.)

Nose to nose—the equine beauties stood awaiting the high sign from the starter's box.
"Ready! Go!" boomed the gong.

"They're off!" we cried, as thrills scampered up and down our spine. They were, but alas, not for long nor far.
Ding, dong! The gong spoke again. Its command was passed from man to beast. The pace was broken and back came the horses and jockeys, none of them too well pleased, to begin all over again.
Why? What was the matter?
A BAD START!
Some one among the contestants by a false start had put himself (or been put) out of a possible winning. The rule of the race, unless otherwise specifically ordered, is that every racer's start shall be free and equal. Unhappily, it is up to the horse to prove its worth, and may the best one win!

Strange with what handicaps we start our own endeavors. We grumble and grant at the poor showing we make at the finish and blame every one and everything in the world but the real cause—a bad beginning!

Many a fellow has thrown a pillow at the alarm clock, to his ultimate sorrow. Late at the office, he misses an important meeting, falls behind in his work. He blames it all on luck or his poor wife, while the day's comedy of miseries was all the logical outcome of nothing more than just a bad beginning.

Many a woman has cut the cloth without a pattern and brought herself to the brink of frazzled digestion by trying to remedy what would have been so easy not to do at all or to do right in the first place. Sewing is trying enough under the best of conditions, but when cutting is done first and planning afterward, it is impossible. Many a frock has been marred in the making for no better reason than that when she who had designed it was ready to sew up its seams she found the sewing masket threadless.

Many a cake has been taken on weight because the cook neglected to provide herself with a straw to test its constituency or with a towel to take it from the oven at the psychological second.
The front porch needs painting.

Well and good, but overalls and paint and all the existing you can do will not complete the job if you've forgotten the paint brush.
Don't waste time and temper in had beginnings. When you take up a task be sure you have the tools you need. Make ready in your mind, and then good luck to you.
You're off!
