SALEM'S CITY DUMP

A great deal of abuse has been given the Salem city administration and its members, individually and collectively, because the nuisance of the city dump has not been abated.

And the attitude of those dealing out the abuse (or rather the pretended attitude of those who know better), is that all the city fathers have to do is to lease a piece of land near the city and have the refuse of the city hauled thither and dumped; or contract with some concern that will so dispose of it—

But the matter is not so simple. That method has been tried, or sounded out with a view to trying it, several times, and there is an immediate uproar from the people who live or have property near the contemplated location of the new city dump. Their outcry reaches to high heaven, as the dump smells and will smell to heaven, wherever it is or may be located.

It is at present located right up against the south side of the state fair grounds, where there is now a temporary main entrance, and must eventually be one of the main gates of the state fair.

It cannot be left there; must not be—

And the special committee of the city council that now has charge of the matter has no intention of leaving it there.

W. H. Dancy, chairman of that committee, told the writer over the phone yesterday afternoon that he believes the committee members have a solution of the matter now, that will be ready to act upon in the next two weeks—

But he said the solution must necessarily be only a temporary one.

An incinerator would cost about $50,000, and this cannot be considered at the present time—

And in fact there is no incinerator yet in use anywhere that entirely solves the matter of the disposition of a city's garbage. It just is not in the nature of things. There is the question of the disposition of the sludge, as there is in the disposition of the sludge of a city's sewage.

The time is approaching when there will have to be a permanent solution of the question of the disposition of Salem's city sewage. The present city administration has wisely provided a sinking fund against this time; about $10,000, it is understood, now. When this time does come, the sewage and garbage can go together. The same sludge disposition can be used for both. For both, it can be worked into fertilizer, under one of the new processes, making a valuable product for the farmers of this section, instead of a noisome nuisance.

OREGON COWS

(Portland Telegram.)
 "A shipment of 90 head of Holstein and Guernsey milk cows has gone from Seapoose to Los Angeles, to replenish a herd decimated by the epidemic of hoof and mouth disease of two years ago. The Oregon dairy cow is fast achieving enviable rank in bovine aristocracy. The dairy farms in the lower Columbia and the coast promise soon to rival the famous farms of Denmark, Belgium and Holland.
 "Climate, soil and pasture are admirably adapted to the dairy industry and thanks to the enlightenment through fairs, stock shows and agricultural agents, we are introducing worthy animals to profit by these natural advantages. Gradually, the Oregon farmer is learning the lesson that for inmates of his cattle barns, the best is none too good, and is finally the cheapest."

The above from the Portland Telegram of yesterday is all true. The Oregon coast county dairymen are among the largest purchasers and users of agricultural lime. This means more legumes and their rotation crops; more and better dairy feed, and feed for the by-products of the dairy, swine and poultry.

But the Portland Telegram writer should have gone further and given some words of praise to the Willamette valley dairymen. They have produced nearly all the world record Jerseys. They are leading producers of the other standard dairy breeds, too—

And, with the development here of the beet sugar industry, which is coming—the first sugar factory just around the corner—there will grow up a friendly rivalry between the dairymen of the valley and coast counties that will make the world sit up and take notice.

Bits For Breakfast
 In the clear now—
 The Oregon state fair—
 And you know the days to go—
 And the money will be needed to make further improvements to the big plant, for the greater crowds, and exhibits of future years.

 As soon as the fair is over there must be and will be an intensive campaign for the 8000 acres of beets for the sugar factory, taking in all of the Willamette valley. Sign up the contracts, and the work of building the factory will go forward. This should be easy, with all points of the valley, within a 60 mile radius, to draw from. That is, the grower 60 miles away from the factory will be on an equal footing with the one within a mile of it. The company will pay all the freight within 60 miles, and equalize it on beets coming from outside that radius—and allow the cost of freight for those delivered by truck.

The price of gasoline is down, and it is said the price of milk is going up.

The county exhibits at the state fair are each allowed $100, by the state fair board, towards expenses. Some of the people getting up the exhibits would like the good old way, with first and second and third prizes. They think the spirit of competition would be helped. But others are satisfied with the present rule. Marion county was never in the competition under the old rule. She has always treated the outside counties as guests, and made her own exhibits for the good of the whole state.

A few showers do not bother the state fair crowds. The paved roads and automobiles have made a great difference. And the state fair plant gets in better shape every year to handle big crowds in rainy weather.

HALL-MILLS WITNESS FOUND TO HELP STATE

"SENSATIONAL REVELATIONS" GIVEN BY OFFICER

Testimony Will Be Locked in Safe Deposit Vault for Safe Keeping

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Sept. 30. (AP)—"Sensational revelations" by Henry L. Dickman, state trooper, have strengthened the state's case against four persons indicted for the Hall-Mills murders, Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, announced today. Dickman vanished after several months work on the case. A recent report that he was brother to the murderer trial and will be an important witness for the state.

"His statement is too important and too sensational to make public. I'm on my way to put it in a safe deposit vault where no one can get at it."

It was rumored that search had been ordered for the witness said to have been named by Dickman. Dickman was assigned to the case four years ago after the original investigations had died down. He made 14 reports to Somerset county but none of them has been found. Inspector John Underwood today announced that a private detective alleged to have threatened William Whitaker, of New Brunswick, for not signing a statement attacking the credibility of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness, had been identified as a man in the employ of the defense. He promised "important developments" in that direction.

He said also that two bundles, containing blood-stained clothing and a mattress, which Leonard Gray reported finding seven miles from the scene of the crime, were not connected with the Hall-Mills case.

AUTO THEFT LARGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Motorists lost $60,000,000 last year through the theft of automobiles and the present situation is an "open challenge on the part of the underworld to the insurance companies." Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce asserted today.

"Arlington Bulletin" and "Boardman Mirror" are sold by Editor G. H. Curry, to Raymond C. Crowder and Loren O'Gara.

VAUDEVILLE ACTS NOW AT ELSINORE

Adolphe Menjou in "A Social Celebrity" Is Film Showing Today

Five acts of vaudeville will be presented at the Elsinore today in connection with the picture "A Social Celebrity" in which Adolphe Menjou stars.

A vaudeville recital will be presented by Doris Judy, for two seasons the ingenue of the "Greenwich Village Follies," and the three Lorenz sisters, musicians of luxury. They have a carefully prepared repertoire of classical numbers.

"Figure It Out" is the title of the second act cleverly given by Borde and Robinson who have brought the cross-word puzzle to the vaudeville audiences.

Herbert Denton, as the traveling man, who dislikes house cleaning, gives a vivid portrayal of a bright business man, who though he schemes to get away from the troubles attendant thereto falls into a pretty trap concocted by his friend, Florence Clements, who plays the role of wife. The act is called "The Split Second Comedy of Vaudeville."

Dick Ferguson and May Sunderland will be found presenting in the fourth act "Bits of Musical Comedy," an offering replete with dancing and singing, that is conceded to be one of the best acts of its kind.

European novelties are always sure to provide something new and skillful in the way of entertainment. This is especially true of the Paul Brothers, who present a sensational high perch act. Holding a twenty-foot pole erect, one of the brothers supports the other with perfect ease as he does a series of acrobatic feats in the air.

Auburn

Several Auburn homes have changed ownership this fall, and several others have been rented. Rev. Blodgett has rented his home here and has taken the pastorate of the 17th St. United Brethren church.

Mrs. Hartwell has sold two places on the Assylum road. Leo Childs has sold several of his tracts on the Auburn road, and John Larson has sold his home here.

Auburn Sunday school closed Sunday to attend the Hayesville S. S. convention which was held at Brooks Sunday. It was well attended. The M. E. church was packed, and at the school house there was a good attendance of the juniors, with Mrs. Gentry presiding. The afternoon session was much affected by the accident at the railroad crossing, the victims of which were members of one of the schools, and participants in the day's program.

BRAMWELL TO APPEAL SALEM OFFICE RULING

Salem. The office in Salem is but a side issue as compared with the defendant's office in Portland.

"The law is supreme over us all and it is not for a public officer any more than a private citizen to violate the plain terms of the statute. It is the opinion of the court, based on the evidence, that the superintendent of banks has practically moved his office 'bag and baggage' from the city of Salem to Portland and this in violation of the statute."

Frank C. Bramwell, state superintendent of banks, said that the decision would be appealed to the supreme court for final determination.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Frank C. Bramwell, state superintendent of banks, was not at his Portland office today and those inquiring about probable result of the court decision of Judge Skipworth were informed by Sidney J. Graham, who has served as Bramwell's attorney that an appeal probably will be taken from decision.

"It is the theory of the court," said Graham, "that, regardless of the fact that 90 per cent of the work of Mr. Bramwell's department centers here, where the federal reserve system operates, the superintendent must maintain his main office at Salem. It is our theory of the law that it empowered Mr. Bramwell to maintain the two offices and use his own discretion as to which should be the principal one. The court holds to the theory that he is authorized to use his own discretion in the matter."

"I have not finally been authorized to say that we will appeal from the decision but confidently expect that we shall."

Graham cited the fact that the Oregon Bankers association helped frame and put through the law authorizing establishment of a Portland office by the superintendent of banks. The department, he explained, is maintained by fees obtained from the banks of the state.

WRIT OF REVIEW ASKED IN RUDIE APPEAL CASE

A writ of review was signed Thursday by Judge L. H. McMath of the circuit court directing Mark Poulsen, city recorder, to halt all proceedings in the case of L. Rudie, who was arrested on a charge of driving while drunk and return the writ of review on or before Nov. 1.

The order states that a copy of all proceedings in the case be attached to the writ so that it may be reviewed by the circuit court.

Rudie was arrested by local police officers several weeks ago in an alleged intoxicated condition after his car had crashed into another one in South Salem. He was released on $500 bail and filed a demurrer, saying that the amount of bail demanded was excessive. Judge Poulsen overruled the demurrer and Rudie appealed to the circuit court.
