BABE RUTH LEADS YANKS OUT OF MISSOURI WOODS (Continued from page 2.)

Ruth was in full possession of the record home run total for world's series competition. His trio today set a single game record and brought his aggregate up to seven, eclipsing the mark set by Goose Goslin of Washington last year.

There were other factors in the Yankee victory and the Cardinal downfall besides Ruth's hitting, but the Babe so dominated the conflict that little else remained conspicuous.

Waite Hoyt, twirling for the Yankees, was also hit hard, yielding as many blows as did five Cardinal fingers—14—but he was at his best in the pinches and had easy sailing after the fifth inning when the St. Louis pitching staff, as represented by Arthur Reinhart and Herman Bell, collapsed.

Hoyt might have escaped with less damage but for an error in the fourth inning by Mark Koenig, erratic Yankee shortstop, who fumbled O'Farrell's grounder with an easy double play in sight that would have ended the inning. Taking advantage of this "break," the Cardinals rallied to score three runs on doubles by Thevenow and Douthit and a single by Southworth, wiping out the lead which the Yankees had gained through Ruth's first two homers.

Flint Rhem, whose right handed offerings had been pounded for four innings, yielded to a pinch hitter in the Cardinals' big rally but his successor, Arthur Reinhart, immediately tossed away his team's advantage with as wild a brand of southpaw slinging as any series has ever seen.

Reinhart walked four Yankees, including Ruth, in the fifth, and permitted a double by Koenig before passing out of the picture. Two runs had crossed the plate and no one was out when Hornsby hurriedly summoned Herman Bell, who issued another pass and contributed a balk while two more runs rushed over aided by Lazzeri's sacrifice fly and an infield out by Dugan. After that, Hoyt twirled brilliantly, holding the Cardinals easily in check until the ninth when they manufactured their final run on singles by Hornsby and Lester Bell, mixed with Bottomley's infield out. The Yankee pitching staff was a bit unsteady at time but his control was at its best when Cardinals were on the bases. He struck out eight of the red birds, including Hornsby twice.

Bits For Breakfast Coming up—Our loganberry district—

So much so that new plantings may again be ventured, and still better, more intensive cultivation and fertilization of our yards, to the end that a greater per acre tonnage may be produced.

But low prices will have to be accepted for a time, with a prospect for better prices to the growers in the course of years.

It will be a good thing for the industry if there is never again a period of banana prices. The industry could not have been stabilized, as it is stabilized now, on high priced berries. It would have died a natural death without a growing consumer demand, based on low prices.

But this does not mean that we should not organize, and that we should not look forward to a great juice industry, and to a big jam and jelly industry.

Our walnut and filbert growers are beginning to come into their kingdom. They will get several pockets full of money this year, and annually larger sums. Their rightful kingdom will fully come when Salem is the nut center of the world, which it is bound to be, just as surely as water seeks its level.

The lime industry at the prison is crippled by the farmers not returning the sacks. They have out now 25,000 sacks, and the filling of at least six cars in sack orders is now held up. There is a lot of money invested in sacks by the state, and there will have to be a system of fines in some form imposed for the non return of sacks, in justice to the consumers who return the sacks promptly.

Good prices for loganberries depends partly on low prices for sugar used in canning and barreling them. Sugar factories at home will help a lot. The first factory is to be ready for the 1927 crop of beets, but too late for the sugar for the 1927 crop of berries.

Police Get Speeder—E. F. Kale was arrested Wednesday night by local police officers on a charge of speeding. He was released on $5 bail.

OVERTIME PARKERS CAUGHT Police offensive against violators of Salem's new parking ordinance netted 13 persons yesterday who had left their cars parked on down town streets for longer than the lawful time. Those fined $1 by Al Mundt, acting municipal judge, were A. E. Morris, Reed Rowland, A. R. Reekin, Ruth Bowman, Janz Shepherd, W. A. Reeves, D. B. Smith, L. H. Roberts, J. O. Brown, R. E. Skinner, Sam Phlegley, Walter Miltonberger, and K. S. Ross.

interrogation of Green with a vigorous denunciation of the action of the churchmen, and a reply to the published interference of the Detroit board of commerce that the aims of the American Federation of Labor speakers who had been invited to fill Detroit pulpits Sunday were not in harmony with the traditional ideals of American patriotism.

Frey began by reading an open letter from the Detroit board of commerce to the ministers of the city in which the labor speakers named were characterized as men who are admittedly attacking "our government and our American plan of employment."

The letter ended with the suggestion that the ministers deliberate "whether or not you wish to have your church deviate from the program for which it is maintained."

"I first wish to ask," Frey began, "if it is in truth a fact that a speech by a representative of the American Federation of Labor would represent deviation from the program for which the Christian church is maintained?"

"The altars of the church ever have been the refuge of the oppressed," he continued. "Let this convention warn now that when Mammon dominates the altar, Christianity has passed away."

"I deeply resent the implication of those gentlemen that the patriotism and loyalty of the American Federation of Labor leadership and program are opposed to the ideals of our American institutions and historical traditions."
