LEGAL BARRAGE HITS EVIDENCE OF DEFENSE

Temple last night, which was attended by a number of the defense witnesses and attorneys W. I. Gilbert and Roland R. Woolley of defense counsel, at which different aspects of the case were discussed and cooling and toothsome refreshments served.

Ramon R. Gonzales, of Agua Prieta, Mexico, through an interpreter, described Mrs. McPherson's arrival at his home the morning of June 23 last after her reported desert hike. She asked him for a telephone, he said. She collapsed and he gave her two glasses of water and rubbed her arms with alcohol. He added that she appeared to be dead.

The Gonzales version of the evangelist's condition contradicted the word picture painted of her in the hospital several hours later by prosecution witnesses, who declared she showed no signs of fatigue.

Patterson and George W. Cook, Douglas truant officer, also testified that Mrs. McPherson was in a state of complete collapse when she was taken to Calumet and Arizona hospital after walking out of the Mexican desert on June 23.

Cross, who took the stand as first witness for the defense, went through a course of hectic grilling on cross examination at the hands of Deputy District Attorney E. J. Dennison and came out with his direct testimony considerably scrambled.

Dennison began to tie knots in the cross testimony early in the cross examination.

The man who had qualified himself yesterday as a desert expert, familiar with the country which Mrs. McPherson had said she crossed in her flight to Douglas, could not identify today a picture of Niggerhead mountain, described by Douglas residents as the outstanding landmark of that section of the country.

The machine gun queries of Dennison enveloped Cross in a maze and the Arizonan's evidence on direct examination began to crumble under the prosecution's attack.

The slaughterhouse at which Mrs. McPherson turned up early in the morning of June 23 last, the witness located as 200 yards south of the American-Mexican boundary.

Here the map contradicted him, for that showed the slaughterhouse to be nearly a mile from the line.

Had the witness been paid to come here and testify for the defense?

How much did he expect for his services?

He did not know, but he had said it was worth $10 a day and expenses to leave Arizona for California as a witness for Mrs. McPherson.

Getting back to his direct testimony of yesterday concerning footprints in the sand south of the line, which he had sworn he identified as those of the fleeing evangelist, Cross was non-plussed when faced with Mrs. McPherson's own statement that in her flight from her alleged abductors to the boundary, she had not crossed a fence nor a road.

His direct testimony had located the footprints at a point which, said the prosecution, it was impossible to reach without passing such landmarks except from Agua Prieta to the north and Mrs. McPherson had said she came from the opposite direction.

Crowds roar welcome to Rumanian royalty. On Board Queen Marie's Special Train at Philadelphia, en route to New York, Oct. 20. (AP)—A mother's kiss of understanding was given by Queen Marie of Rumania today to a woman who had lost her son at Annapolis.

The bereaved mother was Mrs. Butler Wright, wife of the assistant secretary of state. She has been with the queen since the state department took over supervision of her trip to Washington on Monday.

Standing under the rain soaked canvas pavilion on the parade grounds of the naval academy reviewing the regiment of midshipmen, Queen Marie was told by one of the officers in attendance on her that the wife of the assistant secretary of state had lost a son in training at the academy.

"Turning to Mrs. Wright, who was standing near her, the queen noticed that her eyes were full of tears," said Madame Simone Lahovary, the queen's lady in waiting, explaining the incident which at the time had puzzled those who witnessed it.

"She leaned forward impulsively and kissed Mrs. Wright on the cheek, murmuring words of understanding sympathy."

The Capitol theater orchestra, under direction of Viola Vercler Holman, will furnish the music for the vaudeville, and Leah Holt will be at the console of the ascending Wurlitzer.

Tomorrow only, the Ackerman & Harris vaudeville will be the feature at the Capitol theater.

MISSION WORK STARTED A number of Christian workers and others have united themselves under the leadership of Evangelist H. Hansen of Kelso, Wash., and Roy C. Ferguson of this city, for the purpose of forming a new mission work to be known as the Evangelistic Full Gospel Assembly.

They have rented the upper floor of the old YMCA building at Commercial and Chemeketa streets, in which to carry on this work. The place has been remodeled and fitted to carry on mission work and has a seating capacity of about 600 people.

At present they are holding meetings Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings during the week, and afternoons and evenings on Sundays. The public is cordially invited to assist in this work.

ANARCHIST IN CANADA ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Awaiting government approval to enter the United States, Emma Goldman, anarchist, who was deported to Russia seven years ago, now is in Montreal, she said in a letter received by her sister, Mrs. Lena Commis, of this city. With her is her husband, James Coulton, a British coal miner.

PANTAGES PROGRAM AT CAPITOL TODAY

The world's famous original six Brown brothers heads the Pantages bill today at the Capitol theater. The Brown brothers carries a special minstrel band of 14 pieces.

This is one of the most noted acts in vaudeville today and was brought to Salem by Frank Bligh, owner of the Capitol, at a tremendous cost.

The Four Pals, a famous quartet including Rube Myers, tenor; Thomas Rowe, second tenor; Anthony Dooley, baritone, and Oscar Smith, bass, in their latest comedy harmony offering entitled, "Laughter and Song," a program of melody and syncopation song numbers blended with comedy patter.

La Pearl and Gonnie, in their very latest comedy hit entitled "Just for Fun," dispense a very humorous line of original comedy in their own inimitable style. Incidentally, the scenic investiture is a very beautiful creation of stagecraft.

Billy Carmen, an artist of unusual ability, presents a musical offering in an entirely different manner. Surrounded by artistic scenery and splendid lighting effects, it is truly one of the most novel and beautiful musical acts on the circuit today.

Carmen plays on a specially constructed marimbaphone, embracing several ingenious devices, conceived and patented by him, and is the only

THE GREATEST DAIRYING DISTRICT

The Salem district, and its extension to the whole Willamette valley, is potentially the greatest dairying country in the world—

For the greatest dairymen in the world— And this has been proven over and over again, in the annual dairy Slogan numbers of The Statesman. Among the outstanding facts in proof of this statement one is all but conclusive, and that is the fact that a pound of butterfat can be produced in the Willamette valley for as much as (perhaps a good deal more than) seven cents a pound below the cost in the great dairying districts east of the Rockies.

Hammer that fact home in those districts, and there will be brought about here a boom in dairying. Forehanded dairymen will flock here. Especially so, when it is also true that our markets are on the average higher than those of the east, for dairy products.

When we can add the sugar industry, as we are about to begin to add it, all over this valley, we will have still better dairying conditions—

We will have the tops and the pulp and the molasses for dairy feed; the tops worth $20 an acre when fed to good dairy cows, and the pulp made available the year through, by drying. The tops may be used in silos, too.

What we need, more than any other one thing, in our dairy development, is a great advertising campaign giving a true picture of what we have to offer to first class men in this industry—

And this will be a much easier campaign to put on and put over with the development of our coming beet sugar industry. It will about clinch and consolidate our outstanding advantages for high class dairymen.

THE TEACHER'S PROTEST

The protest of a teacher, printed in The Statesman of yesterday morning, as indicated in the introduction, was inserted to bring out an explanation—

To enlighten the protesting teacher— As much as to follow the general rule of most newspapers to allow every one to say his or her say, in any statement free from libel or vindictiveness.

One who knows wants the protesting teacher told that the legislature at its last session passed a law requiring health examinations to be made the first month of school. That is what the cards mean, referred to by the protesting teacher. They are made up to obey the new state law.

The Marion County Health Demonstration has nothing to do with these cards. The Marion County Health Demonstration, in fact, does not go to a community to work unless it is first invited. It has been of great help to the teachers of Marion county. It deserves all praise, especially as its expenses are paid from the foundation of a New York estate, devoted to good works.

THAT IS SJILLY

"A vote for Haney is a vote to keep the American flag flying on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," says the Portland Journal in its leading editorial article of yesterday, quoting a New York man.

It is nothing of the kind— It is merely a vote thrown away, or worse. Haney does not believe in the protective tariff, and the only thing that will keep the American flag flying on the Atlantic and Pacific and the other oceans is preferential duties in favor of American ships—

It is the only thing that ever did it, or ever will do it. It is the thing that ought to do it—

And Haney is against it. He would be a misfit in Washington. He can do Oregon no good there. He would do Oregon harm there. But there is no danger, because he is not going to be elected.

country to the old house. He suspected that it was Mr. and Mrs. Knapp, he said, because of stories in the newspapers.

Tonight four detectives followed the trail as pointed out by Price, and when they arrived at the house, knocked and were admitted by Knapp, who submitted to arrest without resistance.

A thorough search of the house was made for the money Knapp was alleged to have taken with him but only $800 was found. Knapp would not discuss the case with the detectives, saying he first wanted to talk with John A. Robb, his attorney, but Robb, when questioned at his home here, said he would not go to detective headquarters when the prisoners arrived.

Bits For Breakfast

Good dairying district now— But the Salem district will easily beat the world when the sugar beet industry is established.

The beets will feed the cows and the cows will feed the beets, and the pigs and chickens—

And there will be general and solid and permanent prosperity; the most progressive and contented and highest class people in all the world.

No other one thing will do as much for dairying as the beet sugar industry. When we get 100 beet sugar factories in the Willamette valley, we will have the sure enough land flowing with milk and honey. We will have every kind of milk factory: dried milk, milk chocolate, 111 kinds of cheese, condensed milk, and butter to spread on all the nation's bread, with some left over for the parsnips.

Perhaps we will adopt the dairy maid instead of the beaver on the great seal of Oregon. Oregon will fly with her own wings, and have the modern cow that jumps over the moon.
