Plan Number 506 Five Room Cottage Proves Popular

Much has been said about the five room house and its practicability. To prove that one is practical we show here house that contains enough room to be large and with the lesser expense of a small house.

The exterior design is one that is most adaptable and popular on the coast and inland cities. This design being in stucco will fit into almost any landscape as a homey and cheerful residence. The French doors opening to the pergola covered terrace makes a very comfortable appearance as well as useful.

Being influenced by the English cottage it does not take on O the characteristic squareness ~ of the rooms which is most undesirable. One will notice in glancing over the floor plan that all the rooms are large and airy. The bath room at the side between the two bedrooms is accessible from either bedroom making a very convenient arrangement.

There is an ample amount of cupboard space in the kitchand this room is large enough should a built-in table

The dining room is very conveniently arranged in the rear of the house giving privacy as

The fireplace located on the front side of the house and near the entrance, is attractive from both interior and exterior, allowing a nook beside which can be placed either books or a seat. One extra room may be added in attic if desired, and with a small amount of work in plantings and shrubbery arrangements this could be made an attractive home. There is 924 square feet of floor area in this home.
