Dope in the new Northwest conference this year has been considerably upset since the first of the season and the originally despised Willamette Bearcats have been one of the chief upsetters.

Football critics had the championship practically decided when the season started, stating that it lay between Whitman and Pacific, who played a recent tie game in Portland. The Bearcats, when they were mentioned at all were generally conceded a place down near the bottom,

Now, however, they are in a tie for first place with the College of Puget Sound, both teams having won one game. The Bearcats victory was the most impressive, as they defeated the Pacific University Badgers, one of the strongest teams, while the CPS victory was over Linfield College.

The Willamette-CPS game here next Saturday will eliminate one of the two contenders, and what dope is available points to a hard battle.

Linfield College, which lost to CPS by a 49 to 7 score, was also defeated by Pacific 7 to 0. This shows that CPS must undoubtedly have a stronger team than Pacific by several touchdowns while the Bearcats won by a margin of one field goal.

The Loggers have a strong aerial attack, displayed in the Linfield game, when they threw pass after pass. Nearly all of them were successful.

The Bearcats are not downhearted by the apparent strength of the Loggers, however. On the contrary, they are gathering added confidence as they go along, the victory over Pacific showing that they have a much better team than for many seasons. The Badgers were accounted a strong forward passing aggrega-

Coach Spec Keene is not very optimistic over the outcome, however. He realizes that he has a green team, and also that his men were no serious injuries.

He has plenty of respect for the ability of Clyde Hubbard, new on the coaching staff there for everal years. It will be a case of log eat dog when their two teams meet Saturday.

How many times have you gone down the street and passed your best friend but didn't see him and therefore did not speak? There is a reason for this: We do not see with our eyes but with our brain. Many students sacrifice their health and eyesight because of continued close work, exerting their eyesight to the utmost and nagging their brain to see better with defective eyes. This should emphasize to you the importance of having your eyes examined both to eliminate eyestrain and brain
