PORTLAND, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Oregon voters defeated two income tax bills which were on the ballot at the state election. One of the bills was initiated by the state grange, and the other by the public service league. The people also refused to endorse a constitutional amendment which would prohibit income or inheritance taxes until the year 1940.

The cigarette and tobacco tax bill was defeated decisively. The measure prohibiting fish wheels in the Columbia river for the catching of salmon, was approved. A bill authorizing a normal school in eastern Oregon passed, and one for a normal school at Seaside was beaten. Approval was given for a tuberculosis hospital in eastern Oregon.

on horse races or put the Bible in public school, in this incomplete count tonight of votes cast in far western states yesterday. Otherwise the election was marked by sweeping republican victories in Idaho and California, with republican candidates generally in the lead also in Oregon, Washington, Utah and Nevada.

Proposals to ask congress to call a convention to modify the 18th amendment and to declare prohibition a failure carried by overwhelming majorities in Nevada, and in California the initiative measure for repeal of the state prohibition enforcement act had a margin of more than 100,000 Yes votes to spare when returns from about half the state's precincts were counted.

Nevada's democrat governor, James Schrugham, was trailing Fred B. Balzar, his republican opponent in the gubernatorial race, by more than 1700 votes with the count 75 per cent complete. United States Senator Tasker L. Oddie's re-election in the same state was conceded by his democratic rival, Raymond L. Baker, former director of the mint.

The decisive republican victory in Idaho not only insured another term in the United States senate for E. R. Gooding, but put H. C. Baldrige, present lieutenant governor, into the gubernatorial chair, and swept into power the whole republican state ticket.

In Oregon another democratic governor, W. M. Pierce, was defeated for re-election by I. L. Patterson, republican, a farmer of Polk county. In the same state Frederick Steiwer, republican was leading Bert Haney, democrat and Senator R. N. Stanfield, republican incumbent running as an independent, in a spirited senatorial contest.

In Washington where no state officers were elected, but where recall petitions against Governor Roland Hartley were circulated at polling places yesterday, the returns today showed a majority of anti-Hartley legislators winning seats in the state senate and house of representatives.

State executive posts were not at stake in Utah, where United States Senator Reed Smoot was re-elected over the opposition of Ashby Shaw, democrat.

The republican pluralities in California were nothing short of landslides. With less than half the state heard from, C. C. Young, republican gubernatorial candidate, had piled up a lead of almost 180,000 over Justus S. Wardell, democrat, who conceded his defeat early in the count. United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, republican, was 118,000 votes ahead of John B. Elliott, bone dry McAdoo democrat, and the various republican candidates on the state ticket were piling up equal or greater margins against their opponents. In California, the racing initiative which would permit pari mutual betting on horse races, the proposal to put the Bible in public schools, and two salary increase propositions, were running behind.

her to the superior court for trial on the charges that she conspired to manufacture evidence supporting her story of kidnaping last May and to refute the allegation that she spent ten days in a Carmel cottage with her former wireless operator, Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive co-defendant.

Her face flushed by excitement, the evangelist, despite the pleas of her mother and attorneys to remain silent, angrily accused the newspaper men and newspapers of being responsible for her being held for trial on the charges.

As Mrs. McPherson rushed into an elevator to leave the building, three newspaper men followed her. She turned to one of them and said:

"I hope you're satisfied!"

"Why?" he asked.

"Because you got exactly what you wanted. This is what you have been hoping for all along; what you have been trying to get from the very beginning. Now you've got it. I hope that on your dying bed you remember this—you're responsible."

"Don't talk," cautioned Mrs.

Kennedy. Mrs. McPherson paid no heed. "They want me to say things that will hurt me," she said. "That's what they want, and I'm saying them."

By this time, the elevator had reached its destination and Arthur Vietch, one of Mrs. McPherson's attorneys, tried to quiet her, but she kept on talking. Finally he shouted to Roland R. Woolley, also her attorney: "Get her away as soon as possible. Don't let her talk to anyone."

The party rushed into a limousine and drove off. Under the law the trial by jury must start within 60 days.

The five weeks of preliminary hearing ended as they had commenced, in a torrent of bitter denunciation from prosecuting attorneys.

W. I. Gilbert, chief of defense counsel, whose son, William, was dangerously injured in an automobile accident at San Mateo today, showed in his low, uncertain voice as he opened his argument, the sorrow which he carried into court.

But the biting sarcasm and barbed inuendo of District Attorney Keyes aroused him to the fighting pitch that characterized his conduct of the defense and he struck back with verbal blow for blow, concluding with a denunciation of "this damnable prosecution."

He accused Keyes of being actuated by motives other than duty in leading the prosecution and declared that in the district attorney's revelations of Mrs. McPherson's testimony at the grand jury probe of her abduction story, the county official was seeking only to "strip this woman of her good name."

Keyes, in his argument, branded the fugitive Ormiston "a coward, hiding and slinking, afraid to come before the court, his co-defendant and the world."

As to the witness (Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy), who swore on the stand in reply to a direct question that he believed Mrs. McPherson's kidnaping narrative, he declared: "It outrages the intelligence of a human being to have a man or woman take the witness stand and state to this court under oath that he believes the silly story told by this woman."

Turning toward where the evangelist sat beside her mother in the front row of the crowded little court room, the district attorney pointed his finger at her and branded her a "perjurer."

"It was a crime," he asserted, "for Mrs. McPherson to come before the grand jury and tell the story she did. She committed perjury."

"It was no crime to go to Carmel. No acts of the defendants up to that time concern the prosecution. There may have been a violation of the rooming house ordinance of Monterey county, but this county is concerned with a

Colds

One of the world's largest laboratories perfected a way to end colds. It combined a number of modern discoveries. That way proved itself so efficient, so quick, so complete that we paid $1,000,000 for it.

That way is called HILL'S. It checks a cold in 24 hours. It ends the fever, stops the headache. It opens the bowels, tones the entire system. And without any ill effects. As a result, one usually feels better than before the cold began.

Millions now employ it. When they learn its results they keep it ever on hand. Then a cold rarely gets started. Here is all-in-all for colds—the best modern science knows. Things will change tomorrow if you take it now. Go start it without delay.

charge far beyond that." Throughout the entire time Keyes was addressing the court the evangelist and her mother sat quietly, apparently emotionless and, outwardly at least, calm.

Rumor had it that a change of venue would be asked by either the prosecution or defense, but attorneys for both sides refused to comment on this report.

A bitter attack upon District Attorney Keyes on his prosecution of the case, and a vitriolic assault on the character and reputation of Mrs. Wiseman, the state's star witness, featured a lengthy statement issued by Mrs. McPherson tonight.

The statement read in part: "In view of the vicious statements made through the press by the district attorney's office since the close of my examining trial, I am glad that Judge Blake held the case for the superior court, where all of the testimony will of necessity be placed before me and before the jury which tries me. The release for publication in the press of the statements concerning this so-called testimony within 30 minutes after the case had been closed, I have been advised by innumerable attorneys, who have called on the phone to express their indignation at such procedure, is totally unheard of in any Christian country. I believe that every right minded citizen in this city and in this nation, whether friend or foe, will admit that the course followed by the prosecution has not for viciousness a counterpart in judicial history. It was done plainly with the thought of influencing the decision of the judge who presided at my hearing, trusting that because of his youth and lack of experience he might be influenced thereby.

"The vile and insulting charge that I was at Carmel is false and was shown to be so by the majority of the state's witnesses who testified. Moreover, I care not if they plant and produce a hundred trunks full of decollette evening gowns of all the colors of the rainbow or though they print and forge a million love letters, this does not change my position or my faith in God, nor does it fool the people, for all those who have ever known me or heard the gospel which I have preached consistently through these years, know the utter absurdity of such a charge.

"Of course I regret it more on account of my dear old mother, who was not under any theory of the evidence shown to have had the most remote connection with anything the state charged. I have absolute assurance of ultimate vindication and whether now or later, matters not."

Then followed a long and fiery attack on the prosecuting attorney and Mrs. Wiseman. The statement closed with the promise: "If my life is spared, I shall
