

ASKING FUNDS TO REBUILD COLLEGE

An Appeal in Behalf of Mt. Angel Institution, by Salem Citizens

Editor of the Statesman: On September 20th, the press of the state reported the awful conflagration and complete destruction of one of the oldest institutions and college buildings in Oregon. People from miles around had witnessed the devastation, for these buildings stood on an eminence overlooking a vast territory, and the flames lighted the heavens over a large area of the Willamette valley.

The loss was fully a million dollars with insurance quite inadequate for the amount. The buildings were of cut stone which was thought to be practically fireproof, and for this reason the insurance was not commensurate with the real value of the property destroyed.

It was a Catholic institution, but entirely financed by the efforts of the Benedictine Fathers, with their college, printing press and farm, and always been a most powerful factor for moral influence, education and the furtherance of the material advancement of Oregon, by sending out through its press the advantages which the state has to offer all classes of good citizens. Perhaps nothing has done more for Oregon than the periodicals of Mt. Angel, which reach homes in every part of the United States as well as many foreign countries.

Being located but 15 miles from Salem, it has always been looked upon as a valuable asset to this city as well as Marion county. The citizens whose names are attached hereto, anxious to offer not only help where it is deserved and needed, but also to advance Salem and Marion county—our home—are calling upon the business and professional men as well as all people to assist the Benedictine Fathers to rebuild and rehabilitate their institution and continue the splendid work they have been doing for the past 45 years. Salem, Marion county and Oregon, still has need for their work.

You may deposit your contributions with any bank of the city to the credit of Mt. Angel College Fund. Hoping you will give this appeal the favorable and considerate attention which it deserves, we remain,

Yours for the advancement of the cause,
J. M. Rupert, T. A. Livesley, T. M. Hicks, K. V. Kugel, T. M. Barr, F. G. Dekebach, August Huckerstein, Frank Myers, J. F. Ulrich, John Meyer, A. A. Mickel, G. Ed Ross, E. N. Simob, Harry Weis, C. A. Suing.

RIFT BETWEEN GUIDING HEADS UPSETS PARTY

Last night in the queen's private box at a horse show when Mr. Hill was said to have upbraided Major Washburn for failing to arrange for a seat for Governor Pierce of Oregon in the queen's car on the motor trip from Maryhill to Portland. Washburn explained that the seats had been apportioned according to the usual plan, and that none remained for the governor.

With Queen Marie and her party looking on, Mr. Hill was said to have told Major Washburn that the latter would "take orders from me," and that he would "crush" Washburn if he disobeyed. Carroll and Washburn then rose from their seats, quietly informed Marie that they could no longer remain with Mr. Hill present, and left. Later none of the principals would discuss the affair, which was conducted so quietly that few persons knew of it.

Colonel Carroll and Mr. Hill lunched together on the train today in an effort to smooth over the differences, but Major Washburn did not join them. Mr. Hill was said to have threatened to put Washburn off the train, but he still was with the party tonight. Washburn has promised Colonel Carroll to remain for a time, at least. Although Mr. Hill said he did not know how long he would remain on the train, others said he would leave it when Seattle is reached again on the return from Vancouver.

Members of Marie's Rumanian party were considerably upset by the incident today but none would discuss it. Neither was any comment obtainable from Marie's private car.

Absence of Mrs. Adolph B. Spreckles, San Francisco society woman, was noted when the party arrived here. Mrs. Spreckles, who was to have been official hostess to her majesty here, was said to have left the train in Portland. Seattle society had not welcomed the selection of an outsider for the role of hostess, and for a time the reception plans were in danger of collapse. A close friend of Mr. Hill, Mrs. Spreckles was said by members of the party to have tried valiantly to join the train in New York and again in St. Paul.

Today's developments disclosed also that minor discord has marked the tour almost continuously since its inception on October 25 in New York.

Officials of railroads over which the train has passed have been represented as in disagreement with the plan which placed Colonel Carroll and Major Washburn, both officials of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, in command of the tour, and a few times differences have arisen over addition to the train of special cars owned by the roads.

Rumanian members of the entourage several times have had trouble in fitting their plans for the queen's travels into those prepared by railroad officials, and many heated conferences by both groups have marked the trip.

How much of the various controversies have reached the ears of Marie has not been divulged, but she has given no public indication that all is not well or that she plans to interfere with the prepared schedule, that calls for her return to Washington on Nov. 24. A spokesman for Marie has said she may visit Florida after resting a few days in Washington, but no further announcement has been made.

BAZAAR BENEFITS LOCAL HOSPITAL WITH FUNDS

serving regular meals, which prove a delight to the most critical person. This in itself is an inducement for the citizens of Salem to patronize the bazaar. However, there is a better reason for urging the patronage.

The Salem general hospital is a city institution and considered one of the best hospitals in the state. A new wing is being completed and there is need for some furnishings. The hospital depends upon the donations for this, and so the Woman's club of Salem has rallied to its support. The club has been sponsoring this bazaar, and all of the funds derived therefrom will be given to the hospital to aid in the purchasing of the new equipment. This is a most worthy cause and deserves the support and cooperation of every citizen of the community.

The hospital belongs to Salem and the people. Everyone may well be proud of it and should rally to its support whenever the opportunity presents itself. The time has arrived and the support may be given by liberal patronizing the bazaar today. Help the Woman's club as the work to help the Salem general hospital.

ROYAL PAIR MARRIED AT SWEDISH WEDDING

ing for her new home on a Swedish cruiser in company with her parents. The Belgian royal party, including the bridegroom, planned to travel by another route. The heir of the Belgian throne will meet his bride at Antwerp and will conduct her to Brussels where a Roman Catholic ceremony will be held on Wednesday.

Some hours before the time set for the ceremony the streets of Stockholm were bustling with gathering guests and a brisk crowd that watched the arrival of the 1200 wedding guests at the palace. Automobile after automobile rolled through the gaily decorated streets in unending succession and entered the grounds of the palace. Inside were scenes of splendor as the large hall slowly filled with a steady stream of richly dressed men and women. Many of the men were in full dress, but the large majority were in uniform.

There was a stir as the royal party entered the throne room. King Gustav led the procession with Queen Elizabeth of Belgium on his arm. Then came King Albert in a plain khaki uniform with Princess Ingeburg, mother of the bride, at his side. King Haakon of Norway and Queen Alexandra of Denmark were next. King Christian of Denmark, the grand duchess of Luxembourg, Prince Charles and an endless number of minor princesses and princes followed in couples. The men all were in uniform and the women in beautiful gowns. The great assemblage of guests rose as the royal train entered and bowed deeply. When the royal party had taken their places, the bride couple came from behind a curtain while the orchestra played an old Swedish wedding melody called "The Peasant's Wedding." Astrid, all in white, smiled happily to the right and left as she walked through the great hall clinging tightly to Leopold's left hand.

The Belgian crown prince, dressed in a simple field uniform of the Belgian grenadiers, wore a stern look, making a pleasing impression with his open, manly appearance. A hush fell upon the great assembly as the civil ceremony was performed. Leopold answered the traditional questions as to whether he took Astrid for his wife, while the young princess smiled happily through the ceremony.

Princess Astrid, who now is crown princess of Belgium, is 20 years old, and is the daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Vastrogotland. She is the niece of King Gustav of Sweden. Prince Leopold was 25 years old yesterday.
