

PEOPLE CONTINUE MIGRATION WEST

Farm Families Make Trip Over Old Oregon Trail and Pacific Highway

The urge of westward migration did not cease with the covered wagon, according to W. G. Ide, manager of the land settlement work of the state and Portland chambers of commerce, who has received word from Arthur Foster, the department's representative in the middlewest, that the Old Oregon Trail and the Pacific highway will both serve as the route for farm families on their way to Oregon. On Monday three families left Murray county, Minnesota, by automobile, the Peters, Lokhorst and Van Edens of that county starting on their trip to the farms which Mr. Foster has been instrumental in assisting them to choose in Oregon. Dozens of other families on whom the field representative has been calling are now arranging their affairs so that they may be free to locate permanently in Oregon. For the next ten days, Mr. Foster will be operating in the farm districts in the neighborhood of St. Paul and Minneapolis, where he has found large groups of families who feel the lure of the Northwest and are especially anxious to investigate the opportunities to carry on dairying where there are mild winters free from the long cold periods which they experience in the east. Further impetus to the effective distribution of settlers upon their arrival was added by the hearty endorsement which this activity received at the semi-annual meeting of the state association commercial organizations' secretaries in Portland last week. The importance of obtaining the names of new settlers' old friends in the east was also stressed as of vital importance. No better source of names of prospective settlers can be obtained in the opinion of many of the secretaries who find eastern people eager to come where old friends have preceded them.

FORESTS PROTECT WATER RESERVOIRS

Storage of Water Recognized Factor in Hydroelectric Development

Suggestions that may add to the value of water power and water supply developments are made in a bulletin just issued by the forest service department of agriculture, entitled "The Financial Limitation in the Protection of Reservoirs," by W. W. Ashe. It is of interest to investors in water power and in municipal water supply securities as well as to managers of such properties and to engineers.

Storage of water is becoming a recognized factor in hydroelectric development, just as it is necessary in most cases for municipal supply. This bulletin shows that with storage there enters the problem of siltage through erosion of soil, an insidious agency which may cause loss of pondage and consequent reduction in the capacity of reservoirs.

The rapidity of erosion and of silting up of reservoirs is affected by different physical and meteorological conditions in the different regions of the United States. Over the greater portion of northern and northwestern United States and in Canada erosion is not a serious problem, though east of the Cascades it is often an important question. The bulletin calls attention to the high silt burden of certain streams and the rapidity with which storage capacity of reservoirs is reduced.

It is shown that it is possible to ascertain the rate of silting and from this to determine the capital value of the storage capacity, the loss of which might be expected within a given period. It is also possible to determine the extent to which excessive erosion may be checked by artificial means. Mr. Ashe proposes a formula for determining how much money could be economically expended to maintain this capital value, which otherwise would be destroyed by siltage. He points out that in case forests are artificially established for the purpose of securing soil cover and reducing erosion a definite return can be expected from the investment therein, and that power and water companies are justified in making additional expenditures which would be within the capitalized value of the storage capacity which will be preserved.

Copies of the bulletin, which is Department Bulletin 1430-D, can be obtained from the forest service, department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Besides the business part of the club a number of socials will also be given.

CONTESTS ADVANCE TEACHING OF PIANO

15,000 Children Participate in Competition at Detroit Recently

A new method of stimulating interest in piano instruction was successfully inaugurated in Detroit. Some 15,000 students in the local schools took part in the contest and out of those there were chosen seven district winners who participated in the finals. First prize, in the form of a grand piano and a trip to New York, went to Judith Sidorsky, a 14-year-old high school student. The second prize winner, William Heillich, a ten-year-old student, received not only the trip to New York but an added prize in the shape of a grand piano offered by an enthusiastic piano manufacturer in the audience. That the contest increased the amount of piano teaching in the city was shown by the fact that one teacher had received 61 new pupils during the two months and, of those 58 had never before had musical instruction. Another teacher had gained 55 pupils of whom 47 were beginners. The contest meant much to music in the home as shown by the purchase of a second piano by one mother in order that her four daughters might freely practice for their entry in the contest.

Besides the leading prizes there were awarded 17 scholarships and 260 rings attesting the recipients' piano championship in the various schools. The contest was under the auspices of the Detroit Music Trades association.

Much credit is due to Frank J. Bayley, the president of the association, who inspired the idea, and to Roy A. Maypole, chairman of the committee in charge. The piano contest idea is spreading to other cities. Besides being developed in Chicago, it is under consideration in Milwaukee, Rochester and Los Angeles.

McMinnville Delegation Attend Church Services

The meeting at the First Christian church is continuing to be of much interest. A delegation from McMinnville visited Tuesday night and some of the Eugene people were in attendance Wednesday. The illustrated songs and Bible study are well received; it makes the Book of Acts more interesting and instructive. Subject for tonight: "Why I am a Christian Only?" Some personal experiences will be given.

The sermon will be preceded by a song interpretation of "The Ninety and Nine," by Mrs. Lester Farnum of Eugene Bible university. There will not be any services Saturday night, as that is rest night, to get ready for the great day Sunday when 600 will attend the Bible school. Come and hear the Gospel in sermon and song.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold is behind you. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache, no hacking, sniffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night. Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly. It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

MIDGETS BOOKED FOR SHOW TODAY

Williams Aggregation of Grown-up Little Folks at Elsinore Theater

Williams Midgets, an aggregation of grown-up little folks head the five vaudeville acts at the Elsinore this afternoon and evening in conjunction with Leatrice Joy in "Made for Love." Williams Midgets is an acrobatic, singing and dancing act presented by a company of six midgets and two normal sized persons.

"Three feet of comedy" is the title of the second act presented by Ed and May Ernie. They will give a program of songs, dances, athletics and comedy talk.

The Lucille Sisters open their act with a scene of Times Square, New York and sing new clever songs. A small miniature automobile is used in the act and operates under its own power. "Sheik of Main Street" is the title of the fourth act in which Mr. Cornalia wears an exaggerated suit of clothes from a mail order house. His partner, Miss Coughlin, acts as the foil for his eccentricities. "Xylophonist Supreme" is the title under which "Red" Norvo piles his tools of trade over the keyboard of the xylophone.

Peach Twigs and Scientific Planning

THE peach twig dips downward, so many believe, when held over underground water supplies. So firm is the faith of some people in its supposed infallibility that they never undertake the labor and expense of digging a well without making a test for hidden water with this natural divining rod.

In preparing for the growth of telephone facilities to meet future demands, there is no peach-twig substitute for foresight. All expenditures of labor and money must be based on scientific planning. Careful studies must be made of present and future conditions in the locality to be served. Probable population and the volume and nature of telephone traffic must be estimated years ahead. Plant must be made capable of expansion. Capital must be arranged for in advance if growth is not to be delayed.

One of the vital phases of the Bell System's task of providing America with a nation-wide universal service is that of forecasting and providing for the future needs of the nation.
