the entire surplus be applied to retirement of the debt.

Mr. Mellon replied he didn't feel it would be fair to take the surplus created largely by income tax mayers and apply it on reduction of the excise taxes, including the automobile and admission dues. It would be difficult, also, he said, to give the smaller tax payers greater credit because their payments now were so small. This plan, he added, also would be prejudicial to the other tax payers.

The secretary did not deny however, that he would just as soon use the surplus toward retirement of the public debt, but added that the debt, which now stands at about $19,600,000,000, would be cut by well over $500,000,000 this at 10 o'clock at the Evangelical year, and he considered this suffi-
