

BATTLER HAS TASK GETTING PARTNERS

Russell Greene in Good Condition for Scrap With Young Dexter

Bud Fisher, Oakland, Cal., demon, who will tackle Eddie Richards of Portland in the main event of Wednesday night's card at the local armory, is so far ahead of all the local fighters in ability that he finds a hard time obtaining sparring partners who can give him a good workout.

As a consequence of this, Fisher has offered a bonus of $1 per round to anyone who will work out with him any night the rest of this week at the armory. He completes his training Sunday night, so the offer is good only until then.

He will hold his workout to night from 6:45 o'clock until 8 and anyone anxious to make a little money can take up his offer then.

Eddie Richards, the Portland middleweight terror who expects to send Fisher to dreamland Wednesday night, is in excellent condition, according to word received here last night.

The fight will be one of the greatest slugging matches ever seen in the local ring, in case it goes the full 10 rounds, according to Harry Plant, matchmaker. Both men carry terrific wallops in both hands and are liable to put each other out at any moment.

Russell Greene, popular little Salem battler, will have a big chance when he tackles Young Dexter of Portland in the 6 round semi-windup event. Dexter is a tough scrapper, and his quality can be gauged from the fact that he recently beat Harry Harris. Harris is considered such a good fighter that negotiations were under way at one time to match him with Phil Bays.

Greene has had a long rest because of his injured knuckle, and will come into the ring with plenty of stored up energy to loosen on Dexter. He is confident of taking his able opponent into camp.

All the preliminary fighters are in good condition, as can be observed from their daily workouts at the armory, so plenty of battle can be predicted for the 32 rounds on Wednesday's card.

AGGIE STARS ILL ON EVE OF BATTLE

Anxiety Felt Over Condition of Maple and Jarvis, Both in Hospital

MERLE HAGAN Oregon Halfback

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Nov. 18.—Anxiety is felt over the illness of Howard Maple and Everett Jarvis, Oregon Aggie backfield men, as the time for the annual state football classic with University of Oregon at Corvallis approaches. Both players are suffering from injuries received in the game with Southern California. Reports from a local hospital state the players in fair condition and recovery is expected in time so that both men will be in the starting lineup Saturday.

All other players on the Orange squad are reported in first class condition and ready to play the game of their football career.

Weather indications now point to a dry field, with the prospect that fans will be treated to a fast game.

Attendance records for the annual OAC-U of O football game will be smashed, judging from the early sale of tickets. Fans need not worry about rain, according to Carl Lodell, general manager here. "We have plenty of covered seats and everybody will be taken care of," remarked Mr. Lodell.

A battery of five movie cameras will record all phases of the big clash.

Dopesters now point to the game as an even chance for either team. The Aggies have lost only one game this season, whereas Oregon has not done so well, but is gradually finding herself and getting tougher as the season progresses. The game is bound to be sensational as Oregon has nothing to lose and a whole lot to gain, so will throw all caution to the winds in an effort to win.

Mr. Lodell has announced tickets still on sale at his office, men's gymnasium, Corvallis; Jack Bene-nel, U. of O., Eugene; A. G. Spalding, Portland; Anderson & Brown, Salem, and Dawson drug store, Albany.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Nov. 18.—(Special.) Football fans who suffered so greatly from early season enthusiasm that they backed their hopes for Oregon against the Aggies this year, have found their only solace, as the time for the game draws near, in the records of past Aggie-Oregon grid games.

Since the first appearance of the teams against each other in 1894, the Aggies have not won a game on their home field from Oregon. In that time Oregon has scored 290 points to 123 for the Orange, and has been held scoreless but seven times to 17 times for the Aggies. In the 29 games played, Oregon has won 17, tied six and lost six. Oregon's greatest teams were in 1915 and 1919.

The Aggie team this season is perhaps the strongest since 1907 when F. S. Norcross was coach. His eleven chalked up 155 points and was not scored on all season. As a fitting climax to the year, the Aggies defeated Vincent's college in Los Angeles 28 to 0.

The Corvallis eleven, owing to their showing in the Pacific coast conference this season, have been overwhelming favorites in the Oregon contest for several weeks. Some fans, however, grasping at the last straw, maintain their faith in the Oregon jinx which has kept the Aggies from winning one game on their home field from the Webfooters. The complete scores from 1894 follow:

BEARCATS TO MEET WHITMAN THURSDAY

W. U. Suffers From Poor Schedule, Bright Prospects for Next Year

All efforts to schedule a game for Willamette university Saturday having failed, the team will play its only remaining contest Thanksgiving against Whitman at Walla Walla. The men are recovering some of the power and drive they failed to show against CPS, according to Coach "Spec" Keene, and have a fairly good chance of winning.

A long rest since the last game will give the men plenty of opportunity to become rested for the contest, and will also let the injured men recover. About the only man who is not likely to be able to play, according to present indications, is Jungblom, quarterback, who injured his knee in practice recently and may be unable to start the game.

Comparative scores point to a Willamette victory, as the Pacific Badgers, who lost 10 to 6 to the Bearcats, managed to play a tie game with Whitman earlier in the season. A win over the Missionaries would cause Coach Keene plenty of satisfaction, for it would bring to an end the most successful season Willamette university has had in many long years of weak football teams.

Only three men of this year's team—Rhodes, tackle; Hartley, tackle, and Bergsvick, end—will be graduated this year. According to present prospects, all the rest of the squad will be back for next season.

With this material to work with, and possible good men in next year's freshman class, prospects for a good season next fall are bright.

One serious handicap to this year's team has been a schedule of games that was little better than a joke. Starting out with games against Oregon and Washington, that provided practically no practice, the team was forced to go against Pacific in the conference opener the week following.

Lack of practice failed to prevent the team's winning that game but the weakness it caused was startlingly apparent against the College of Puget Sound, when the Bearcats apparently did not know what to do with the ball when inside the opponent's 20-yard line.

and missed many chances to win a game in which they made nearly twice the yardage that the Loggers did.

Another bad feature of the past schedule was the long gaps between games, with two and sometimes three weeks intervening between some contests.

A better schedule for next year will probably be made at the meeting in Portland December 3. An ideal one would be to have the Bearcats play each team in the conference, making a five-game schedule, the same that is carried by most teams in the coast conference.
