

McMINVILLE MAN HAS FINE SHEEP

Day J. Kirby to Enter 18 Cotswolds in Exposition at Chicago

One of the outstanding flocks of sheep which will compete in the classic contests of the international livestock exposition, Chicago, November 27th to December 4th, will be that composed of 18 Cotswolds entered by David J. Kirby, McMinnville, Oregon.

Pine Tree farm, which is the name of Mr. Kirby's breeding establishment, started showing Cotswold sheep in 1908 and has been a contender at the leading shows of the country ever since. Many championships and high honors have been won during this period, including awards from two world fairs.

During the present show season the Kirby flock won both championships and ten out of twelve first prizes at the Oregon State Fair. Only recently at the Pacific International in Portland his flock captured both the ram and ewe championships, nine out of eleven first prizes and seven second prizes.

These sheep will journey to Chicago to compete against the finest specimens of their breed to decide national supremacy the week following Thanksgiving.

DEPUTIES WATCH OVER JURY IN OIL HEARING

Called attention that this was an unusual procedure and asserted that the government's motion was a reflection on themselves as well as their clients as it carried an imputation that efforts might be made to reach some of the jurors during the trial. This was denied by the government counsel, but they called attention that one of the counts in the indictment charged the bribery of Fall by Doheny.

Only a little more than three hours was required to select the 12 men who will sit during the weeks the long-delayed case is expected to continue. Twenty-seven veniremen were examined in all and in the course of their questioning, Frank J. Hogan, counsel for Doheny, asked a number of them whether members of their families had been approached for information as to the political and religious affiliations of the veniremen. In several cases an affirmative answer was given.

Questions propounded to the veniremen by counsel for the government were only of the usual character, but Mr. Hogan laid stress in his interrogations as to whether any of the men had read "Revelry," a novel purporting to deal with the oil and other scandals at Washington in recent years. None of them had.

Mr. Hogan also wanted to know whether any had heard the radio speech made by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, prosecutor of the senate oil inquiry, at the time criminal charges were being considered by a grand jury two years ago. If any of the veniremen had heard it they could not recall.

Fall and Doheny, lifelong long friends and one time prospectors in the early days of the west, followed the questioning of the jurors carefully and several times counsel conferred with the former senator and cabinet official before challenging veniremen who had qualified as jurors.

During most of the two long sessions, Fall and Doheny sat back against the railing with Edward L. Doheny, Jr., the oil man's son, between them. Young Doheny is not a defendant in this case, but he carried from New York to Washington "in the little light black satchel" the $100,000 in cash Doheny advanced to Fall and which the government contends was in the nature of a bribe.

BEEF ACREAGE DRIVE PLANNED AT MASS MEET

Mr. Kipp gave the figures gathered by the investigator there. The average has been 17 tons to the acre, with 15.6 sugar content. The growers there think beets make the best major farm crop.

On High Priced Land

The growing of sugar beets in the Bellingham district is on high priced land; on land worth $250 to $425 an acre. One farmer paid there last year for 40 acres of sugar beet land $325 cash an acre. The taxes on the beet land there average $20 an acre. The overhead there is higher than it will be in the Willamette valley.

Factory People Talk

John T. Lant and Sam Storey, field men of the Utah-Idaho Sugar company, having been looking over the Willamette valley, were present to answer questions and set forth their company's proposition. Mr. Lant said J. W. Timpon, northwest manager of the company, is "sold" on the proposition of sugar beet growing in the Willamette valley. They are offering a $9 a ton participating contract here, against a $7 a ton participating contract there. That amounts in effect to Willamette valley farmers absorbing $1 a ton of the $2.25 a ton freight on the beets. The company pays the $1.25 a ton. Otherwise, the Willamette valley growers will participate the same as the Bellingham district growers. They may get $9 a ton, in case sugar is high. That would mean $8 a ton, finally, for the Willamette valley growers; $6 as the beets are delivered.

and $2 when the sugar is sold.

Other Speakers

Prof. Geo. R. Hyslop of the Oregon Agricultural college, responded with encouraging words in favor of the sugar beet industry. Experiments at the college have shown that we can grow the beets, with good sugar content, and in good sized tonnage per acre, even on good up land. He thinks we can find the growers, and that they can find the labor. (Mr. Lant had said the factory people would help in solving the labor problem.) Prof. Hyslop said beet growing is an intensive proposition, requiring good farming methods. He thought the sugar beet industry would be a real addition, well worth while, to our farming in the valley. He advised small acreage at first; increasing with experience.

Prof. McKay of the OAC, said curly leaf, caused by the beet leaf hopper, would not be a limiting problem in the growing of sugar beets in the valley.

E. G. Robinson of Aurora and others spoke, encouragingly.

Voted to Go Ahead

A rising vote, following remarks of Manager Dodson of the Portland chamber of commerce, was called for, resulting in a unanimous approval of the proposition.

So, on Monday next, there will be a beginning of the campaign, with community meetings, and the work of a field man, and perhaps two or three, of the Portland chamber of commerce. The schedule will be worked out as fast as possible, with a view to getting the 1500 acres for 1927, preliminary to the 8000 acres and the factory in 1928.

Prominent Ones There

The following were among the meeting: From Dallas — H. S. Black, president Dallas chamber of commerce; Eugene Mayer, treasurer Dallas chamber of commerce; Winnie Braden, secretary Dallas chamber of commerce; J. R. Beck, county agent Polk county; Z. O. Kimball, editor Independence Enterprise.

From Portland — W. D. B. Dodson, manager Portland chamber of commerce; R. H. Kipp, Portland chamber of commerce; Kenneth Miller, Portland chamber of commerce.

From Aurora — E. G. Robinson, president Community club. From Corvallis — W. T. Reid, secretary Corvallis chamber of commerce; Prof. Geo. R. Hyslop, OAC; Prof. McKay, OAC; Walter K. Taylor, president Benton county farm bureau.

From Turner — P. E. Thomason and C. H. Taylor.

SONGS the beautiful old ones... the infectious new ones... sing them to the music of your GULBRANSEN

THE SONGS you sang when you were young—sing them again! The wonderful old hymns on Sunday afternoon... the simple melodies so rich in memories. The catchy tunes your children hum—bring their music into your home. Make that home a place where brother's chums, sister's beau, all the young folks, love to gather.

Learn the greatest joy of music—the joy of singing to music you play yourselves.

The Gulbransen has made this possible—even though you cannot read a note of music.

The Gulbransen plays by roll. Yet you control its playing. You can accompany voices or other instruments, play fast or slow, accent melody and harmony notes. You can hush the music to a whisper, or release the clear, sweet tones in brilliant volume. It is simple and easy.

You can, in a word, do anything that you could do if you played by hand. This is true of the Gulbransen alone—the only piano of its kind in the world.
